STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

THE Code of Criminal Procedure having been in force for upwards of six years, numerous su tions for its amendment have from time to time been submitted by the courts and officers who hav ministered it. Some of these have been already taken into consideration, and three amending have been passed. These are incorporated in the present Bill. Other proposed amendments have been introduced, the chief of which are as follows :—

22. *[5]. The jurisdiction of the Magistrate of the District has been increased to three imprisonment, instead of two. Power has also been given to the Local Government to invest c full-power Magistrates with the extended jurisdiction, and the Local Governments have been empo to delegate the power of appointing Subordinate Magistrates.

[7, 8, 9, and 10]. These sections have been added at the suggestion of the Governme Bombay.

26. [14]. In this and the following sections, the provision by which it was necessary to ho proceedings in regard to any offence (up to punishment), not only in the district where the offen committed, but in the division of the district, has been omitted. This provision, when strictly c out, has been found very inconvenient, and seems quite unnecessary. It will still be requisite th enquiry into every offence and subsequent proceedings should take place in the district wh occurred.

36. [24]. This section authorized the Magistrate of a District to transfer cases when unde by his subordinates. It is now altered so as to admit of his transferring cases when under enquir a view to committal.

44. [32]. The phrase 'damage of a pecuniary value' has been altered to 'damage of a valu can, in the opinion of the Court, be compensated by a pecuniary award;' and the word 'revision' ha altered to 'appeal.'

49. [38]. The power of ordering the removal of prisoners from one jail to another is exten the Inspector General of Jails.

61. [50]. An amendment has been made to define what property of the offender is li distress and sale.

63. [57]. Power has been given to the Magistrate of the District to direct any other Magi under him to take up a case of which the Magistrate of the District may have taken cognizance out any complaint.

70. [60]. Provision has been made that a summons in crimi al cases shall be served in the same manner as in civil cases, viz., by showing the original and tendering a copy.

74. [63]. The power given by section 74 to the Magistrate of a District has been exte to any Magi te.

86. [75]. Provision has been made that warrants for the arrest of persons out of the jurisdi of the Magistrate who issues them may be directed to any Magistrate within whose jurisdiction the person is, and not to the Magistrate of the District. A similar amendment has been made in section 89 [78] and in section 121 [110].

127. [116]. The power of issuing search-warrants in cases of counterfeit coin, &c., has been extended to all officers vested with the full powers of a Magistrate.

130. [119]. In this and the following sections, amendments have been made with the object of specifying more clearly what is to be done with property seized by the Police, and three sections [122, 123 and 124] have been added with the same object.

140. [132]. An addition has been made which will have the effect of making certain provisions, applicable to warrants of arrest, apply also to orders to arrest issued by a Police officer.

149. [141]. An amendment has been made with the object of defining more exactly the nature of the magisterial sanction requisite to validate a confession made by a person in custody of the Police.

150. [142]. This section has been slightly altered with the object of ensuring greater accuracy.

160. [152]. The report of all arrests required to be made to the Magistrate of the District may be made to any other Magistrate if so directed.

161. [153]. The necessity of some more detailed and effectual rules for holding inquests in cases of unnatural or sudden death has been pointed out from several parts of India. It appears impossible to lay down in a general Code like this any more precise rules than those contained in section 161, but a proviso has been added that the Local Governments may enact any local regulations on the subject that seem requisite, and these regulations will take the place of the provisions of this section.

164, 165. [156, 157]. Wording amended.

* The figures given in brackets are the numbers of the sections of the amended Code.

179. [171]. Difficulty has been caused by the use of the words 'a Magistrate' in this section. It is now amended so as to show what Magistrates have power to take action under it. In this and two other sections [242 and 251], an alteration has been made which will make it clear that the procedure of Chapters XII, XIV and XV are applicable to all offences, whether punishable under the Penal Code or any other law; and section 257 [251] has been altered so as to include offences punishable with fine only, as well as those punishable with imprisonment for a period not exceeding six months.

185. [177]. The wording has been amended.

203. [195]. The following words have been omitted from this section:—"But if the accused person shall, of his own accord, propose to confess the commission by him of the offence of which he is accused, the Magistrate shall require him to give an account of the facts and circumstances in detail, and shall examine him thereupon in the same manner as if he were a witness."

It is not clear why these words were added, and the direction that the accused person is to be examined as a witness has led to mistakes of procedure.

[218]. Provision has been made to meet the difficulty pointed out by the High Court of Fort William, arising from the absence of clear instructions whether a Magistrate enquiring into an offence triable only by a Court of Session, and committed by a person who is a lunatic, should commit him for trial or acquit him.

[220]. This new section requires the procedure of this Code to be observed by Justices of the Peace in the mofussil when committing European British subjects to take their trial before the High Courts.

221. [213]. At present, when a recognizance or surety is forfeited, no lower authority than the Local Government has power to remit any portion of it. It is proposed to give the officer or court that orders forfeiture the power of remitting a portion, and to make all orders for forfeiture subject to the control of the Magistrate of the District.

266. [260, 261]. It has been held that the language of this and other sections made it doubtful whether the Code contemplated that all witnesses in petty cases coming under Chapter XV should be examined in the presence of the accused person; and, as at the same time it was considered desirable that some provision should be made for examining absent witnesses by a summary procedure without summoning them to the place where the trial is being held, an amendment is suggested in the Bill.

[262]. This seems to have been accidently omitted from the Code.

[267]. Section 270 of the Code limited the power of giving amends for frivolous and vexatious complaints to cases coming under Chapter XIV, i. e., relating to offences the maximum punishment of which is not more than six months' imprisonment. But it is evident that a frivolous and vexatious complaint may be laid, in which an offence of a more serious nature is charged for the sake of exaggerating the alleged injury, and it seems right that the power of awarding summary amends should be extended to such cases also. Certain offences, the limit of whose punishment as defined in the Indian Penal Code is in excess of six months, have therefore been included in this category.

276, 277. [273, 274]. By an alteration in these sections, Subordinate Magistrates will be enabled to refer cases beyond their jurisdiction to the nearest Magistrate having jurisdiction, instead of being compelled, as now, to refer them to the Magistrate of the District, who may be at an inconvenient distance. An addition has been made to section [273] which is in accordance with the rulings of some of the courts.

[279]. This is required to meet the case of dangerous criminals.

307. [305, 306]. An addition has been made to section 307 which is much wanted in extensive districts where it is inconvenient to bring respectable persons a great distance to give evidence before the Magistrate of the District as to the habit and repute of dangerous characters. Section [306] seems required.

Chapter XX. [307–14]. An amendment has been suggested in the procedure laid down by this chapter, by which enquiries into local nuisances will be considerably facilitated. At present the Magistrate of the District has to initiate the enquiry as well as to prosecute it. The amendment will admit of the enquiry, when once initiated, being conducted by a Subordinate Magistrate on the spot.

317. [316]. A person who has been ordered to pay a monthly allowance for the maintenance of his wife or child, may have that allowance reduced on proof of an alteration in his circumstances for he worse. It is now proposed to allow the wife or child to apply for an increase of the allowance, when the circumstances of the husband or father improve.

318. [317]. An alteration has been made which will enable the Magistrates to decide the commonest class of disputes, namely, those of persons in joint possession of shares in land, &c.

[346]. Provision has been made for juries being sworn.

372. [372]. The Court of Session is empowered to record a judgment of acquittal, if there is no case for the prosecution.

373, 374. [373, 374]. An alteration has been suggested in these sections. Under the Code, the Court could put a question to the accused person only at the close of the evidence for the defence (or, if none were offered, at the close of the evidence for the prosecution); but if the accused person or his agent addressed the Court at the close of the case for the prosecution and then omitted to call any evidence, the Court would have apparently lost the power of questioning him. The amendments have been made with the object of defining better the mode of questioning the accused.

[380–382]. These sections have been added according to suggestions received.

Repeal of Clauses.

IX. Section XVII of Act IV of 1866, and Clause 16 of Section XL of Act II of 1866, respectively, passed by the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal in Council, are hereby repealed.

Limit of Act.

X. This Act shall extend to the Town of Calcutta, and to the Suburbs of the Town of Calcutta, as defined by any Notification under Section I of the said Act II of 1866.

XI. It shall be lawful for the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal, by an order published in the Calcutta Gazette, to extend this Act to any city, town, station, bazaar, cantonment, village, or tract of country, to be mentioned and defined in such order; and from time to time, by any order published as aforesaid, to revoke, vary, amend, or alter any such order.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

The law at present in force for preventing cruelty to animals in Calcutta having hitherto failed to hinder the occurrence of numerous cases of very gross cruelty, it seems expedient to amend the law so as more effectually to check such cases.

With this view the present Bill has been prepared, which makes but little change in the substantive law, but points out more clearly the class of acts which come within the meaning of the term "cruelty." Provision is also made for extending the law to places not in the town or suburbs of Calcutta, in which it may be considered that it would operate beneficially.

TELEGRAPH.

o. 419.—The 30th April 1868.—The following Re- ion is published for general information :—

No. 418, dated 30th April 1868.

Circular dated 15th June 1864, No. 941, issued from the e Department, calling attention to the Rules of the Electric graph Department applicable to service messages.

ESOLUTION.—His Excellency the Governor General ncil observes that these Rules are very far from strictly observed; and as some time has elapsed they were first promulgated, it appears necessary the attention of all Government servants, Civil Military, to their existence.

His Excellency in Council accordingly resolves that ircular cited above be re-published in the Gazette dia, and that copies be sent to all Departments, ments, and Administrations, with a request that rders may be extensively circulated among all ment Officers; and that it may be intimated to nerned that all messages regarding leave, pay, ion, or appointment, or other matters of a private acter, must be paid for by the person sending them. e it is perfectly clear that the interests of the public ce will be injuriously affected, unless the particular age in question be sent by Telegraph.

Military Department will also be asked to furnish s to the Commander-in-Chief in the three Presi- ies for communication to the Commanding Officers.

(Signed) E. C. BAYLEY, Esq., Secretary to the Government of dia, Home Department, to the Local Governments and inistrations.—(No. 941, dated Simla, 15th June 1864.)

e Governor General in Council finds it necessary ll attention to the Rules of the Electric Tele- rtments applicable to service messages.

periodical inspection of service messages ment in Calcutta shows that it is still a common tice on the part of Secretaries to Government, Heads Departments, Officers Commanding Regiments, and r public Officers, to communicate regarding applica- s for leave of absence and applications for appoint- ts by Telegraph on the public service.

Such communications are in fact very rarely re- ed in the interests of the public service. In nine out of ten they are made for the private convenie of the party concerned, and therefore the messages t not to be sent at the public expense.

If an Officer seeking leave or applying for an ap- tment desires to receive a reply by Telegraph, he ld pay for the reply himself, for no such message properly be sent at the public expense, unless it be ent, because it is in good faith believed that the ests of the public service require it.

The extent of the evil which results from the ular practice above noted, may not readily strike an idual public Officer who may perhaps only send one or two such messages in a month. The evil, how- ever, is in reality a very great one, for the irregularity is found to be prevalent throughout India wherever tele- graphic communication is available, and thus probably not a day passes that private messages which have been paid for, and messages which are really on the public service, are not delayed in transit by the passage of some of these unpaid private messages improperly sent on the public service.

6. The difference between the Post Office and the Telegraph in this matter is obvious, though there is reason to suppose that it is not always borne in mind. No one communicating with Government or with any public functionary is entitled to expect a reply by Tele- graph. The Telegraph is an extraordinary means of communication which is not intended to be used in the transaction of public business, except on urgent and import- ant occasions, and when the saving of time effected by the Telegraph is of real importance to the public interests; and it is of the utmost consequence to the interests of the general public, and also as regards the economical working of the Telegraph, that this rule should be rigidly observed by all public Officers, and especially by those who hold posts of authority.

7. Another common and very serious evil in com- municating by Telegraph on the public service is the entire absence of any care to express the messages in the fewest possible words. It should be always borne in mind that a message should consist of as few words as are consistent with a clear rendering of its meaning. It cannot be too strongly impressed on public Officers that communications by Telegraph must be conveyed in a style altogether different from that which is usual in postal communications. Brevity next to clearness must be considered the most important consideration in tele- graphic messages.

Letter from this Department, to the Chief Commissioner of the Central Provinces, No. 3006, dated 27th October 1866.

RESOLUTION.—On a re-consideration of the whole sub- ject, the Governor General in Council has come to the conclusion that it is desirable to distinguish the Bi-colored Stamps used for Deeds and other Non-Judicial docu- ments enumerated in Schedule A of Act X of 1862 from the Judicial papers specified in Schedule B of Act XXVI of 1867 by the use of differently colored inks. His Excellency in Council is accordingly pleased to direct that a Notification be published prescribing the two descriptions of Bi-color Stamps to be used for the above- mentioned documents, in accordance with the suggestion contained in para 5, cited in the margin, of the letter from the then Officiat- ing Chief Commissioner of the Central Pro- vinces, No. 3688—291, dated the 25th September 1865.

5. The Officiating Chief Commissioner would accordingly recommend that the Bi-color Stamp at the top of stamped paper should remain as it is for Judicial Stamps, and that for Stamps required under Schedule A, it should be blue and black instead of red and black.

ORDER.—Ordered, that a copy of the above Resolution, together with a copy of the Notification therein referred to, be sent to the Government of Bengal for information and guidance, and with a request that that Government will be so good as to instruct the Superintendent of Stamps at Calcutta to prepare the requisite Stamp Paper within such time as will ensure a supply of the same being in the hands of all Stamp Vendors by the date fixed in the Notification.

Ordered also, that a copy of the Resolution, and of the Notification referred to, be sent to the other local Governments and Administrations for information and guidance, and with the expression of a hope that they may see fit to cause the issue of such subsidiary instructions as will ensure all Stamp Vendors having a supply of the same by the date fixed in the Notification.

Ordered further, that a copy of the above Resolution be published at the same time with the Notification therein referred to in the Gazette of India.

No. 2778.—Under the provision of Section 4 of Act X of 1862, the Governor General in Council is pleased to notify that from and after the 1st September 1868 the Bi-color Stamp (red and black) now in use shall be exclusively employed for documents enumerated in Schedule B of Act XXVI of 1867, and that the documents enumerated in Schedule A of Act X of 1862, other than those for which Adhesive Stamps have been prescribed, shall be on paper impressed with a 12 anna Stamp consisting of blue and black colors.

PORT CANNING LAND INVESTMENT, RECLAMATION AND DOCK COMPANY, LIMITED.

IN compliance with a requisition made in writing and dated the 31st day of March last, signed by the required number of Shareholders holding the required number of shares as provided by Section 46 of the Articles of Association of the Company, which has been submitted to the Directors of the Company requesting them to convene an Extraordinary General Meeting of the Shareholders to consider the Acts of the Directors relative to the late Secretaries and Mr. Sc[illegible] and to decide as to the legality of the action of law now being proceeded with against these gentlemen, and also to consider such other matters as may be brought before them and in accordance with the opinion of the Advocate-General upon the question, as to the length of time which should be allowed in the notice convening a Meeting and which opinion is as follows:—

"As I read the 48th Section, the word "convene" must be taken as equivalent to "notice of" and consequently a Meeting need not actually be held within twenty-one days from the date of the requisition; the time named in the notice should be reasonable, and considering that the object of fixing that time at three months would be to give every registered Shareholder an opportunity of recording his vote on a matter of vital importance, I think three months would not be an unreasonable time, and would give the opportunity of communicating with absent Shareholders and obtaining their proxies."

An Extraordinary General Meeting of the Shareholders is hereby convened to be held at the Registered Office of the Company, No. 6, Bankshall Street, Calcutta, on Friday, the 17th day of July next, for the purposes stated in the above requisition.

SURVEY OF STEAM VESSELS.

Mr. Hogg moved that the Bill "to make further provision for the Survey of Steam Vessels within the Provinces subject to the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal" be further considered in order to the Settlement of the Clauses of the Bill.

The motion was agreed to.

On the motion of Mr. Hogg, a verbal amendment was made in Section 1.

Mr. Dampier said, he had had the honor to announce at the last Meeting of the Council that he should move the introduction of some Sections after Section 5. He believed he then gave the Council to understand that the Sections had just been given into his hands, and that he had been requested to move for their introduction. He had since then considered the subject further, and one of the three Sections of which he had given notice did not appear such as ought to be introduced. He would now simply move the introduction of a Section empowering the Government to order a surveyor to enter any Steam Vessel on which an explosion should take place and make a proper enquiry, for the purpose of ascertaining with whom the blame lay, and also for ascertaining and avoiding, if possible, in future, the cause that had led to the accident. He would therefore move that the following Section be inserted after Section 5 :—

"Whenever any explosion shall occur on board of any Steam Vessel subject to this Act, it shall be lawful for the Lieutenant-Governor, if he shall think fit, to direct that an investigation of the cause of such explosion be made by such person or persons as he shall think fit. The person or persons authorized by the Lieutenant-Governor to make such investigation may enter into and upon such Steam Vessel with all necessary workmen and laborers, and remove any portion of such Steam Vessel, or of the machinery thereof, for the purpose of such investigation, and shall report the cause of such explosion."

The motion was agreed to.

The Advocate-General said, he had before the Council a motion to introduce a Section with the object of excluding from the operation of the Act private Steamers. There had been some discussion on the subject, and a difference of opinion seemed to prevail as to whether it was necessary or desirable that the provisions of the principal Act with regard to Surveys, and of this amending Bill as to Certificates for Engineers, should apply to vessels of the class to which he had referred. On the one hand there was this to be said. He supposed there could not be a doubt that the general principle on which the Act of 1862 and this amending Act proceeded was, that as Steam Vessels had a sort of monopoly, or at any rate had such signal advantages as regards the necessities of the public in the conveyance of passengers and goods, that it was only fair and just to regard them as vessels in which the public had an interest, and to require the owners to take such precautions as the public safety and convenience might require. That general principle did not seem to apply to the case of Steamers, large or small, the property of private owners, used for the mere purpose of amusement. On the other hand, there was force in what was mentioned that on board of such Steamers, through negligence, overloading, or other circumstances, explosions might occur, the effects of which might not be limited to the owners or their servants, but might injure the public. Therefore, on consideration, it had been suggested to him, and he should adopt the suggestion, that instead of introducing a Section which would exempt private Steamers altogether from the provisions of the two Acts, it should be left optional to the Executive Government to exempt the owners of such Steamers from complying with those provisions which had relation to the employment of certificated Engineers. To extend those provisions to all such Steamers would indirectly render the employment of such Steamers impracticable. It could not be expected that it would be worth the while of the owners of Steamers of a few tons, kept for purposes of pleasure, to engage the services of such Engineers; but with the view of carrying out the suggestion with regard to protecting the public from danger, he (the Advocate-General) was willing that the provisions of the Act with regard to Inspection and Survey should apply to private Steamers. He would therefore, with the [illegible]ave of the Council, propose to move, in lieu of t[illegible]ection of which he had given notice, one to th[illegible]lowing effect, to be inserted after Section 11, [illegible]ich provided a penalty for a Steamer plying without a certificated Engineer; leaving Steamers of all classes, whether public or private, to be subject to periodical Inspection and Survey:—

"It shall be competent to the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal to exempt from the operation of Sections X and XI any Steamer which does not ply with passengers or goods or as a Steam Tug for hire."

The motion was agreed to.

Section 16 was agreed to.

In Section 17 the date for the commencement of the Act was altered from the 1st of May to the 1st of June.

Section 18 was agreed to.

The Preamble was passed after a verbal amendment; and the title was agreed to.

CRUELTY TO ANIMALS.

Baboo Peary Chand Mittra moved that the Bill "for the prevention of Cruelty to Animals" be read in Council. He said, amongst the papers printed and circulated there was a statement of convictions. He thought it necessary to observe that those convictions had been effected by the limited instrumentality of the Society here, and the statement was therefore not a full representation of the magnitude of the evil which existed. But during the last 41 years (1824 to 1865,) the convictions in London had been upwards of 10,000, while in Calcutta, during 5 years and 3 months, the convictions had amounted to 5,115. So, imperfect as that statement of convictions here might be with reference to the limited agency of the Society, the convictions in Calcutta were much larger than the convictions in London.

As to the course of legislation on this subject which had engaged the attention of Parliame[illegible] from time to time, it appeared that in 1822 [illegible] Act to prevent the cruel and improper treatme[illegible] of Cattle was passed. In 1835 the Royal Soci[illegible] for the prevention of Cruelty to Animals obtain[illegible] an amendment of Mr. Martin's Act, whereby m[illegible] extensive legislative powers were granted, and [illegible] 1839 it succeeded in procuring the insertion o[illegible] Clause in the new Metropolitan Police Act, [illegible] means of which the cruel and dangerous practi[illegible] of using dogs to draw carts and other vehicle[illegible] was prohibited within 15 miles of London; i[illegible] 1845 an amendment of the law for regulatin[illegible] knackers' yards was made; in 1850 a new a[illegible] much improved Act for the more effectual preve[illegible] tion of cruelty to animals was passed; and in 18[illegible] an Act prohibiting the use of dogs as beasts [illegible] draught or burden throughout England was enact[illegible]

So there had been progessive legislation [illegible] Parliament for the prevention of cruelty [illegible] animals. There had been from time to t[illegible] general legislation, but when Parliament tho[illegible] that general legislation did not meet partic[illegible] cases, fresh legislation was resorted to to mee[illegible] evil in its different aspects. Therefore the a[illegible]ment used that whenever there was general [illegible]lation there ought not to be special legisla[illegible] did not exactly hold good in the present ca[illegible] because the English Act, which he held in [illegible] hand, viz., 12 and 13 Vic. c. 92, and which [illegible] passed in 1850, was both general and spec[illegible] that was to say, it was specific as regards partic[illegible] cases. Taking that as a model, the Bill had been drawn up which was now submitted to the Council.

The first Section defined what an animal was for the purposes of the Act: it was declared to mean any domestic or tamed quadruped, or any domestic or tamed bird.

The second Section was simply a recapitulation of the existing law, which it was proposed to repeal by the 9th Section of the Bill. The only addition was the word "overdrive," which was taken from Section 30 of Act V. of 1866, because whatever held good in the case of horses, ought to hold good in the case of bullocks.

The 3rd Section of the Bill provided a penalty for overloading. That had been specially introduced, because the existing law did not reach the root of the evil. There might be cases of overloading which might not assume one or other of the forms of cruelty provided for in the existing law; and Magistrates do and would differ in their opinion as to its construction. He (Baboo Peary Chand Mittra) declared that if he sat on the Police bench, and a case of simple overloading was brought before him, it would be his duty to dismiss such a case under the existing law. He begged to assure Hon'ble Members that overloading was the real cause of the evil. It passed with impunity, because it was thought not to fall within the cognizance of the law, and its effects on cattle were of a serious character. It was continued overloading that manifested itself in galled necks and other diseases; the prolonged suffering from a cruel load was calculated to perpetuate the degenerate condition of cattle, and in such warm weather it was to be doubted whether the hide of a Rhinoceros could stand such continued overloading.

He had ascertained that there were two classes of gharrywans; the first consisted of those who drove their own carts, the other of those who ved others for the purpose. The former limited class. During the last 20 years, fic in Calcutta had so much increased and hand for carriage was so great, that those ere in the service of the principal gharry- ere tempted to take more on carts than ight to do. Overloading therefore went l the carters escaped from punishment, there was not a single case of overloading t up yet, the Executive Police entertaining whether any such case would be entertain- the Magistrates.

the last occasion he had adverted to the Coach Act, which limited the weight to be Stage Coaches, and so late as 1867, in the regulating Hackney Carriages, the same e was recognized, viz., that the license tate the amount of luggage put on every But from the general nature of the and Indian Acts, and also considering evil was increasing and could not be ap- checked unless some specific provision , this Clause had been introduced.

th Section was taken from the English he provided a penaly for neglecting, which said hardly be a doubt was necessary, to ounded animals.

th Section provided a penalty on baiting animals or inciting them to fight. wiciple of this Clause was adopted in ndian Acts, but they related more to the of gambling. The Clause was inserted n a view to prevent the improper and ruel treatment of animals. It was in accordance with a Section of the latest English Act, and was needed here.

The 6th Section provided for the punishment of persons improperly carrying animals, and was also taken from the English Act. There were some who thought that it was perfectly immaterial how animals were carried: they were brought for sale and would soon be butchered. This question had engaged the attention of medical men in England. Dr. Grainger said:—

"It may be proper, as there are some members of the legislature present, that the real facts of the case should be known. It has been said that these animals do not suffer from being carried for twelve, or eighteen, or four and twenty hours with their legs tied together, and their heads hanging down out of a cart. Some people have disputed whether that does cause suffering or not. I therefore think it due to the Society to say that I had the honor of being consulted, in conjunction with Dr. Burrows, of St. Bartholomew's Hospital, in order that we might settle the question, whether the custom I have noticed is really a cause of suffering. In order to determine this point, we had some animals placed in the usual position in which they are carried to market, under the direction of some of the officers of this Society, and we then proceeded to ascertain what was the result. We found that calves in that position give all the indications so familiar to men of science, of intense suffering resulting from a gorged condition of the brain. We all know what the effect upon ourselves would be of hanging with the head downwards; it is a most painful and distressing feeling. But we ascertained, by direct observation, that these animals suffer intensely; that their head and face and throat become gorged and swollen; that there is a great increase of heat, measured by the thermometer; and that eventually there is a condition approaching to what is called inflammation; and then, after the animal is killed, if the brain be inspected, it is found, as might be expected, and as we ascertained by occular demonstration, to be gorged with blood, and in a most unnatural condition. The conclusion at which my colleague and myself arrived, is that the animal sustains the most severe suffering; and this notwithstanding one of those beautiful provisions of nature expressly guarding animals of this class from the effects of particular positions, and thus preserving the healthy condition of the brain."

The next Section (7) of the Bill was for the prevention of the practice prevalent here of permitting diseased animals to go at large or die in the public streets. And the 8th Section provided a penalty for employing an animal unfit for work, the principle of which was recognized in Act XVI. of 1861, Section 9, where it was applied to horses.

The 9th Section proposed to repeal the existing provisions in the Police Acts; the 10th Section provided the limits within which the Act was to take effect; and the 11th Section gave power to the Lieutenant-Governor to extend the Act to any other places to which he might think fit.

The Bill, no doubt, was susceptible of improvement; but he believed that if a Bill of this kind was passed, it would materially reduce the suffering of animals and produce a healthy educational and moral effect on the community at large.

With those remarks he hoped that the Bill would meet with the support of the Hon'ble Council.

Mr. Hogg said, when permission was asked to bring in this Bill, he had stated the reasons which induced him to oppose its introduction. He had since then perused the papers on which the Hon'ble Mover had based his motion, but he had seen no reason whatever to alter the opinion he had expressed at the last Meeting. He thought the Bill, if introduced, would not only be unnecessary, but that it effects would be mischievous. It was true that progressive legislation had been going on in England, but the Hon'ble Member had omitted to state that by that legislation it had never been attempted to arrive at the object aimed at by this Bill, viz., the enactment of a specific provision against overloading. It would, he (Mr. Hogg) thought, be absolutely impossible to define what was meant by overloading, and he submitted that it would not be wise to leave it to the discretion of each individual Magistrate to determine what constituted overloading. Doubtless, if any case of overloading amounted to positive cruelty or ill-treatment, it would fall within the provisions of Section 67 of the Police Act, which subjected a person to a fine of 100 Rupees for the offence. He therefore thought, that when the advancing civilization of England had not attempted to define overloading, this Council should not attempt to do so.

In the annexure to the Bill, the statement of objects and reasons said:

"The law at present in force for preventing cruelty to animals in Calcutta having hitherto failed to hinder the occurrence of numerous cases of very gross cruelty, it seems expedient to amend the law so as more effectively to check such cases."

From that he (Mr. Hogg) gathered that the Hon'ble Mover of the Bill intended to imply that Section 67 of the Police Act had not been sufficient to cover all cases of cruelty. He did not wish flatly to deny the correctness of that statement; but he (Mr. Hogg) was not aware of a single case having ever been brought before the Magistrates which it was found could not be dealt with under the existing law. If he was wrong he should be happy to be corrected. He thought also, from the statement of convictions which had been referred to, that the working of the law had been eminently satisfactory, and that the prosecutions under the Act had been by no means few in number.

verified by oath or solemn declaration. A provision to this effect has also been inserted in the revised Leave and Pension Rules for the Uncovenanted Service, published by the Government of India in the Financial Department, on the 13th April 1864, under instructions from the Secretary of State.

3. The statement on oath or solemn affirmation, which is prescribed by these Rules appears to come under the class to which objection has been raised in the orders of August 19th above referred to. It would perhaps be sufficient, if a simple statement were made before the Magistrate without solemn affirmation, and were certified to by the Magistrate as having been made before him, but as this would not fulfil the requirements of the Pension Rules above referred to, His Honor desires to submit the case for the consideration and orders of the Government of India.

From E. C. BAYLEY, Esq., Secretary to the Government of India, Home Department, to the Under-Secretary to the Government of Bengal.—(No. 634, dated Fort William, the 11th April 1868.)

I AM directed to acknowledge the receipt of your letter No. 912, dated 19th ultimo, forwarding copy of a communication from the Inspector-General of Police, Lower Provinces, representing that, in consequence of the views expressed in the Circular of this Department, dated the 19th of August last, the Magistrate of Gya has refused to receive the solemn affirmation of a Sowar (an applicant for pension) regarding his services.

2. In reply I am directed to explain that the Advocate-General's opinion circulated on the 19th August last, with an expression of the concurrence of the Governor General in Council, referred only to extra-judicial affidavits and declarations before Judicial Officers by persons for their private objects. The case now submitted is of a totally different character.

2. The Government, in its executive capacity, has made a rule to the effect, that if the Head of the Office in which an applicant for pension is employed cannot furnish certain information regarding the past services of the applicant, it will be sufficient to obtain a written statement from the applicant himself, "verified by his oath or solemn declaration, if required." This statement is simply made for the purpose of satisfying the Government on certain points. It is not made before a Judicial Officer, and it involves no proceeding of an extra-judicial character.

4. In the present case, the Magistrate should have taken the statement, not in his capacity of Magistrate, but as the Head of the Office to which the applicant belonged.

Report on the Cultivation of Cinchona at Darjeeling during the month of February 1868.

From T. Anderson, Esq., M. D., Superintendent, Botanical Gardens, and in charge of Cinchona Cultivation in Bengal, to the Junior Secretary to the Government of Bengal,—(No. 3, dated Botanical Gardens, the 20th April 1868.)

I have the honor to forward the Report on the cultivation of Cinchona at Darjeeling during the month of February 1868.

Report on the cultivation of Cinchona at Darjeeling during the month of February 1868.

The cutting of jungle on most of the land intended for the extension of the plantations was completed during the month, nearly all the old roads have been repaired and the formation of new ones has been commenced wherever the jungle on the fresh clearances has been burnt. Very little progress can be made in burning the jungle until it is thoroughly dried by the bright sunny weather which generally prevails in March.

A small extent of jungle was burnt on the more exposed spurs, and the land thus cleared has to a certain extent been filled up with Cinchona plants and pits (thallies) ready for the reception of more have been prepared, 15,380 plants of C. Succirubra and 12,480 of C. Officinalis have thus been added during the month to the open air plantation, making an addition of about 20 acres. New nursery beds have also been made in favorable places adjacent to the land cleared for extension of the open air plantations. 57,300 plants were placed in nursery beds during the month, 51,000 cuttings of C. Succirubra and C. Officinalis were made during the month. The temperature towards the end of the month was higher and the air moister than during the first two weeks, but only 1·2 inches of rain fell during February. Spring and with it the growth of the Cinchonas commenced about the end of the month.

T. ANDERSON, M. D.,
Superintendent of the Botanical Garden;
and in charge of Cinchona Cultivation in Bengal.

Modification in the Rules for the Half-yearly Examination of Assistants and others.

From H. L. Dampier, Esq., Officiating Secretary to the Government of Bengal, to the Secretary to the Government of India, Home Department,—(No. 978T., dated Rampore Bauleah, the 3rd October 1867.)

Referring to the Resolution of the Government of India in the Home Department, dated 15th December 1856, a copy of which was forwarded to this Government with the Under-Secretary's letter No. 1870 of the same date, I am directed to ask the attention of the Governor General in Council to a re-consideration of the decision which was then arrived at, forbidding the practice of passing Assistants in some branches of their examination, subject to further examination in those points in which they have failed.

2. The subjects in which Assistants and others are now examined may be conveniently arranged under three general heads:—

1*st.*—Law, Criminal and Revenue.

2*nd.*—The Vernacular of the District in which the examinee is employed.

3*rd.*—The other Vernacular language.

These three subjects are totally distinct, and the Lieutenant-Governor is strongly of opinion that, when an examinee has once shewn that he has reached the prescribed standard of proficiency in any one of them, he should not be required to submit to examination again in that subject, merely because he has failed in one or both of the others.

3. On the question being raised at the commencement of the year, the Lieutenant-Governor consulted the Commissioners of Divisions, who, without exception, advocated the change which is now proposed.

Mr. Buckland, the Commissioner of the Dacca Division, writes:—"The necessity of passing in the Bengalee language simultaneously with passing the examination in the Revenue and Judicial papers should be done away with. The result of the present system is that the examiners, perhaps unintentionally, lower the standard in Bengali reading and conversation, so that they may not prevent an Officer, who has done well in his question papers, from passing. If it were not made compulsory on the examinees to pass in Bengali simultaneously with the Judicial and Revenue papers, the young Officers would have more time to devote to the acquisition of the language, and at the same time they would have the strongest inducement to obtain a knowledge of it, as they would not receive any increase of pay until they had passed."

Mr. Money, the Commissioner of the Bhaugulpore Division, says:—"According to the present system each examinee must pass at one and the same time in the laws, Judicial and Revenue, and in the languages. A man's papers may be first class in Judicial or in Revenue, or in both, but if he falls short by a mark or two in one of the four tests of his knowledge in languages, translation, dictation—colloquial and reading he has, six months later, to go through the entire ordeal again. The result is, as I have frequently observed, intense annoyance and discouragement. Men get plucked in subjects in which they passed well a year or more before. I would not be supposed to say one word against the principle of examination of the Junior Branches of the Service. I am confident that their efficiency is promoted thereby, but I think all the good might be retained and the evil effects avoided if men were allowed to pass in one subject, instead of being obliged to pass in all at once."

"The argument that a man would cram up a subject, discharge himself of it, and forget it while getting up a second, has, I submit, no force in India, for whatever subject a man passed in, whether law or language, that subject will come before him in his daily Office work the day after the examination and every other day during his official life. For all practical purposes, the knowledge once acquired cannot again be lost to him, but he would have more time and more energy to devote to the subject in which he is still deficient, and he would much sooner, than under the present system, exercise higher powers, be vested with greater responsibilities, and give more useful service in return for the pay he receives."

Mr. Campbell, the Commissioner of the Rajshahye Division, says:—"If a person can read and speak Bengali in April sufficiently well to pass, the chances are that he can do the same in November following without extra study, but this is not so as regards the Revenue and Judicial papers. So far as these are concerned the whole thing is simple cram, and probably few Officers, six months or even much less after they have passed in them, could without fresh and arduous cram pass again; nor can I see any harm in this. After all the chief use of such papers is to ensure Officers knowing at once where to lay their hands on the laws and rules in force, for no Officer, of whatever standing he may be, works without his Penal Code and Act X., &c., by his side."

4. The Lieutenant-Governor desires me to observe that the examination in law cannot be passed without the possession at the time of such an accurate knowledge of minutiæ as cannot possibly be retained without unintermitting study. The Lieutenant-Governor is fully sensible of the advantage of requiring a Junior Officer early in his career to prove that he has acquired such a minute knowledge of the law and the system which he has to administer, because the substantial and practical parts of the knowledge once so acquired remain impressed upon the mind and are kept up by the constant requirements for their exercise in the course of his daily avocations. But though it is thus proper that the minutiæ, which are required for an examination should be thoroughly mastered once in an Officer's career, the Lieutenant-Governor cannot admit that repeated study for several successive examinations has the effect of leaving a larger residuum of permanent and practical knowledge on the mind; and it therefore follows that every hour which a young Officer is obliged to devote to keeping up his knowledge of law to examination pitch after that has once been reached might be more usefully employed in studying a subject which the examinee has not mastered.

5. The same considerations apply to the case of the Vernacular, though perhaps not with the same force, for, as observed by Mr. Campbell, a knowledge of the Vernacular once mastered should be kept up without much trouble.

6. The Lieutenant-Governor therefore desires earnestly to recommend an alteration in the present rules for the examination of Assistants to this extent, that an examinee who has once passed in any one of the three broad subjects stated in paragraph 2 be not required to pass in that subject again by the same standard.

7. The Lieutenant-Governor would further recommend that, when an Officer has passed, as suggested above, in Law and in the Vernacular of the District in which he has been employed, he should be vested with higher powers so long as he is employed in a District in the Vernacular of which he has passed. The higher powers would not carry either increase of salary or promotion, and they would be discontinued in the event of the Officer being transferred to a District in the Vernacular of which he had not passed.

8. The Lieutenant-Governor is convinced that the present rule postponing the increase of powers till the examination has been fully passed in all its branches, deprives the Government of valuable agency at a time when it is much needed, without attaining any compensating benefit. An Officer who passed by the prescribed standard in Law and the Vernacular of the District in which he is employed, is not less qualified for the exercise of full powers in that District than he would be if he had also passed in the other Vernacular which is spoken in another part of the country. The present restriction seems to the Lieutenant-Governor to be merely artificial, and he would wish to see it at once removed. The incentive to study the second language would be quite as strong as it now is if promotion and increase of salary were withheld until the examination has been passed in all its branches.

9. On another point on the present system the Lieutenant-Governor would wish to make an immediate change. The Commissioners in the Lower Provinces are unanimous in agreeing with the Board of Examiners that the present test of writing decisions of selected cases at the time of examination, as prescribed by the 12th of the revised Rules is useless, and a mere waste of the time of all concerned. Under this rule a decision is written on depositions read out in the absence of the parties and their witnesses, without the advantage of the arguments of the pleaders and amidst the constant interruptions which are unavoidable when a large number of examinees (some of whom have a very imperfect knowledge of the Vernacular) are taking notes from the reading of one Mohurir. Experience has shewn that decisions written under such circumstances are perfectly valueless as a test of the capacity of the writer for dealing with arguments and evidence. In place of this test the Lieutenant-Governor would prefer to see a more rigid enforcement of the existing rule, requiring a detailed report from the District Officer on the qualifications of each examinee and the manner in which he has performed his duties since the previous examination. I am to request the approval of the Government of India to the adoption of these changes.

From E. C. Bayley, Esq., Secretary to the Government of India, Home Department, to the Officiating Secretary to the Government of Bengal.—(No. 1886, dated Fort William, the 17th April 1868.)

I am directed to acknowledge the receipt of your letter No. 9737, dated the 3rd October last, asking for a re-consideration of the orders forbidding the practice of allowing Assistants and others to pass in separate branches of their examination, subject to further examinations in those branches in which they fail.

2. In reply, I am directed to state that, after consulting the other Local Governments and Administrations, and fully considering their opinions, the Governor General in Council approves of the proposal of the Bengal Government that an Assistant having once passed in any one of the subjects mentioned in the 2nd paragraph of your letter* should not be required to pass in that subject again by the same standard.

* 1. Law.—Criminal and Revenue.
2. Vernacular of the District in which the examinee is employed.
3. The other vernacular language.

3. The Governor General in Council also approves of the proposal that an Officer, having passed in Law and in the Vernacular of his District, should be vested with higher powers, (but without increase of pay or promotion) so long as he is employed in that District, or in any other where the same language constitutes the Vernacular. This rule, it would seem, can only be applied to the Lower Provinces, as there alone are Assistants required to pass in two languages.

4. With regard to the proposal to abolish the test of writing decisions of selected cases at the time of examination, I am directed to state that, although the Lieutenant-Governor's views are hardly in accordance with the weight of opinion expressed by the heads of other Governments and Administrations, the matter is one in which the Government of India does not wish to fetter the Lieutenant-Governor's discretion, and that His Honor can dispose of the question as he may think best.

From H. L. Harrison, Esq., Junior Secretary to the Government of Bengal, to the Secretary to the Sub-Committee of the Board of Examiners.—(No. 1751, dated Fort William, the 22nd April 1868.)

With reference to paragraph 12 of the letter from this Office No. 869, dated the 2nd ultimo, I am directed to forward herewith a copy of a correspondence* with the Government of India, in the Home Department, on the subject of the revision of the system of Half-yearly Examinations of Assistants and others.

* To Secretary to the Government of India, No. 9751, dated 3rd October 1867.
From Secretary to the Government of India, No. 1886, dated 17th April 1868.

2. I am to request that the Sub-Committee will be so good as to act upon the sanction communicated in paragraph 2 of the letter from the Secretary to the Government of India in the present examination, and to pass all Officers who may succeed in one or more of the three specified branches† subject to further examination by the same standard in those branches only in which they may fail.

* 1. Law, Criminal and Revenue.
2. Vernacular of the District.
3. The other Vernacular language.

3. In the letter from this Office No. 9751., dated the 3rd October last, the Lieutenant-Governor has already sanctioned, in anticipation of the approval of the Government of India, the writing of a decision being dispensed with, and in paragraph 12 of the letter of the 2nd March the Sub-Committee were requested to give effect to that sanction in the first Half-yearly Examinations of 1868. No further instructions are therefore now necessary with reference to paragraph 4 of the present letter from the Government of India.

The mean Temperature and the mean Wet Bulb are derived from the twenty-four hourly Observations made during the day.

The Dew-point is computed with the Greenwich constants. The figures in column ten represent the humidity of the air, the complete saturation of which being taken at unity. The receiver of the lower rain gauge is 1 foot 2 inches, and that of the Anemometer 70 feet 10 inches, above the level of the ground. The velocity of wind, as indicated by Robinson's Anemometer, is registered from noon to noon.

Repeal of Clauses.

IX. Section LXVII of Act IV of 1866, and Clause 16 of Section XL of Act II of 1866, respectively, passed by the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal in Council, are hereby repealed.

Limit of Act.

X. This Act shall extend to the Town of Calcutta, and to the Suburbs of the Town of Calcutta, as defined by any Notification under Section I of the said Act II of 1866.

Power to extend Act.

XI. It shall be lawful for the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal, by an order published in the Calcutta Gazette, to extend this Act to any city, town, station, bazaar, cantonment, village, or tract of country, to be mentioned and defined in such order; and from time to time, by any order published as aforesaid, to revoke, vary, amend, or alter any such order.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

The law at present in force for preventing cruelty to animals in Calcutta having hitherto failed to hinder the occurrence of numerous cases of very gross cruelty, it seems expedient to amend the law so as more effectually to check such cases.

With this view the present Bill has been prepared, which makes but little change in the substantive law, but points out more clearly the class of acts which come within the meaning of the word "cruelty." Provision is also made for extending the law to places not in the town or suburbs of Calcutta, in which it may be considered that it would operate beneficially.

PEARY CHAND MITTRA.

J. PITT KENNEDY,
Asst. Secy. to the Govt. of Bengal,
Legislative Dept.

THE following Bill was read in the Council of the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations on the 9th May 1868, and was referred to a Select Committee who are to report thereon within five days:—

A Bill to amend the Law respecting Appeals in cases under Regulation VII of 1822.

Preamble.

WHEREAS by Section XXIX of Regulation VII of 1822 it is provided that the decisions of Collectors in suits brought under the provisions of this Regulation should be appealable to the Board of Revenue or other authority exercising the powers of the Board of Revenue, at any time before the expiration of three months from the date of the decision appealed against; and it is expedient to shorten the time for bringing such appeals; It is enacted as follows:—

Appeals under Section 29, Regulation VII 1822 to be presented within one month from date of decision appealed against.

I. No petition of appeal presented under the provisions of Section XXIX of Regulation VII of 1822 shall be received after the expiration of one month from the date of the decision against which such appeal is presented, unless sufficient cause shall be shown for the delay to the satisfaction of the authority to which such appeal is presented.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

THE only cases before the Revenue Authorities in which a longer period than one month is allowed for an appeal from the orders of a Collector, are cases under Regulation VII of 1822, in which, by the 29th Section of the law, a period of three months is allowed.

This length of time has been found practically inconvenient now that, by the creation of the offices of Commissioner of Revenue in 1829 and of Uncovenanted Deputy Collectors in 1833, the proceedings of the Revenue Authorities undergo revision, always it may be said twice, and sometimes three times, before they are final. This inconvenience is felt principally in the disposal of the Dearah Survey cases, which are decided under the provisions of the law above quoted; and the object of the present Bill is to substitute in that law one month, for three months, as the period of appeal in those and in all other cases decided under Regulation VII of 1822.

E. T. TREVOR.

The 2nd May 1868.

J. PITT KENNEDY,

DRAFT.

The following Draft Rules, having reference to the undermentioned Navigable Channels, viz.:—

Mátabhanga ,, Jellinghee ,,

called collectively the Nuddea Rivers, are published for information, under the provisions of Section XI. of the "Canals' Act, 1864" (No. V., B. L. C.):—

DRAFT RULES.

I. Every vessel on entering any of the Nuddea Rivers aforesaid shall be liable to measurement for the purpose of ascertaining the amount of toll the vessel should pay according to the Schedule of Rates authorized to be charged by Government, and in the case of boats or vessels which may have entered the rivers unladen or partially laden, and paid toll accordingly, and which have received on board any additional freight; or in the case of boats or vessels regarding the maundage of which any reasonable doubt shall arise; the collecting Officer at any Toll Station shall have power to make a fresh measurement and to demand payment of any additional amount of toll which may be leviable on account of the additional maundage.

II. The tonnage of every laden vessel, excepting Steamers and Flats, shall, for the purpose of the "Canals' Act, 1864," and of these Rules, be determined by the following measurements:—

a. The product of half the length of the vessel from stem to stern, measured along the water line, multiplied by the interior greatest breadth of the vessel, multiplied by the depth from the water line to the bottom of the vessel, is to be taken as the number of maunds upon which toll shall be levied.

b. The measurement of the length is to be made in feet, rejecting inches, and the measurement of the breadth and depth in feet and quarters of a foot, rejecting portions of less than a quarter of a foot.

c. In calculating the amount of toll to be levied, any fraction of 100 maunds less than 25 maunds is to be omitted; exceeding 25 and not exceeding 50 maunds is to be charged as 25 maunds only; exceeding 50 and not exceeding 75 maunds is to be charged as 50 maunds only; and exceeding 75 maunds as 75 maunds only. Above one thousand maunds, no fractions of 100 maunds are to be charged.

III. The tonnage of every empty vessel, excepting Steamers and Flats, shall, for the purposes of the "Canals' Act of 1864," and of these Rules, be determined, and tolls shall be levied thereon, under the same rules and by the same system of measurement as above laid down for laden vessels, with the following exception, viz.:—

The measurement of the depth of the vessel shall, in the case of its being unladen, be made from the gunwale to the bottom of the vessel, instead of being taken from the water line as in the case of a laden vessel.

IV. The measurement of Steamers and Flats shall be taken to be as ascertained by the Master Attendant's Department at Calcutta for the payment by such vessels of the Port dues under the Merchant Seaman's Act, subject to the following deductions:—

a. In the case of Steamers, 35 per cent. of the tonnage of the hull, excluding the cabin accommodation altogether, will be allowed as the tonnage of the engine-room, coal-bunkers, &c., and toll will be levied on the remaining 65 per cent. of the tonnage.

b. In the case of Flats, 10 per cent. of the tonnage will be allowed for accommodation, &c., and tolls will be levied on the remaining 90 per cent. of tonnage.

V. Owners and Agents of Steamers who may desire to avoid the delay consequent on payment of toll on passing Toll Stations, may give notice to the Board of Revenue of their desire and willingness to pay toll in Calcutta on demand; and, on depositing such amount as the Board of Revenue may determine, they shall be furnished with a certificate which shall entitle the Steamer or Flat to pass any Toll Station without detention; the amount of toll due on account thereof being paid in Calcutta on demand, or deducted from the amount deposited with the Board of Revenue.

VI. In such cases the Commanders of the vessels will leave at the Toll Station a certificate of having passed the Station on such a date. These certificates will be attached as vouchers to the bills, which will be presented for payment to the owners or agents of the vessel by the Officer in Calcutta authorized to receive payment thereof.

VII. Every vessel, except Steamers or Flats, which may pay toll under Rule V., on entering any of the Nuddea Rivers, shall, on paying the prescribed toll, be furnished with a ticket. The ticket shall specify the Station at which it has been issued; the date the vessel entered the river; the person in charge of the vessel; the maundage of the vessel, and the amount of toll paid.

VIII. The tickets thus given may be demanded for inspection by any duly authorized Officer of Government employed on the rivers and they must be kept on board and at hand for that purpose. The manjee or owner of every vessel on the Nuddea Rivers not having a ticket on board producible on demand shall be liable to the provisions of Section X. of the Canals' Act.

IX. Duplicates of lost tickets, of which the particulars can satisfactorily be established, will be granted by Officers in charge of Toll Stations on payment of a fee of one Rupee.

X. No fleet of vessels or rafts lashed together and exceeding 150 feet in length, carrying or floating timbers exceeding in all twenty in number, shall pass into, or through, any of the Nuddea Rivers at one time or abreast.

XI. No single vessel or raft carrying or floating a greater number than twelve timbers shall pass into, or out of, or through, any of the Nuddea Rivers: provided also that no single vessel or raft carrying or floating more than six timbers shall pass into, or through, any of the aforesaid rivers between the 1st of December of any year and the 1st of July following.

XII. For every vessel or raft, or fleet of vessels or of rafts, and for every timber which shall pass into, or out of, or through, any of the Nud-

the Rivers in violation of Rules X. and XI., the owner thereof or the person in charge shall, on conviction by a Magistrate, under Section XVIII. of the "Canals' Act, 1864," be punishable by a fine not exceeding Rupees 10 for each vessel, raft, or timber, in excess of the number authorized, besides being subjected to the payment of the prescribed toll on the same. The payment of the toll shall, if necessary, be enforced in the manner described in Section 9 of the "Canals' Act, 1864."

XIII. Refusal to pay the toll on Steamers or Flats except on those which are furnished with a certificate under Rule V., or evasion or attempt at evasion of such payment, will be dealt with under Sections 9 and 10 of the "Canals' Act, 1864," except that, instead of the vessel being seized and detained as directed in Section IX., any separate cargo or stores, the sale proceeds of which will be sufficient to defray the amount of toll that should be paid, and which can, without inconvenience or danger to itself or to the rest of the cargo, be taken out of the vessel, shall be so taken out and detained, and subsequent proceedings shall be taken thereon as directed in Section IX.

XIV. No vessels whatever, except such as are employed solely in conveying troops on military duty, or are employed on works connected with the maintenance or improvement of the Nuddea Rivers, shall be exempted from paying toll.

[illegible] IMPROVEMENT [illegible]

[illegible] Bill to amend [illegible] Act. The [illegible] District M[illegible] had been circulated to all the Mem[illegible] the Bill and, he hoped, sufficiently [illegible] and the expediency of the [illegible] III. of 1865, [illegible] called the principal Improvement [illegible] but two [illegible] the assessment of houses, lands [illegible] Sections 26 and 27 [illegible] with a return to unoccupied houses and [illegible] the consequence was that from unoccupied [illegible] rate of assessment was raised [illegible] occupied houses. This procedure [illegible] considerable dissatisfaction. Not long [illegible] punctuously signed by the ratepayers of the Suburbs of Calcutta, had been [illegible] to His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor. [illegible] of the defective state of the law and [illegible] they were put to in having had [illegible] the full amount of tax for unoccupied houses? His Honor, after a careful enquiry, had observed as follows:—

"As to the second complaint, viz., the imposition of the assessment on unoccupied houses, the Lieutenant-Governor agrees with you that the Dhaka Municipal Act in its present shape is defective in requiring the full assessment of each house, and giving the Commissioners no power of remitting any part of such assessment. The Lieutenant-Governor will, if any changes in this law be brought forward before His Honor's Legislative Council during the ensuing Sessions, be prepared to recommend the introduction into the amended Act of the more equitable provision of the Calcutta Act (Section 58, Act VI. of 1863), by which a moiety of the assessment is remitted during the time that houses remain vacant."

The Bill he intended to bring in was but a transcript of Section 58 of the Calcutta Municipal Act, by which, as the Council was aware, only a moiety of the assessment was collected in such cases. The Bill proposed to grant exactly the same boon to the inhabitants of the Mofussil as that enjoyed by the people of Calcutta.

The motion was agreed to.

Koomar Harendra Krishna said, considering that the Sessions had already far advanced, and as it was desirable to make the provision he had pointed out in the substantive law before the [illegible] to apply [illegible]

[illegible]

January 1867, the 8th paragraph of [illegible] circulated to Commissioners and has [illegible] them the opinions put up herewith. [illegible] matter has become very much more pre[illegible] it was when the Circular was written [illegible] being now in a state bordering on ba[illegible] To such an extent is this the case tha[illegible] aside all idea of opening up the count[illegible] lines of communication, the existing ro[illegible] be kept in repair unless some means [illegible] funds to pay the expenses of carrying [illegible] work. * * * * [illegible] be devised.

levying and collecting the tax, quite apart from the amount to be paid.

8. Then a tax on land meets the third condition almost completely, certainly very much better than any other mode of raising the necessary funds. I suppose it to be paid by all those who now pay rents into the Treasury,—allowing those who have land let on ferms which prevent them from increasing the rent, to charge the actual tax paid in additions to the fixed rent; but making their own arrangements with tenants over whom they have power. The money would be paid into the Treasury with the rent, without any separate collections, and without the loss of a single additional day; there would be no room for interference of subordinates; no door for oppressions of any kind is opened up by it, and no standing at toll bars or ferries, looking for a few pice, or waiting for change; in fact, the payment of the money is the only inconvenience felt. This is saying a great deal in favor of a tax in any country; but in India it indicates more than the ordinary meaning of the words conveys.

9. There is nothing new in the idea that this mode of raising a revenue for keeping up the communication of a country is the most equitable and the least objectionable that can be adopted; the principle is acted on in England and in Scotland; but in both cases in connexion with obstructive toll bars, now looked upon as unfortunate legacies left us by our fathers, which it is our duty to remove, and which we are gradually [illegible] steadily remove. It is adopted in Ireland [illegible]

[illegible] ment than any which is available in Bengal; but on the other hand here there is an unobjectionable and inexpensive means of collection in existence, whereas in Great Britain a costly system had first to be organised for the purpose.

10. If this mode of raising fund be adopted, a few points connected with its practical application require consideration—

I.—The area of the Divisions over which the same rate shall prevail.

II.—The basis on which the assessment shall be levied,—whether it shall be a percentage on the present rents, on the average of each holding, or on new data to be collected for the special purpose.

III.—Whether in the same Division there should be any variation in the amount assessed on holdings on account of their different distances from the work to be done.

11. With regard to the first point, a good deal of local knowledge is necessary to enable one to form a practically useful opinion on the subject; but it may be laid down as a rule that the smaller the areas of divisions are, the more likely all the holdings in each will be to derive something like equal advantage from any works done,—a point which seems to me of still more importance—small Divisions have the advantage of exciting more local interest than large ones; land-holders will probably show more concern in the improvement and assessment of a Division with which they are thoroughly acquainted, and in the greater part of which they have direct interest, than they would show in a large Division with which they were comparatively unacquainted. Having given the question some consideration, I am of opinion that the present Sub-Divisions would not be too small for separate assessment purposes; there is hardly a Sub-Division that would not have small works entirely within itself with which it might deal quite independently of other Divisions, and this, I think, is a feature which may be considered the qualifying test as to the right of an area to have its assessment separately fixed.

12. Touching the second point, the basis of the assessments, that is, whether it should be a percentage on the present rents, or on the average, or on new data to be collected; the first would be the simplest way of dealing with it, but as Mr. Dampier points out it would be unfair; those proprietors who have their holdings at the lowest rent paying the least proportion of the tax. On the other hand, a uniform rate per acre might be quite as unfair as the land producing most, and hence benefitting most, would pay no more than the most sterile tracts. The proper basis is, o[illegible] [illegible] but un[illegible] its value; [illegible] reg[illegible] [illegible] which [illegible] be [illegible] 12 and [illegible] put under [illegible] be changed [illegible] years [illegible] value of [illegible] holdings according to this estimate.

13. Regarding the third point, whether all holdings,—being either near to or far from a road—should pay the same percentage; one is apt to think that a road being made through a district, those parties whose holdings are near it derive very much more advantage from the work than those who may be some miles away; but a little consideration will show that [illegible] so clear as it would at first sight appear. A new road is seldom made in an entirely new line; indeed it is hardly ever so made. Take almost any road with which we are acquainted,—the Bongong and Chogdah Road for instance,—the new line is almost entirely along the general track of the old road, not varying from it a quarter of a mile in any place; the advantage that a man living close to it gets is, that he has a really good road to travel over, instead of a very bad one amounting to about no road at all; the man who lives five or ten miles off the road and joins it at the point where the other man lives, has his bad road, or no road for the five miles, until he gets to the new road, but then he has just the same advantage as the man who lives beside it. The fact of being originally close to the road is a great advantage to the man who is there;

[illegible] he receives only about the same amount of benefit from our improvement of it as the other. In the case of a new road by an entirely new [illegible] this remark would not hold good; and in the case of a man living so far away from the road that he could not use it at all, it would not apply; but the fact is such cases are very rare; in the first case the old lines of route have all been opened ages ago, and they are now either the best routes to follow in an engineering point of view, or they are so important in point of convenience that they could not well be abandoned; and it is to be hoped, if funds be raised to carry on improvement, that few landholders, if any, will be without the use of a road of some kind. I think therefore that no distinction in the rate of assessment need be made on account of the distance which a man lives from the road; any such arrangement would cause great complications, and open up a field for endless disputation or even for dishonest influences.

14. An important question now arises, that is, if this principle of providing funds be adopted, how far every other impost levied for the same purpose should be abolished. I would abolish every toll in the District, and make every ferry free, having one tax, which seems to be a fair one for all concerned. I would wipe off every thing that impeded traffic in the slightest degree. It is hardly necessary to argue in favor of abolishing toll bars; almost all those who have given any attention to the question agree that they ought to go. I may, however, mention, as a point in favor of this [illegible] the [illegible] toll bars [illegible] degree that traffic [illegible] can [illegible] profit [illegible] pockets [illegible] are not [illegible] is benefited [illegible] ed to form part [illegible] faculty [illegible] ed by use, the improvement of it just keeping pace with the increase of traffic developed by the opening up of the country. In the case of ferries, however, I shall encounter more difference of opinion, as it seems to me the case seems to be so [illegible] there can be room for dis[illegible] the other day to one of the [illegible] Bengal on the subject, I could [illegible] certain the idea that I was [illegible] what, he said, you actually [illegible] much hard cash to keep up a [illegible] of the public, and you would [illegible] yourself for the outlay." I [illegible] him by explaining that on the [illegible] the site of the ferry, we [illegible] a month, but probably [illegible] the very same purpose,—[illegible] the very same people, and [illegible] would abolish the toll bar [illegible] enough to re-imburse [illegible] nor by explaining, that, [illegible] and build a bridge at [illegible] interest of the money [illegible] exceed fifty Rupees a month [illegible] made no charge on the [illegible] they are accustomed to it in [illegible] and it would be absurd [illegible] to [illegible] ply: I had no answer to give to [illegible] of argument,—they are accustomed to it,—and if that be a reason for keeping up a system which is quite as objectionable, indeed more objectionable than a toll bar, I have no more to say. I would, however, break through prejudices in the case, and allow traffic to cross the river as freely as it travels on the road. I have only one doubt on the subject, that is, whether, if ferries were quite free—the boats and servants being cure—they would take people and cattle over as freely as if they had to collect the price for passing them; but on fully considering the subject, I think it absurd to admit for an instant that we cannot make our servants do their duty without resorting to means to induce them, which we consider absolutely wrong. I have no doubt they will soon learn to do their duty for us, as well as they now do it for some Babu who rents the ferry, and perhaps never sees it; they may use a little pressure in collecting an illegal price now and then, but there is as large a field open for them to work on now, when price has to be handled continually, as there would be if they did not see the tempting coin at all, and when all knew that crossing was to be wholly free. I would, as I have said at the commencement of this paragraph, abolish all toll bars and make all ferries, on every line of communication maintained from funds raised by local taxation, perfectly free.

15. These remarks would not apply to such cases as the Nuddea Rivers, the Calcutta and Eastern Canals, [illegible] which are great highways [illegible] local [illegible] [illegible] local arrangements.

16. If any such arrangement as that discussed above be adopted for raising funds, it will be necessary, or at least expedient, to reorganize the machinery for [illegible] and carrying on the [illegible] for which the funds are to be raised: it will [illegible] to give those who have to provide the mea[illegible] direct share in the control, both as to how much is to be provided, and how it is to be expended. This principle is of course fully admitted in the formation of Municipal Committees all over the country; indeed, nothing more is necessary than to extend the municipal principle—with such modification as may be found desirable—to bodies representing the mofussil interest. One of the most important points for consideration in connection with it is, how far the sub-division of the country may be carried so as to bring the most useful amount of local interest to bear on improvements; the remarks made when discussing the extent of the areas for assessment purposes apply equally now. For the smallest local interests, the present sub-divisions are, I think, large enough. In each I would have sub-committees consisting of the Assistant Magistrate, the Police Officer, the Public Works Officer, and a proper representation of the land-holders. The next division would naturally be the Collector's District; here I would have a Committee consisting of the Collector, Police Officer, Public Works Officer, Sub-Divisional Magistrates, and a proper number of representative land-holders from each Sub-Division. Finally, I would have a Committee of Control for the Commissioner's Division, consisting of the Commissioner, the Superintending Engineer, the Deputy Inspector-General of Police, the Magistrates, Executive Engineers and a proper representative party from the land-holders of the Collectors' Committees.

17. The Sub-Committee would generally be the originators of works; they would suggest what new roads were to be made, and of what class they should be; what improvements were to be carried out on existing communications, what repairs were to be provided for, and submit this information, accompanied by an estimate of the cost, to the District Committees. Of course, the Sub-Committee would have the means of making their own calculations as to the assessment necessary to provide funds for carrying out what they proposed, but they would have nothing to do with levying or collecting the cess. The District Committee would see that each project proposed by one Sub-Committee fitted into that proposed by another if there should be any connexion at all between them, and they would suggest such alterations as might seem desirable to meet this view. They might also suggest the more general class of projects; lines affecting the whole district; encourage the Sub-Committees to unite in carrying them out, and, in the event of their refusing to do so, represent the case to the Committee of Control, to whom they would send up all projects. The duty of the Committee of Control would be to sanction all those works about which the two Committees below were agreed, and, with the sanction of Government, enforce the carrying out of such works as the Committee recommended in opposition to the views of the Sub-Committee.

18. I think there is good ground for hoping that Sub-Committees constituted in the way mentioned might be so selected that they would take a real interest in the working of the system; certainly, if any thing will make them take such an interest, it is having to fix the taxes in their [illegible] Sub-Divisions; the late action of the Calcutta Municipality shows that, even with a tolerably wieldy body, this motive can make the [illegible] spheres move. On the other hand, the working of the old Ferry Fund Committees shows that, if members of such Committees are merely called together for nominal action in cases where their pockets are not directly touched, they will soon leave every thing in the hands of whatever Officer may be at their head, and the result of this mode of proceeding, as exemplified by these Committees, is not such as should induce Government to encourage a continuation of it. In selecting the Members of the proposed Committees one object to be kept in view should be to get men who would think and act for themselves, who would not be weakly led by the head of their Committee, and, having once made this selection, and seen that it worked even moderately well, the proposals and arrangements of each Committee should be treated with great consideration; indeed, they should not be altered or set aside unless on very strong grounds.

19. The proceeding for the executive work of the system would be simple. The Committee of Control having finally approved of the works proposed, with the sanction of Government, which necessary, would send them down to the District Committee, who would fix the rate of taxation in each Sub-Division; the calculations being made strictly on the basis of the works sanctioned and the fixed valuations of the holdings. They would also remit the money to the Sub-Committees in such sums and at such times as they desired. They would then have nothing more to do with the operations beyond seeing in a general way that the works were carried out in accordance with the designs and estimates sanctioned. The Sub-Committee would superintend all the details of taking up and paying for land, paying for work done, and giving all the aid possible to the Executive.

20. I have given a great deal of consideration to the question,—By what executive agency should the work be carried out? Of course the first idea which occurs to one is, what use can be made of the existing machinery, and after weighing every point, which I thought told either for or against this idea, I am decidedly of opinion that using it is the best arrangement which can be made,—it has the great advantage of being an organized machinery, and whether it is as good as it might be or not, in general working, it is decidedly the best which is available in technical qualification; indeed, there is none other available at all, not even enough to meet the wants of the Department itself, and it can be adapted to meet the demands of the case fairly, if not fully, without any great change in the present system of working.

21. I know that there is an idea afloat that almost any thing would be better than the Public Works Department, but I have no hesitation in saying that I think the idea wrong; without going so far as to argue that the Department is all that could be desired, I cannot believe that a Moburir is a comparatively pure being compared with a Sub-Overseer, nor that he can, or will, make a better road; nor do I see why a Darogah should be a model of honesty compared with his brother, who is an Overseer, nor how he can be a better man to build a bridge or deepen a khall; nor that Serjeant Jones is better, because he leaves the Department and gets employment under the Magistrate, than he was before he left,—was turned out most probably; indeed, one would think that with very much looser supervision than even ours can be, work done by these men would be any thing but an improvement on the Public Works arrangements. The fact is the men with whom we have to work are far from faultless; our system detects and exposes a great deal of their faults—though sometimes it is done too late to be of much use—and we are not sparing of letting the outside world know that we do make mistakes; then the shortcomings of our Department are always causing inconvenience to others, to the Commissioner, who is shaken in going over a rough road; to the Magistrate, whose Cutcherry will leak; to the Darogah even, whose Thannah is not repaired in proper time; in fact to every official and, indeed, non-official in the District and hence, of course, we hear more of the shortcomings of this Department than of any other. It is an executive body whom every one superintends, and it is so much easier to superintend than to execute—and it does execute badly sometimes,—and hence there is great fault-finding, great distrust and much abuse; but with all this, I maintain that those who find fault would not do better, nor even so well. I say so advisedly, having considered the subject fully, and having had a fair opportunity of seeing work done by Magistrates with active Daroghas, intelligent Mohurirs, and smart Ferry Fund Overseers. I feel that this explanation is necessary in putting forward the proposal with which I have commenced this paragraph, and this is my apology for saying so much on the subject.

22. If the work be carried out by the Department Public Works, very little alteration of the present arrangements would be necessary. It would probably be desirable to have an Executive Engineer at the head-quarters of each Magistrate, and a Subordinate at each Sub-Divisional head-quarters, though this arrangement would not be at all essential. I would put the whole of the work of the Division under the Executive Engineer, abolishing all separate establishments under Commissioners, Magistrates and Ferry Fund Committees. The Executive Engineer would carry out the local works just as he now does the regular work of the Department, simply sending a copy of the [illegible] accounts and reports relating to the [illegible] made by the Committees or Sub-Committees [illegible] interfere [illegible] carrying on [illegible] work beyond [illegible] were [illegible] which [illegible] the proper [illegible] were paying would cause [illegible] some kind of public-opinion-influence [illegible] Department, which would probably be of real use. The Lieutenant Governor is aware that at present there is a difficulty in superintending the various [illegible] works without making the cost of supervision very heavy; throwing all the works of the Sub-Divisions into hands of the Subordinates would overcome this difficulty to a considerable extent; while, on the other hand, removing any portion of it, unless all was removed, would only increase the evil.

23. If any such scheme as I have sketched were to be carried out, the first step to be taken should be to call on all Sub-Committees to furnish a scheme of communications,—metalled roads, cutcha roads, bridges, or whatever else might be thought desirable,—which would most fully meet all the present and prospective wants of the Sub-Division, framed quite independent of the consideration how the money to carry them out was to be provided. This arrangement for a design for a complete scheme should be considered by all the Committees, and even be approved of by Government. It would then form the basis of future improvements,—a scheme to be worked up to, as time and means permitted, and to serve as a guide to new Magistrates and Members as the old ones changed from time to time.

24. I am having a statement prepared, shewing the number of miles of roads of each class in each Division in Bengal, excluding Assam and Orissa, the cost of maintaining them properly and the rate of assessment per beegah, which this would necessitate, but as the statement will take some little time to prepare, I submit this note without waiting for it.

Additional Note by the Officiating Secretary to the Government of Bengal in the Public Works Department, on the means of raising Funds for Local Roads, dated the 23rd March 1865.

Referring to paragraph 24 of this Office note of [illegible] the Controller has prepared a memo[illegible] [illegible]nditure on local and other [illegible] [illegible]ful information. [illegible] It would [illegible] [illegible] the amou[illegible] seriously disturbing [illegible] taxing those who should [illegible] made by the Controller in Table [illegible] his memorandum is too high. Note on the Expenditure in Roads in Bengal during the six years 1861-62 to 1866-67 inclusive.

1. In the absence of any more recent record of the length of roads in Bengal, the statement of roads published by Government in 1863 may be taken as affording the best data available, so far as local roads are concerned; as regards Imperial roads somewhat more accurate information is forthcoming, but even here, there is uncertainty as to the length of some of the unmetalled roads. Taking, however, the length of "Imperial Roads" from the last Oudh Report, and the length of "Local Roads" from the Statements above referred to, we have the following result as regards the several Divisions or Commissionerships of this Province:—

14. The cost of maintaining the 1,344 miles of Imperial metalled roads, as noted in the marginal table, for the three years, 1864-65 to 1866-67, has been Rupees 17,99,595, giving an average of Rupees 447 per mile per annum. The cost of metal forms the chief item of outlays and this varies much in different districts. In the 1st Division, Grand Trunk Road, 148 miles in length, the quantity of metal used in the last 16 years has been 212 lakhs of cubic feet, collected at an average cost of Rupees 5-12-10 per 100 cubic feet, or about 9,000 cubic feet per mile per annum. The marginal table can scarcely be considered as showing a fair average of the cost of roads, which have been opened to traffic for some years, as several of the roads have only recently been metalled and some are still in progress, and we must be prepared to look for increased expenditure under this head when the roads which have been converted into metalled roads within the last year or two, require the annual periodical renewal. Taking the average rates of Bengal, the cost of maintenance of 1 mile of metalled road may be assumed at Rupees 620 per mile per annum, which is about 10 times the amount required for the proper maintenance of unmetalled roads.

* These roads are not yet completed as metalled roads.

15. For the ordinary repairs of District Roads the outlay for the six years has been 31 lakhs of Rupees, and allowing one mile of metalled road as equal to ten miles of unmetalled road, the average outlay has been about 30 Rupees per mile per annum, which is somewhat less than one-half the amount which is necessary to keep the roads in an efficient state of repair. At present the total amount of the Local Fund may be taken at nine lakhs of rupees, but this amount is decreasing, as noted in paragraphs 6 and 7; so that not only are the present sources of income insufficient to carry out any improvement on roads, but even if applied solely to the purpose of repairs they would be hardly sufficient to maintain existing roads in proper order. The surplus toll collections, on the Huddee Rivers and Calcutta Canals, which have formed the nucleus of the General Fund, from which the most important feeder roads have been constructed, have, as previously mentioned, also shewn a tendency to decrease.

16. Although there can be no doubt that the present sources of Local Revenue are insufficient for the extension and improvement of existing District Roads, it would be [illegible] any estimate of the amount required for the purpose. To convert the 13,000 miles of [illegible] District Roads of Bengal into metalled and bridged roads would require at least 13 millions Sterling, exclusive of establishments, a sum far beyond the probable means of the local Government to provide, and the cost of maintenance would also increase year by year from the present required amount of 11 lakhs, to about 80 lakhs per annum. To convert the roads into properly raised and bridged roads, omitting the metalling, would require from 6 to 7 millions Sterling and even this is far beyond any amount likely to be available for many years to come.

17. Any practicable estimate must therefore be based merely upon the amount which could be spent with advantage, without interfering greatly with the labor of the country, or the means available for the supervision and carrying out of work; this perhaps may be assumed at 36 lakhs* of Rupees per annum, which, together with the Imperial outlay assumed at 24 lakhs, would make a total of 60 lakhs for the province, an outlay somewhat larger than that Rupees.

* For new works, including the bridging and metalling of existing roads	20,00,000
For repairs and maintenance of roads	11,00,000
For canal [illegible]	5,00,000

of the year 1864-65, when upwards of 53 lakhs was spent.

18. Assuming that the present sources of income of the Amalgamated District Roads' Fund, Local and General, would remain at 11 lakhs, this would leave 25 lakhs per annum to be provided from other local sources. An estimate showing approximately the amount that should be provided in each Division is given in Table VII.

Exemption of Timber and Woods from Import Duty.

From E. H. Lushington, Esq., Secretary to the Government of India, Financial Department, to the Officiating Secretary to the Government of Bombay.—(No. 2472, dated Fort William, the 20th April 1868.)

In reply to your letter No. 1377, dated the 8th instant, I am desired to state, that the term "woods" must be taken to be ejusdem generis with timber, and that under this construction only woods, which are not wrought or manufactured, will be exempt from duty under Act XI. of 1868.

Ordered, that a copy of the foregoing, and of the letter to which it is a reply, be forwarded to the Governments of Bengal and Madras, and the Chief Commissioner, British Burmah, with the request that they will regulate their proceedings regarding the levy of Customs duty in conformity with the foregoing decision.

R. H. Hollingbery,
Asst. Secy. to the Govt. of India.

From F. R. S. White, Esq., Officiating Secretary to the Government of Bombay to E. H. Lushington, Esq., Secretary to the Government of India, Financial Department.—(No. 1377, dated Bombay Castle, the 8th April 1868.)

I am directed to forward to you, for submission to the Government of India, the accompanying copy of a letter* from the Acting Commissioner of Customs, Salt and Opium, at this Presidency, regarding the "Bill to exempt timber and woods from Import duty," published in the Gazette of India of 21st ultimo, and to state that the Right Honorable the Governor in Council is of opinion that all the articles mentioned under the present Tariff heading No. 60, "timber and woods," should be exempted from Import duty, with the exception of the items "cabinet ware," including furniture and carriages, and carriage materials.

* No. 994, dated 28th March 1868.

From C. J. Davies, Esq., Acting Commissioner of Customs, to the Chief Secretary to the Government of Bombay.—(No. 994, dated Bombay, the 28th March 1868.)

At page 391 of the Gazette of India for March 21st, 1868, I observe the draft of "a Bill to exempt timber and woods from Import duty." I presume that the object is to exempt timber and woods in the rough from Import duty, and I, therefore, have the honor to request that you will bring to the notice of His Excellency the Governor in Council that if the Bill is passed in its present shape, it will have a much wider effect than is probably intended. As it stands, the Bill will strike out from the present Tariff heading No. 60, "timber and woods." This heading includes not only timber and woods in the rough, but also several other items, viz.:—

(a).—Deal and pine Planks and boards.
(b).—Sandalwood.
(c).—Manufactures of wood, including pipes, staves and casks.

2. During the official year 1866-67 the sum of Rupees 2,446 was paid as Import duty on Deal or pine planks and boards (a), and Rupees 5,524 on other kinds of planks and boards. Total Rupees 7,970. It may, however, be thought proper to extend to planks and boards the exemption which it is proposed to confer on timber and woods in the rough. It would, however, be an extension of the principle set forth in the "statement of objects and reasons" to extend this exemption to worked planks and boards.

3. During the same year the Import duty on bastard sandalwood (b) amounted to Rupees 330, and on other kinds of wood classed with it in the Trade Returns as "Ornamental," the duty amounted to Rupees 634. Total Rupees 964. No dutiable real sandalwood or blackwood was imported. None of these woods can be properly considered as timber, and they appear to be rightly classed in the Trade Returns as "Ornamental." In the Tariff, however, sandalwood forms an item by itself; the other ornamental woods are dutiable under "other sorts." Looking to the small amount of the duty derived from these woods, it might be expedient to exclude them from the Tariff, but it would scarcely be proper to do so on the grounds given in the "statement of objects and reasons."

4. The item (c) "manufactures of wood, including pipes, staves and casks," includes more important articles, some of which, with the amount of duty paid thereon during the above year, are shewn hereunder:—

	Rs.
Cabinet Ware (including furniture) ...	15,778
Carriages and conveyances other than Railway, complete ...	13,460
Carriages, parts of, including coach-builders' materials, not otherwise described...	4,107
Carriages, Railway, and parts of ...	2,854
Lacquered Wares ...	66
Casks and barrels, made up, or in shooks	977
All other varieties of Cooper's Wares ...	120
Total, Rupees ...	35,414

There are many other articles dutiable under this head, petty by themselves, but collectively considerably swelling the amount of duty.

5. I beg also to call attention to the following items in the Trade Return for the above year:—

	Rs.
Parts of, and materials for, repairing and building ships and boats, not otherwise described ...	6,775
Mast, spar, and oar pieces ...	350
Total, Rupees ...	7,125

Portions of these two items are dutiable as "manufactures of wood;" the other portions are dutiable as "other sorts."

Marriage among the Kols.

From Colonel E. T. Dalton, Commissioner of Chota Nagpore, to H. L. Dampier, Esq., Secretary to the Government of Bengal,—(No. 911, dated Chota Nagpore, the 17th April 1868.)

It has been from early days the custom of the Coles of Singhboom to dispose of their daughters in marriage only to suitors who could give in exchange for the girls a large number of cattle besides cash.

2. The system has for many years acted as a great restriction on marriage, for girls of good family 40 to 50 head of cattle were demanded, and a poor man could rarely obtain a bride unless he could part with at least 20; consequently the number of unmarried grown up girls has in every Cole village in Singhboom increased to an extent that must be detrimental to their morality.

3. All officers who have had charge of the Coleban have noticed the system as pernicious and desired to abrogate it, but the Cole fathers of the old school would not consent to lower their demands.

4. I have now the honor to submit copy of a communication* from Doctor W. H. Hayes, Deputy Commissioner, from which I learn with pleasure that at a large meeting convened by him it was unanimously resolved that in future the fee demanded should be no longer restrictive, and the moderate rate that has been adopted will deprive bachelors at least of this pretence for holding back.

5. There will be no difficulty in introducing a system of registration of marriages by which the success of the movement and sincerity of its promoters will be tested.

* No. 79, dated 13th April 1868.

From Dr. W. H. Hayes, Deputy Commissioner of Singhboom, to the Commissioner of Chota Nagpore,—(No. 79, dated Chyebassa, the 13th April 1868.)

I have the honor to report in regard to the Cole custom of selling the daughters to the bridegrooms, an institution peculiar to the race, that the prices asked were so exorbitant (40 and 50 head of cattle being common,) as to cause for some years past a falling off in the number of marriages and an increased immoral intimacy between the two sexes. I think I am not wrong in stating that every District Officer who has been here and who has taken any interest in the Coles has endeavoured to advise them to alter their custom on this point, but unfortunately without success. I myself have failed up to this, but it is a most pleasing duty to me now to report that the people have at last yielded their prejudices in regard to it. The evils resulting from the exorbitant demands for the Cole ladies have been recently very frequent, and in taking the opinion of the most intelligent of the Coles as to devising a remedy, I discovered that they themselves seemed prepared for a change, but that no person would take the initiative. I now convened a Punchayet, and I am happy to be able to state that it was resolved by all the Maoks and leading men that the bride's Pun on price in future was not to exceed 10 head of cattle—this [illegible] 10 head will include a pair of oxen, a cow and Rupees 7, and for the poor only Rupees 7 without any cattle.

This change I would respectfully note is a very remarkable event in the history of the Col[illegible]

From A. Mackenzie, Esq., Under-Secretary to the Government of Bengal, to the Commissioner of Chota Nagpore,—(No. 2086, dated the 20th April 1868.)

I am directed to acknowledge the receipt of your letter No. 911, dated the 17th instant, with annexure, and in reply to convey to you an expression of the Lieutenant-Governor's gratification at the happy change wrought by the Deputy Commissioner of Singhbhoom in the long standing custom prevalent among the Kols of that District of refusing to give their daughters in marriage save on payment of enormous fees by the intending bridegroom.

2. If the reform proves to be a real and permanent one His Honor observes that Dr. Hayes will have the satisfaction of feeling that he has effected a change, the good effects of which it is difficult to over-estimate.

3. I am to request that after a time you will be so good as to report, for the Lieutenant-Governor's information, whether the resolution now made by the Kols appears to be generally acted upon by them.

The mean Temperature and the mean Wet Bulb are derived from the twenty-four hourly Observations made during the day.

The Dew-point is computed with the Greenwich constants. The figures in column ten represent the humidity of the air, the complete saturation of which being taken at unity. The receiver of the lower rain gauge is 1 foot 2 inches, and that of the Anemometer 70 feet 18 inches, above the level of the ground. The velocity of wind, as indicated by Robinson's Anemometer, is registered from noon to noon.

From the inhabitants of Moorshedabad, dated the 12th April 1868, and enclosures.

Office Memorandum from Officiating Commissioner, Presidency Division, dated 25th April 1868, and enclosure.

We have considered the various papers noted in the margin.

We have provided that this Act shall only operate in places to which it may be extended, and have limited the repeal of Acts XX of 1856 and VI of 1857, to places to which this Act may be extended.

We have excluded from the operation of this Act, villages more than half the inhabitants of which are employed in agriculture or depend on the agricultural population for their support.

We have limited the power of making unions to places of which the most remote parts are separated by a distance of not more than four miles.

We have provided that no person shall be assessed by reason of his occupancy of a building used only for the purpose of religious worship, or of his ownership of an unoccupied house, and we have introduced a Section to prevent double assessment in respect of occupation of holdings substantially the same.

We have made provisions to prevent the payment of the Police being deferred by any delay in the collection of assessments, and we have reduced the maximum number of Police to one for every fifty houses.

We have provided for the application to the purposes of this Act of any money standing to the credit of the Local Fund of any town at the time of the extension of this Act to such town.

We have transferred from the Magistrate to the Town Committee the duty of estimating the sums to be assessed to provide for the contingency of losses from defaulters.

We have wholly omitted from the Act power to impose a rate on the annual value of property within a town.

We have made special provision for the extension of the Act to towns during the currency of any year.

We have altered very materially the constitution of the consultative bodies to be appointed under the Act, and we have called them Town Committees instead of Punchayets, giving power to the Magistrate in certain cases to appoint Ward Committees for the purpose only of making assessments.

We have limited the proportion of Government servants who may be Members of any Town Committee, and have provided for the appointment of ex-Officio Members. We have extended the period of service upon Committees to three years, and have provided that only one-third of the Members, exclusive of the ex-Officio Members should be changed each year. We have also made provision for the conduct of business by Town Committees. We have taken away the penalty for refusing to serve on Committees.

We have enabled the Government to confer on Town Committees some of the powers vested in the Magistrate, and we have provided that every Town Committee so empowered shall be a Corporation. We have considerably modified the provisions respecting the assessment, imposition, and levy of taxes under this Act.

We have given power to introduce certain modified provisions for conservancy, and have inserted clauses to prevent difficulties arising from mere informalities.

We have made some verbal alterations, and recommend that the Bill as amended should pass.

I should have considered it a greater improvement if the provision for the constitution of Unions under Section V of the Bill had been entirely omitted; and if the duties of Town Committees referred to in the Bill had been limited to the making of assessments only.

No. 210.

The following Rules having reference to the undermentioned Navigable Channels, viz.:—

Bhaugiruttee River.

called collectively the Nuddea Rivers, have been passed this day by the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal under the provisions of Sections XI. and XII. of the "Canals' Act, 1864," (No. V., B. L. C.,) and will have effect from and after the 1st July 1868:—

I. Every vessel on entering any of the Nuddea Rivers aforesaid shall be liable to measurement for the purpose of ascertaining the amount of toll the vessel should pay according to the Schedule of Rates authorized to be charged by Government, and in the case of boats or vessels which may have entered the rivers unladen or partially laden, and paid toll accordingly, and which have received on board any additional freight; or in the case of boats or vessels regarding the maundage of which any reasonable doubt shall arise; the collecting Officer at any Toll Station shall have power to make a fresh measurement and to demand payment of any additional amount of toll which may be leviable on account of the additional maundage.

II. The tonnage of every laden vessel, excepting Steamers and Flats, shall, for the purpose of the "Canals' Act, 1864," and of these Rules, be determined by the following measurements:—

a. The product of half the length of the vessel from stem to stern, measured along the water line, multiplied by the interior greatest breadth of the vessel, multiplied by the depth from the water line to the bottom of the vessel, is to be taken as the number of maunds upon which toll shall be levied.

b. The measurement of the length is to be made in feet, rejecting inches, and the measurement of the breadth and depth in feet and quarters of a foot, rejecting portions of less than a quarter of a foot.

c. In calculating the amount of toll to be levied, any fraction of 100 maunds less than 25 maunds is to be omitted; exceeding 25 and not exceeding 50 maunds is to be charged as 25 maunds only; exceeding 50 and not exceeding 75 maunds is to be charged as 50 maunds only, and exceeding 75 maunds as 75 maunds only. Above one thousand maunds, no fractions of 100 maunds are to be charged.

III. The tonnage of every empty vessel, excepting Steamers and Flats, shall, for the purposes of the "Canals' Act of 1864," and of these Rules, be determined, and tolls shall be levied thereon under the same rules and by the same system of measurement as above laid down for laden vessels, with the following exception, viz.:—

The measurement of the depth of the vessel shall, in the case of its being unladen, be made from the gunwale to the bottom of the vessel, instead of being taken from the water line as in the case of a laden vessel.

IV. The measurement of Steamers and Flats shall be taken to be as ascertained by the Master Attendant's Department at Calcutta for the payment by such vessels of the Port dues under the Merchant Seaman's Act, subject to the following deductions:—

a. In the case of Steamers 35 per cent. of the tonnage of the hull, excluding the cabin accommodation altogether, will be allowed as the tonnage of the engine-room, coal-bunkers, &c., and toll will be levied on the remaining 65 per cent. of the tonnage.

b. In the case of Flats 10 per cent. of the tonnage will be allowed for accommodation, &c., and tolls will be levied on the remaining 90 per cent of tonnage.

V. Owners and Agents of Steamers, who may desire to avoid the delay consequent on payment of toll on passing Toll Stations, may give notice to the Board of Revenue of their desire and willingness to pay toll in Calcutta on demand; and, on depositing such amount as the Board of Revenue may determine, they shall be furnished with a certificate which shall entitle the Steamer or Flat to pass any Toll Station without detention, the amount of toll due on account thereof being paid in Calcutta on demand, or deducted from the amount deposited with the Board of Revenue.

VI. In such cases the Commanders of the vessels will leave at the Toll Station a certificate of having passed the Station on such a date. These certificates will be attached as vouchers to the bills, which will be presented for payment to the owners or agents of the vessel by the Officer in Calcutta authorized to receive payment thereof.

VII. Every vessel, except Steamers or Flats, which may pay toll under Rule V., on entering any of the Nuddea Rivers, shall, on paying the prescribed toll, be furnished with a ticket. The ticket shall specify the Station at which it has been issued; the date the vessel entered the river; the person in charge of the vessel; the maundage of the vessel, and the amount of toll paid.

VIII. The tickets thus given may be demanded for inspection by any duly authorized Officer of Government employed on the rivers, and they must be kept on board and at hand for that purpose. The manjee or owner of every vessel on the Nuddea Rivers not having a ticket on board producible on demand shall be liable to the provisions of Section X. of the Canals' Act.

IX. Duplicates of lost tickets, of which the particulars can satisfactorily be established, will be granted by Officers in charge of Toll Stations on payment of a fee of one Rupee.

X. No fleet of vessels or rafts lashed together and exceeding 150 feet in length, carrying or floating timbers exceeding in all twenty in number, shall pass into, or through, any of the Nuddea Rivers at one time or abreast.

XI. No single vessel or raft carrying or floating a greater number than twelve timbers shall pass into, or out of, or through, any of the Nuddea Rivers: provided also, that no single vessel or raft, carrying or floating more than six timbers, shall pass into, or through any of the aforesaid rivers between the 1st of December of any year and the 1st of July following.

XII. For every vessel or raft or fleet of vessels or of rafts, and for every timber which shall pass into, or out of, or through, any of the Nuddea Rivers in violation of Rules X and XI, the owner thereof or the person in charge shall, on conviction by a Magistrate, under Section XVIII. of the "Canals' Act, 1864," be punishable by a fine not exceeding Rupees 10 for each vessel, raft or timber, in excess of the number authorized, besides being subjected to the payment of the prescribed toll on the same. The payment of the toll shall, if necessary, be enforced in the manner described in Section IX. of the "Canals' Act, 1864."

XIII. Refusal to pay the toll on Steamers or Flats, except on those which are furnished with certificate under Rule V., or evasion or attempt at evasion of such payment, will be dealt with under Sections 9 and 10 of the "Canals' Act, 1864," except that, instead of the vessel being seized and detained as directed in Section 9, any separate cargo or stores, the sale proceeds of which will be sufficient to defray the amount of toll that should be paid, and which can, without inconvenience or danger to itself or to the rest of the cargo, be taken out of the vessel, shall be so taken out and detained, and subsequent proceedings shall be taken thereon as directed in Section 9.

XIV. No vessels whatever, except such as are employed solely in conveying troops on military duty, or are employed on works connected with the maintenance or improvement of the Nuddea Rivers, shall be exempted from paying toll.

Elementary Vernacular Education for the Lower Classes.

From H. L. DAMPIER, Esq., Officiating Secretary to the Government of Bengal, to the Secretary to the Government of India, Home Department.—(No. 1771, dated H. M. S. Cocoa, Rhotas, the 2nd August 1867.)

1. The Resolution of the Government of India, in the Financial Department, forwarded with your memorandum No. 1374, dated 11th of February last, it is remarked that in carrying out the scheme of vernacular education in Bengal, which has been revised by Sir J. P. Grant, the scheme has been extensively modified, and the Lieutenant-Governor is requested (paragraph 6 of the Resolution) to consider (1st) the propriety of providing so high a salary as Rupees 10 a month for the Village School Master; and (2nd) the propriety of defraying from the General Revenues of the State so large a portion of that charge as Rupees 5.

2. I am now desired to forward the accompanying copy of the correspondence noted in the margin, and in doing so to request the special attention of the Governor General in Council to the enclosure of the letter from the Director of Public Instruction, No. 1883, dated the 8th April last, as conveying, in the Lieutenant-Governor's opinion, a fair, reasonable, and well considered answer to the objections taken in the Resolution of the Financial Department to the system of education now in force in Bengal. The Governor General in Council will see from this paper that there is no doubt that the statement in the Resolution as to Sir John Grant's view of the aggregate income of the Village School Master was based on a misconception, and that it also probably appears to His Excellency in Council that it is fairly made out that the system of vernacular education, which is now in question, is not open to the charge of being an expensive modification of Sir John Grant's original scheme, as stated in the 4th paragraph of the Financial Resolution.

[Extract Letter of Public Instruction, No. 1788, dated the 24th April.

From Director of Public Instruction, No. 1883, dated 8th April, with enclosures.]

3. But these points being admitted, the question, no doubt, remains whether the present scheme is organized on a more expensive footing than is really necessary. The Lieutenant-Governor desires me to assure the Government of India that this question shall receive the most careful enquiry and consideration on his part, but from all the information before him, His Honor does not hesitate to express a strong belief that the scheme, so far as the village schools and Inspection charges are concerned, is not on an extravagant footing, and that a reduction of the State support to this system of village schools could not be effected without seriously imperilling the whole arrangement. Whether any reduction may be feasible hereafter in the school of the Training School may perhaps admit of consideration, but, the point is of minor importance. The Lieutenant-Governor would earnestly deprecate interference at present with any part of the system. As far as it has gone, it has certainly been attended with a fair measure of success, but it can hardly yet be said to have had a full trial. And if it is to be understood that the Government is to be earnest in promoting vernacular education among the people of the territories comprised by the Lieutenant-Governorship of Bengal, I am desired to submit that very large extension of present operations must necessarily be anticipated. And whether the extension of vernacular education is sought to be attained by the training school system, or by the circle system, or by any other system, it is impossible to expect, while the mass of the people are so [illegible] for obtaining vernacular education as they now do, that the charge on the State (which may be generally estimated as amounting to one-half the expenditure) can be reduced by any means short of direct taxation for educational purposes.

* Vide Mr. Woodrow's remarks, page 84 of Appendix of Bengal Education Report, for 1865-66.

4. The Lieutenant-Governor considers it open to great question whether the real cost to the State at present of vernacular education in the Lieutenant-Governorship of Bengal is greater than in other provinces of the Bengal Presidency, as would seem to be implied in the Financial Resolution. From what is stated in Baboo Bhoodeb Mookerjee's letter, it appears that the Teachers of the Halkabundi Schools in the North-Western Provinces receive, on an average, between 6 and 7 Rupees a month. This salary, it is presumed, is provided from the education cess, which cess is in reality a portion of the assessment on the land assigned by Government for the purposes of education. It is obvious that at the time the assessment of the land revenue was fixed in Bengal and Behar, a percentage might, with more justice than now in the North-Western Provinces, have been set aside for education, inasmuch as the Government took at that time a much larger portion of the gross assets as revenue than they do in settlements of the present day. And at the present day it might surely be contended with some justice, the education of the masses being in question, that the assignment for education of some portion of the tax which those masses pay for their Salt in excess of what is taken from the people of any other province, would have more support in reason than the similar assignment of a portion of the land revenue in other provinces for the same purpose. An assignment of two annas only of the duty on Bengal Salt, after making a liberal deduction on account of the quantity which passes up for consumption in the North-Western Provinces, would yield a far larger educational cess than the so-called cess which is taken on the land revenue in either the North-Western Provinces or the Punjab. The Lieutenant-Governor considers that injustice may unintentionally be done to the people of Bengal if the idea be admitted that, in other provinces of the Bengal Presidency, there is a real educational tax, while in Bengal and Behar there is none; the real position of the case being that in the former instance modern policy has led to the specific appropriation of a portion of the land revenue on the occasion of a new settlement, to the purposes of education, and that in the latter instance there has been no such opportunity of making such an assignment, while it has not occurred to Government to do what might seem equally appropriate, when the education of the mass of the people is in question, viz., to assign specifically to that object a portion of the great revenue which is raised from the people and the soil of Bengal, as compared with any other province, by means of the Salt and the Abkaree taxes and the Opium monopoly. The question, however, strikes the Lieutenant-Governor with special force so far as it relates to Salt, because the tax on Salt is emphatically a tax on the people of every class and denomination, and therefore, when the subject of educating these people is in question, if they can say that they, the class of the poor and the uneducated, contribute more to the general revenues of the State than the same classes in other provinces do, it seems to the Lieutenant-Governor that these people have some positive claim upon the general revenues, and that any reference to the relative position which the province they belong to may hold in respect of the contribution to the State by the Landholders of the province is irrelevant.

From W. S. Atkinson, Esq., Director of Public Instruction, to the Secretary to the Government of Bengal,—(No. 1788, dated the 24th April 1867.)

I have the honor to reply to your No. 1103, dated 4th March, forwarding a Resolution of the Government of India in the Financial Department, dated 2[illegible] January 1867.

2. The first eight paragraphs of this Resolution discuss the financial details of the system of elementary vernacular education in operation under Baboo Bhoodeb Mookerjee, and in accordance with the orders conveyed to me, I beg to submit the following remarks on the statements and arguments contained in them.

3. Paragraph 3 affirms that in the original scheme devised by Sir J. P. Grant, "the sum of Rupees 5 a month was considered sufficient pay for a village school Teacher, and it was proposed that the half of this, viz., Rupees 2-8 a month, or Rupees 30 a year, should be provided by Government, the remaining half being obtained by the Teacher as fees from his scholars" and again, paragraph 4 asserts that "Sir J. Grant considered that Government aid should be given in providing the village tutor with an aggregate income of Rupees 5 a month." Now, in the face of these distinct and positive statements, it is somewhat embarrassing to me to have to affirm, as it will no doubt be startling to the Lieutenant-Governor to discover, that the fact is the very reverse, and that Sir John Grant did unquestionably intend, as has all along been understood by this Department, and (I should suppose) have been understood by the Government which sanctioned the scheme, that the local income of the Guru, assumed at Rupees 5 a month, should be supplemented by a Government grant-in-aid, and not that his aggregate income including Government contribution, should be fixed at this amount. As Rupees 5 a month is certainly not more than the wages of a common coolie, a moment's consideration will be sufficient to shew that not even the most humble school could be carried on under such an arrangement, but the proof of Sir John Grant's intentions having been the opposite of those imputed to him by the Finance Department, I obtained from his own words, which I re-quote here from the original quotation in the Government Resolution.

"The rewards given to the Gurus," he says, "need in no case exceed that the fees which he receives from his scholars, being a sum of Rupees 30, or Rupees 50 a year, and it often need not amount to so much. Taking the average of a Teacher's earnings at 5 Rupees a month, the sum spent in rewards to each School Master would not on an average exceed Rupees 30 a year, and the Lieutenant-Governor believes that the prospect of such a sum would stimulate all but the most apathetic and bigoted Teachers."

I cannot imagine that these words are capable of bearing more than one interpretation, and to my humble comprehension they certainly do not mean that Government aid should be given in providing the village tutor with an aggregate income of Rupees 5 a month. If they did, it would be difficult to perceive the stimulus which was to act upon the Teachers, inasmuch as it was distinctly assumed that their earnings were already Rupees 5 a month, a fact which, as the Additional Inspector states, had been clearly "ascertained from repeated enquiries."

I venture, therefore, respectfully to assert, that the whole of the statements in the 3rd and 4th paragraphs of the Resolution are based on a misconception, and are consequently erroneous.

4. As regards the payment to village Teachers in other provinces out of the Educational cess, my information is not sufficiently accurate to enable me to discuss the bearings of the statement made in the 5th paragraph of the Resolution, but Mr. Kempson informs me that in the North-West Provinces the Teachers receive on the average Rupees 6, or Rupees 7 a month, besides presents from their pupils or their mutts parents. It seems probable therefore that the aggregate income of the Teachers in this case will not be much less than the Rupees 10 a month at which they are estimated in Bengal.

5. Unless any circumstances, however, I cannot undertake to carry on a system of village schools in Bengal with a smaller amount of aid than that now sanctioned, but whether the amount might not be obtained from a local rate rather than from the Imperial Revenue, is an important question which is well worthy of the most careful consideration.

6. In regard to paragraph 8, I would beg to observe that I have always understood that Sir Charles Wood's Despatch No. 17, dated 23rd July 1864, intended to give a complete sanction to the details of the scheme proposed by the Department, and taken in that sense. It certainly perhaps describes the plan as one "which possesses the great advantage of accomplishing its objects at very small expense." Assuming the population of Bengal at 40,000,000, I calculate that with the machinery of the Department and health to provide elementary schools throughout the country at the rate of one school to each 5,000 of the population, at an annual charge of the State not much exceeding 2½ lakhs of Rupees, or £200,000, including expenditure for inspection and administration, and I should hardly suppose that the Finance Department will consider this an excessive outlay for such a purpose, especially when it is informed that for England and Wales, with a population of 20,063,793, the expenditure from the Parliamentary grant, during the year ending 31st March 1866, amounted to no less a sum than £3,848,108 for day-scholars in elementary schools alone, exclusive of all charges for administration and inspection. At the same rate of expenditure in Bengal the charge would be about £750,000 for elementary schools, to which would have to be added about £150,000 for inspection, making a total of £900,000. It may well be said by an English Secretary of State that our present plan accomplishes its object at very small expense.

7. Regarding paragraph 9 of the Resolution, remarks on the salaries annually required by the Deputy Inspectors for establishment, I do not seem to call for any lengthy observations on this occasion, but I wish to observe in reference to the allusion to paragraphs 58, 61 and 62 of the Despatch of 1864, that there is no ground whatever for supposing that any of our Government Schools or Colleges could be maintained in efficiency at a less cost than the grant-in-aid system, than on their present footing, and that even if the hard new factors had been adopted, there would be no diminution in the charge to the State on their account, except at the cost of impaired efficiency, which was certainly not sanctioned by the authors of the Despatch, and could hardly be desired by the present Government of India.

From W. P. Atkinson, Esq., Director of Public Instruction, to the Secretary to the Government of Bengal.—(No. 1788, dated the 30th April 1867.)

In continuation of my letter No. 1788, dated 24th April, I have the honor to forward herewith, for the information of Government, extracts from letter No. 1[illegible], dated April from Baboo Choodee Mookerjee, Inspector of Schools, in addition to the subject of the Financial Resolution of the 26th January.

Extract from a letter from Baboo Choodee Mookerjee, Inspector of Schools, to the Director of Public Instruction, No. 1[illegible], dated April.

The Supreme Government recognise the object of the scheme as proper and desirable (paragraph 2), but consider that under the scheme, as originally devised, the total sum allowed in rewards (Section P, grant, the total sum allowed in rewards and contingencies to each school was limited to Rupees 30 per annum, and provided for the village Teacher an aggregate amount of Rupees 3 only per month), subsequent modifications have rendered the scheme very expensive, and doubled the village Teacher's pay to Rupees 6 per mensem (paragraphs 3, 4), so that the Government expenditure on each village school has become exceedingly costly (paragraph 6), and given occasion even in lower Bengal (paragraph 6) and given occasion even in lower Bengal (paragraph 6) and the necessity of providing such a high pay to the village Teacher as the means of providing that pay, if required (paragraph 6). Further, the Supreme Government accept your estimate of Rupees 30 as the limit of the annual charge per school (paragraph 7), but do not regard the Despatch No. 17, dated 23rd July 1864, from the Secretary of State, as a sanction for the scale of charge, and desire that the local Government should furnish an estimate of the ultimate cost of the scheme when it shall have been fully extended (paragraph 8). The Lieutenant-Governor (No. 9) is of the subjects of grants-in-aid which are, I am of opinion, [illegible]

I beg to observe at the outset that the correspondence on the subject of elementary vernacular education, which is printed in Appendix [illegible] of your Education Report for 1862-63, and in which the Supreme Government have their considerations of the modified scheme in Home Financial Department [illegible] papers, to which I beg to refer, viz. No. 2874, dated the 8th October 1862, and its enclosures. It seems to me that without having those papers before them, the Supreme Government could not be fully aware how the scheme as originally devised had to be gradually changed, and how, on trial, several expensive [illegible] had been tried, that the [illegible] circumstances pointed out these subsequent modifications, the adoption of which have led to the present rapid and unquestioned success of the measure.

I shall now proceed to shew, as well as I can, that in the modifications which the scheme has undergone, its cheapness has been steadily kept in view. In order to do this I shall compare its present cost with what the cost would have been if it had been deemed practicable or advantageous to carry out the original scheme unchanged. In Government letter No. 639 of the 19th October 1860, it is stated under paragraph 7, that "books should be supplied to the schools at a very low price;" under paragraph 9, "that the schools should be supplied with the mechanical aids of which they have been hitherto destitute;" under paragraph 16, that "the reward to the Gurus should not exceed Rupees 30 per mensem;" under paragraph 12, that "each Deputy Inspector would have 25 schools to look after in his circle;" (under paragraph 13 that "1,000 indigenous schools in each district, costing 50 Rupees a year in all would amount to Rupees 5,000 a year;") and that "the salaries of the Deputy Inspectors must be liberal; * * * * * qualified persons could not be secured for less than Rupees 100 a month, including travelling allowances." Now from the above, it is clear that, inclusive of inspection charges, Sir J. P. Grant contemplated three items of expenditure under his plan: (1st) rewards to Gurus, Rupees 30 or 40 per mensem; (2nd) books or contingencies, Rupees 20 per mensem; and (3rd) one Deputy Inspector to every 25 schools, at Rupees 1,200 per annum. If we calculate the cost under these several items for a district containing 1,000 schools, it would be as follows:—

	Rupees
1,000 Schools, rewards ...	30,000
" Books and Contingencies ...	20,000
40 Deputy Inspectors, at Rupees 1,200 each ...	48,000
Total Rupees ...	98,000

Under the modified scheme, so far as it has yet been developed, the cost of 1,000 schools, under the same calculations for travelling charges, ought to be as follows:—

	Rupees
1,000 Schools, Stipends ...	60,000
25 Deputy Inspectors pay and travelling allowances 1,200 each ...	30,000
Contingencies	3,000
Total Rupees ...	93,000

But the fact is that Sir J. P. Grant's calculation as to the travelling charges payable to Deputy Inspectors was evidently wrong. The aggregate allowance of each Deputy Inspector, including of travelling, is not 100, but nearly 125 Rupees per month. Applying this correction, which could be done only after the experience we have now attained, the cost of 1,000 schools under the original plan would have been—

	Rupees
(1.) Rewards ...	30,000
(2.) Contingencies	20,000
(3.) Inspection	72,000
Total Rupees ...	122,000

Under the modified scheme it is shewn below:—

	Rupees
(1.) [illegible]	18,000
(2.) [illegible]	[illegible]
(3.) Inspection [illegible]	45,300
Total Rupees	1,63,000

[illegible] from Sir J. P. Grant's scheme having been expensively modified, it has been at any rate regarded less costly.

Proceeding to the consideration of the Financial Resolution under reference, I beg most humbly to observe that the Supreme Government appear to have misread the Town quotation, which they observe that Sir J. P. Grant considered that Government ought and should be given for providing the village Teacher with an average income of Rupees 5 a month. Sir J. P. Grant says (page 4) that the village Teacher's earnings from the fees of his scholars is on an average Rupees 5 per month, and that from Rupees 2-8 to Rupees 3 per mensem should be awarded to pay such to enable them to adopt an improved mode of instruction, so that under the plan devised by Sir J. P. Grant, the aggregate income of the village Teacher would have been from Rupees 7½ to Rupees 8 per mensem, and not Rupees 5. Under the modified scheme the village Teacher has been to be improved, as it would seem, less supervision than was provided for under Sir J. P. Grant's scheme, and he accordingly demands a higher rate of remuneration which has been given, as it clearly shows, by allotting less money to inspection and more to educational purposes. Of the fees concentrated for improvement by Sir J. P. Grant he says (paragraph 6)—

"It is useless to expect that the ordinary class of village Teachers would submit to the ordeal of examinations. All that can be done is by conference, by judicious advice, and by holding out hopes of reward to stimulate the best men of the class to greater exertion, and to lead them to pursue an improved course of study. It would have been difficult to induce the men out of a hundred of the old Guru class that we might have taken in hand at the first instance, and the inspection, discussion and account of conference, advice and holding out of rewards would have been largely wanted before the best men of the class would have been found, or stimulated to greater exertion; in fact, Sir J. P. Grant adds the difficulty of improving the old class of Gurus himself clearly after. Thus, he says, 'a success would be.' Now, one difficulty of the scheme, very serious, the modified scheme, that difficulty has been successfully overcome and waste of public money on ineffective schools and charges altogether prevented. Looked at from this point of view the modified scheme must appear to be very much more clear than the plan originally devised. The pay, at average remuneration of the village Teachers, viz. Rupees 6 per month, Rupees 3 from fees and 3 from Government, is hardly considered sufficient for adequate, and I have therefore succeeded in keeping on the system by carefully apportioning sites to their residence in villages, taking advantage thereby of the Bengalee's love for his home. Should less pay be given to the village Teachers, not only will the present improved rate of [illegible] begin to deteriorate but larger outlays than at present required will become needful, as under the original scheme, to provide for more inspection of the schools. Any measures of economy therefore which will lower the village Teacher's income will at once tell heavily upon the efficiency of the schools and heavily upon their end.

With adverting to the remark of the Financial Resolution that the village Teacher's pay under the present system is exceptionally high in Lower Bengal, I beg in the first place to submit that never having visited schools in the North-West Provinces or other parts of India, I am unable to say any thing on this point from personal experience. I would wish to be deputed to those provinces where cheaper systems are supposed to be at work, and I would then be in a position to compare them to the Bengal system, both as to their respective costs and results. As it is, however, I beg to submit, [illegible] expenditure from the administration [illegible] Local Government [illegible]

(4.) "The average cost, including [illegible] charges, of each village school [illegible] by Sir J. P. Grant in the Central Provinces, Appendix [illegible] page 25, paragraph [illegible] Now the average cost per pupil in the village schools under the Bengal system is only 1-8 per year."

(5.) "The number of Government village schools in the Punjab in 1856-57 was 1745, and the aggregate expenditure Rupees 1,72,200, giving an average expenditure of nearly 102 Rupees per school." Administration Report, Punjab, 1856-57, page 45. "Now the average cost of each village school in Bengal is 52 Rupees per annum."

(6.) "With regard to the North-West Provinces, Mr. Kempson, the Director of Public Instruction, has already written to you to say, 'that the 17 Rupees Teachers receive on an average between 5 and 7 Rupees fee go to pay Assistants if needed, and to a very [illegible] belong to the Teacher. Teachers of [illegible] precisely from the fathers of their scholars, [illegible] we take no account.' It would seem from this [illegible] that Government outlay on each Bengal school in the North-West is at the rate of about Rupees [illegible] annum. As the fees do not belong to the Teachers, I conclude that they do not amount to anything very [illegible] desirable. It also appears to me that [illegible] levying fees at the village schools to be taken [illegible] Educational Officers it would not only give [illegible] much vexatious interference, but the fees will [illegible] dwindle to something very insignificant. I [illegible] the village Teachers would gladly compensate [illegible] fees over the fees of their scholars [illegible] in 3 Rupees to their present stipends [illegible] to receive fees from the fathers of their pupils."

The above will, I hope, go some way to show [illegible] expenditure on the Bengal system, so [illegible] exceptionally high, is lower than in the [illegible] Central and the North-Western Provinces, [illegible] the Madras or the Bombay Education Reports [illegible] am unable to make any references to them, [illegible] Administration Reports of those Governments [illegible] been unable to find any thing analogous [illegible] indications of village schools.

With regard to the Despatch No. 17 of the Secretary of State, on the subject of the scheme, I beg most respectfully to submit, that it seems not only to approve the general principle of the scheme, but also to [illegible] consideration of the modified form which has been given to the plan originally devised by Sir J. P. Grant. The modified scheme is not only approved generally but [illegible] accepted in the following [illegible] of the Despatch, [illegible] measures which promise to be most efficient, [illegible] which has been in operation for the last three years, under which Masters are trained for indigenous schools at Normal establishments expressly provided for [illegible] work of small salaries are fixed by Government [illegible] salaries of all those Masters who successfully [illegible] examination when they are placed in charge of village schools." There is no specification in the above [illegible] the exact amount of the stipend which the Government will pay to the village Teachers, but I have [illegible] the preceding paragraph, shewn that the stipend [illegible] in Bengal is generally smaller than the payments made to corresponding classes of schools in other provinces of India. The Bengal plan, in the words of the Despatch, does undoubtedly possess the great advantage of accomplishing its object at small expense.

From R. C. Bayley, Secretary to the Government of India, Home Department, to the Officiating Secretary to the Government of Bengal.—(No. [illegible], dated Simla, the 28th October 1867.)

I am directed to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 2nd of August last, No. 1777, and of its enclosures, on the subject of Vernacular education in Bengal.

2. It appears to be satisfactorily shown that the new rule in the Resolution of the 26th January last, No. 294, of Sir J. P. Grant's scheme of vernacular education was based on a misconception, and that the present system is but an expensive modification of that scheme. The Governor General in Council is glad to see by His Honor's assurance that the question, of necessity or expediency of reduction on the existing rate of Government expenditure will receive due consideration. So far as it has gone, His Excellency in Council believes that the system has worked successfully, and he is so fully impressed with the importance of giving it a fair trial, that interference with any part of it is at present deprecated. As observed in my letter of the 15th inst., the scheme must be considered simply as an application of the grant-in-aid system to the circumstances and requirements of existing Vernacular Schools in Bengal, and so far as it can be sufficiently extended on this principle, the Governor General in Council is anxious to give it encouragement and support.

3. Adverting now to the question raised in the 4th paragraph as to the means of providing funds for extending Vernacular education, I am instructed to observe as follows:

4. In respect to the cesses for educational purposes raised in the North-Western Provinces, the Central Provinces, Oudh, and Bombay, His Excellency in Council is unable to coincide in the view of the Lieutenant-Governor that they form part of the Imperial revenue assigned for local educational purposes.

5. As a matter of fact, the State has never undertaken to provide funds for the education of the mass of the people.

6. Consequently, as was originally the case in Bengal, so in the North-Western Provinces, the proportion of the rent taken as revenue by Government has been fixed on calculations into which the element of a provision for the general education of the people did not enter.

7. In the recent settlements in Upper India, the limit of the Imperial demand has been fixed at 50 per cent. of the gross assets, and this would have been its limit, even no further provision for district cess had been expedient for educational purposes.

8. The educational cess on land, which varies in amount according to local requirements, is, accordingly, clearly taken from the proprietors of the soil as a separate tax for special local purposes. It is no doubt a true tax, forming a voluntary, although in the Upper Provinces and Bengal, from the circumstances under which it has been levied, the objects to which, and the manner in which, it is applied, it is probably not unpopular.

9. But it is altogether separate from the Imperial revenue, and if it became impossible for any special reason to apply the proceeds to the purposes for which it is designed, it would not be levied at all.

10. The existence of such a cess, therefore, in the Provinces, affords no argument for the application of a portion of the Imperial revenue in Bengal to local purposes. On the contrary, there is no part of India in which the Imperial revenue can with less fairness be called upon to contribute to local objects.

11. Whatever may have been in reality the share of the income of the proprietors of the soil which the permanent settlement originally gave to Government, there can be no doubt that the new fat has been in other Provinces, that while the area under cultivation has enormously increased (perhaps, on an average, doubled) on the other hand the prices of produce have widely risen in even a still greater ratio, so that the gross assets of the proprietors have probably increased four or five-fold, if not more, and the amount of the Imperial demand remaining stationary, its incidence has proportionately diminished.

12. The main burden, therefore, of Vernacular education in Bengal should, the Governor General in Council thinks, fall, not on the Imperial revenues, but as elsewhere, on the proprietors of the land.

13. In the permanently-settled Districts of the Benares Division of the North-Western Provinces (between which and the permanently-settled Districts of the Lower Provinces the most complete analogy exists), the proprietors of the soil have voluntarily agreed to the imposition of an educational cess, on condition that Government should give an equal amount.

14. The Governor General in Council would be glad if the Zemindars of Bengal could be similarly brought to tax themselves for Vernacular education. In such case, without pledging the Government to any specific condition, His Excellency would willingly give such aid as the finances of the Empire could, from time to time, fairly afford.

15. But if any such voluntary arrangement is impossible, His Excellency in Council is of opinion that legislation may justifiably be employed for the imposition of a general local cess of such amount as may be necessary.

16. Regard being had to the circumstances of the country, it is probable that a cess, at least as heavy as that borne by the Zemindars in the Central Provinces, viz., 2 per cent. on the Imperial revenue, might fairly be imposed; though even this cess would not provide (taking the amount of the land-revenue in Bengal to be £3,770,000) a sum equivalent to that estimated by Mr. Atkinson as necessary for the full extension of Vernacular education in Bengal.

17. Something may, however, perhaps eventually be provided from the sources indicated in my letter No. 4[illegible], dated the 12th [illegible]. At any rate the Governor General in Council would wish his Lieutenant-Governor to re-consider the entire subject, with reference to the above remarks, and to submit such a modified scheme for extending Vernacular education as may, on further examination, seem to be practicable.

13. In connection with the general subject, I am desired to forward a copy of a letter from the Reverend J. Long, and to state that the Governor General in Council will be glad of an expression of the Director's and Governor's views on the proposals made therein. The reports by Mr. Adams, referred to by Mr. Long, accompany.

From the Reverend JAMES LONG, to His Excellency SIR JOHN LAWRENCE, K.C.B. and K.C.S., Governor General of India.—(dated Simla, the 26th August 1867.)

SIR, I have, the Private Secretary has informed me, that your Excellency is pleased with the general principles relating to Vernacular education laid down in my letter of the 14th instant, and wishes to have my views as to a practical scheme for imparting Vernacular education in Bengal.

2. I beg to submit the following sketch of the measures I would recommend as urgent in the existing crisis in Bengal. Additional measures can be adopted after steps are in successful operation.

3. It would be well, I believe, to take as a basis the existing system of Vernacular education in Bengal, which has worked well on the whole, and has been tested by experience, now it mainly needs development and expansion, with more decided efforts to work down the lower upper middle class to the masses.

The following are the chief features in the existing system to be adopted as a basis.

The existing system in Bengal and Behar:—

(a.) A Director-General in correspondence on one side with the Government of Bengal, and on the other with European Inspectors and Native sub-inspectors.

(b.) Twenty Normal Schools established in various parts of the country, in which natives receive an education qualifying them to convey superior Vernacular instruction, but almost exclusively to schools of the middle classes. The supply of these is only limited by the want of money to augment the number of Teachers under training and the opening of additional Vernacular Schools.

(c.) Model Schools supported by Government. These are an example to natives and the teachers of indigenous schools of an improved system of education.

(d.) Circle-aid Schools [illegible] spreading through the country, the Government [illegible] half the expense. These schools are not generally attended much by the agricultural classes.

(e.) Native Schools. These are the indigenous schools of the country, and [illegible] meaning of the ancient village municipal system, the village having the joint or landed school-masters the same as it has its barber or smith. There are more than 50,000 of these schools in Bengal and Behar; the Teachers are very [illegible] and can only give instruction in the rudiments, elements of reading, writing, and arithmetic; they possess however, the cheapest and readiest basis for [illegible] the village population. Successful efforts are now [illegible] by Government and the Christian Vernacular Education Society to improve the humble class of schools, by forming them into what are called Circle Schools. A circle is generally composed of three schools, situated a few miles distant from each other; the Master in Chief of each school receives a monthly bonus from Government or private persons, varying according to the number and proficiency of his pupils; he also receives from time to time a monthly stipend, he delivers instructions and superintends by a superior Teacher, who devotes one days to each school in succession. I myself have for years worked schools on this plan, they are now extended by 90 Boys, and I believe this scheme is the most practical one at the present time for reaching the masses of Bengal without superseding indigenous schools.

Vernacular Schools, [illegible] of Lower middle classes, a comprehensive expression for most people of Vernacular Schools, in order to give some encouragement to the people and enable the successful scholars to pursue higher courses of study, [illegible] schools. There are also Vernacular scholarships, [illegible] Government Rupees annually. A class scholarship [illegible] of Rupees [illegible] per [illegible] number, is [illegible] to encourage the boys of the Vernacular schools; [illegible] scholarship of Rupees [illegible] monthly from [illegible] for by those who intend to pursue [illegible] English schools.

4. With the exception of the Circle schools, the [illegible] system does not tap the masses, it is [illegible] wholly by boys of the middle classes in its elements, but [illegible] tendency to send down and expand [illegible] towards the millions, it embraces but a fraction of [illegible] population, leaving the [illegible]

The system good for [illegible] rural and working classes [illegible] certain class should now [illegible] than is generally answer, [illegible] be attended [illegible] done much good [illegible] relation between, general [illegible] and the time seems now to have arrived when it [illegible] be extended to the masses, the 35,000,000 of Bengal whom two per cent. cannot read intelligently [illegible] more than while in Finance, Presidt. and every [illegible] tedious efforts are being made for present [illegible] Bengal will lag in this respect behind [illegible] and [illegible] ally as the removal of popular ignorance is one of the chief means of bettering that system of [illegible] which is so mighty an obstacle to [illegible] the moral and social amelioration of the million of Bengal.

5. The expansions and changes I would propose [illegible] existing system are as following:—

(a.) The Grant-in-aid Rule [illegible] Circle Schools only [illegible] Condition instead of one-half [illegible] sinary to any value towards [illegible] to pay [illegible] the expenses of a school; repeatedly have they said [illegible] we are not merchants or pundits, what is the [illegible] of teaching History and Geography [illegible] education has long been compulsory [illegible] in Bengal [illegible] cannot be uncivil who are neither read nor write [illegible] to Christian England the question of compulsory education is looming in the distance, why should we [illegible] of cases where even the educated natives are [illegible] Old proverbs [illegible] people will pay for knowledge of what they do not [illegible] on the pecuniary value.

(b.) A Director of Vernacular Education to be [illegible] Bengal, should have the sole and [illegible] ment of Vernacular education, and should [illegible] proud direct with the Bengal Government [illegible] other questions. I proposed the [illegible] Bengal Government and subsequent [illegible] observation have only confirmed my views.

My [illegible] then, as now, had no [illegible] filling the office, but simply [illegible] principal principle of the [illegible] that the Director should have [illegible] the office of that of the inspector [illegible] are so different that no man [illegible] directions can do justice to both [illegible] these duties, variety of new and [illegible] very different in their bearings [illegible] Bengal [illegible] should be [illegible] from [illegible] clerks.

If, therefore, great stress is to be laid on the [illegible] Director, who undivided attention could be [illegible] to Vernacular questions which embrace the [illegible] sub-divisions:—

(a.) The education of boys and working classes [illegible] wider in respect of population than that of [illegible] and Scotland united.

(b.) Female education now [illegible] in Bengal, though the Punjab has good [illegible] in this branch.

(c.) Vernacular Education which is utterly neglected. In my previous letter I have referred to the numerous social and political consequences connected with it.

(d.) The Oriental Colleges. The Sanskrit College of Calcutta has been exceedingly useful in promoting the development of Vernacular Literature, and supplying a well trained class of Pundits for teaching the Vernacular and making translations. Are Philological Institutions, Oriental Colleges are of primary importance in the preservation of the Indian Vernaculars. The Calcutta and Hooghly Madrassas have long required Principals of very high acquirements with Arabic and Persian, who could devote their entire time to the duties of those colleges, and exercise an useful influence among the Mahomedans.

(e.) Agricultural Institution. This is of primary importance for rural schools, as education in Ireland and Prussia have shown. In Bengal, the practical measures to be adopted are the teaching in Normal Schools, with elementary class books in village schools. I myself published a book on this subject which proved very useful for the pupils of my village schools. A Chair of Agricultural Chemistry in the Calcutta University would be important, as Bengal as well as a Minister of Agriculture in connection with the Supreme Government.

(f.) Vernacular Literature, in correspondence with Calcutta School Book Society in relation to Vernacular School-books.

Vernacular Schools and District Libraries. The circulation of useful Vernacular books, by book-hawkers, and the compilation of an Annual Report on Vernacular literature in relation to its subsidies, the quality, number, and circulation of books.

6. The above-mentioned six subjects are closely connected with one another, and all bear on the interests of Vernacular education. The Vernacular Director having the work thus carried by a staff of subordinate Agents, would have ample occupation for his department without distracting his attention by problems relating to the higher education of the upper ten thousand.

7. There is another subject that belongs also to the Vernacular Department referred to in the Educational Despatch of the Secretary of State for India in 1854. It is this:

"That even in the lower Government situations a man who can read and write be preferred before one who cannot, the latter being equally eligible in other respects."

This suggestion has remained practically a dead letter in Bengal, but it deserves the serious attention of the authorities as one of the cheapest and most effectual means of giving a powerful incentive to the people for learning to read and write. Certainly it might at once be carried into the Karkuns.

8. To make this test effective, there should be permanent examinations in all the Vernacular Districts, conducted by the Vernacular Director, and presided over by the Commissioner of the Division, to attach weight to it. Certificates should be given to those who pass the examination, and after a given period no one should be eligible for any office under Government unprovided with this certificate. Thus these examinations conducted publicly would be a considerable impetus to education.

9. On the other hand, the Inland Director of Public Instruction has assigned some duties to the Additional Director and Correspondence Department relating to Vernacular education, namely:—

(a.) The Calcutta University increasing every year in numbers.

(c.) The Zillah Schools.

(e.) The Grant-in-aid system as applied to numerous Vernacular Schools, Missionary and Native.

(f.) He has practically to do all the secretarial work referred to him from the Inspectors and the various Departments.

(g.) He corresponds directly with Government.

(h.) He selects suitable persons for the colleges and head schools, which requires considerable care and investigation on his part.

The numerous details that arise out of the above subjects, insuperable to a Director, however earnest and diligent, leave little leisure to give due consideration to the numerous, difficult and important questions connected with Vernacular education.

For carrying out the proposed extension of Vernacular education, a grant of two lacs of rupees is required from Imperial funds as the first instalment. I have stated in my previous letter why the Bengal Peasant has special claims on the Imperial Government. It was that Government which, with ignorance and with good intentions, handed him over in 1793 to the zemindar system, which has reduced him to a serf, a zyeemaun, and has made the existence of a class of men who, with few exceptions, are practically opposed to his social elevation, as well as to his education. After a lapse of a century's residence in Bengal, I have known but rare cases where either Zemindars or educated Natives would do anything to raise the Bengal ryot to the status of a man and a brother. The Supreme Government therefore as the parens patriæ (the protector of the poor and helpless) ought not to forsake its functions in this case. The Peasant has been starved in body so far, to remain starved in soul also?

10. To meet the further expenses that must be incurred in developing this scheme, besides grants from the Imperial Revenues there may be available from local sources the following:—

(a.) An educational cess. This has succeeded only in Bombay and the North-West Provinces, but Bengal is under the blight of the zemindaree settlement. Zemindars, in no case, with the majority of educated Natives, are the indifference to the people to concur in taxing themselves for the benefit of the millions, while the people themselves complain so bitterly of the Chowkidaree Tax, and the exaction it leads to, that they dread extremely any new taxation; besides, they see as little advantage in being taxed for schools as the ignorant masses would to volunteer paying a direct tax for Pensioners and Judges.

(b.) Raising the fees of the pupils that attend Anglo-Vernacular Schools and Colleges, and diminishing the grants. So as to gradually diminish the grant for English education would be a considerable national avail-able for the people at large, while it would place the rich pupils in situations to obtain the fees opposite to the Admission of English schools. The remarkable success of the Calcutta University illustrates the money-value to Natives of an English education, which, at the prices, while Vernacular education is under the existing system, has but little. When English education was commenced in Bengal, in Bengali, Arabic and Persian, the English Education was to prepare for Government. Thirty years have elapsed since these promises were held out. Mr. Adams was appointed by Lord W. Bentinck as Commissioner to enquire on Vernacular education in Bengal. His reports were ably and soundly conceived and laid. These reports have been so long lying out of print and contain models with information bearing on the present question. Yet had the Bengal Government accepted the education from its inception, the most useful results of them, but my health soon after forced me to England. On my return I saw there was not sufficient interest taken by the Authorities on the subject of Vernacular education in India to enter on the work.

But now that the question of the extension of Vernacular education has been re-opened, I believe a selection from those reports would be of use; and if my services in editing them be required, I would gladly undertake it for the Government of India. They might be discussed, and information given regarding the suspension of Vernacular education in other Presidencies, and might be printed in the Selections of the Government of India.

From H. L. Harrison, Esq., Junior Secretary to the Government of Bengal, to the Secretary to the Government of the North-Western Provinces.—(No. 5068, dated the 10th December 1867.)

I am directed to annex an extract* from a letter from the Government of India in the Home Department on the subject of raising funds for vernacular education in Bengal, and to request that, with the permission of the Hon'ble the Lieutenant-Governor of the North-Western Provinces, you will be so good as to furnish this Government with the more essential portion of the correspondence connected with the transaction referred to—especially whatever will shew how the agreement on the part of the proprietors was brought about, in what manner it has been made permanently binding on them, and how the cess is realized from those (of whom it is presumed there must be some) who dissented from the arrangement.

* Paragraph 13 of letter No. 5876, dated 28th October 1867.

"In the permanently-settled districts of the Benares Division of the North-Western Provinces (between which and the permanently-settled districts of the Lower Provinces the most complete analogy exists), the proprietors of the soil have voluntarily agreed to the imposition of an educational cess on condition that Government should give an equal amount."

2. The Lieutenant-Governor will also be glad to be informed whether "the proprietors of the soil" spoken of are for the most part considerable landowners, such as are commonly found in the Lower Provinces, or whether the designation includes any large number of the cultivating occupants of the soil.

From E. Robertson, Esq., Junior Secretary to the Government of the North-Western Provinces, to the Secretary to the Government of Bengal.—(No. 64, dated Allahabad, the 6th January 1868.)

I am directed to acknowledge the receipt of the letter from your Office No. 5068, dated the 10th ultimo, in which the Government of Bengal request to be furnished with a copy of the correspondence regarding the imposition of an educational cess in the permanently-settled Districts of the Benares Division, and especially with information on certain points noted.

2. In reply I am desired to state, for the information of the Hon'ble the Lieutenant-Governor, that the Government is unable to furnish a copy of the correspondence asked for, partly because a portion of it was lost in the mutinies, but chiefly because it was in a great measure demi-official, and not placed upon record.

3. I am at the same to give the following explanation on the particular points noted in your letter:—

I.—The consent of the proprietors was obtained at the solicitation, and by the personal influence especially of the Commissioner, Mr. H. C. Tucker, and also of the District and Educational Officers.

II.—An engagement binding themselves and their heirs to pay the cess was taken from the landholders.

III.—The cess is not realized from those who refused to enter into engagements.

IV.—The expression "proprietors" includes some large landowners, but also many brotherhoods of cultivating proprietors and members of such brotherhoods.

From E. C. Bayley, Esq., Secretary to the Government of India, Home Department, to the Secretary to the Government of Bengal.—(No. 237, dated Fort William, the 25th April 1868.)

In continuation of my letter No. 5876, dated 28th October last, I am directed to request the attention of His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor to the urgent necessity which, in the opinion of the Governor General in Council, now exists for providing from local sources the means of extending elementary education in Bengal, and for the construction and maintenance of roads and other works of public utility.

2. While there is no Province in India which can bear comparison with Bengal in respect of the progress made in the higher branches of education by a considerable section of the upper classes of the community, the Governor General in Council has long observed with regret the almost total absence of proper means of provision for the elementary education of the agricultural classes which form the great mass of the population.

The contrast in this respect between Bengal and other Provinces is striking.—In Bengal, with a population that probably exceeds forty millions, the total number of pupils in the lower class Government and Aided Schools was, in 1866-67, only 39,104. In the North-Western Provinces, with a population under thirty millions, the number of pupils in Schools of a similar class was 126,364. In Bombay, with a population of sixteen millions, the number was 79,182. In the Punjab, with a population of fifteen millions, it was 62,85[illegible]. In the Central Provinces, with a population of eight-and-a-half millions, it was 22,600. Nor does there seem to be any probability that these proportions will hereafter become more favorable to Bengal, although the measures that have lately been taken for the encouragement of vernacular education by means of the system of training Masters in the so-called indigenous schools have been more or less successful. The means of elementary elementary instruction appear to be increasing with far greater rapidity in other Provinces. It is shewn by Mr. Howell's Note on the state of Education in India in 1866-67, that in Bombay the annual increase in the number of schools and of scholars is very remarkable. In the North-Western Provinces, in the Punjab, and in the Central Provinces, a vigorous progress is being made. In Oudh, where educational operations only commenced a few years ago, the Director of Public Instruction expects before very long to see "a school under a trained and fairly paid Teacher, within two and a half miles of every child in the Province."

3. The Governor General in Council feels that would not be right to evade any longer the responsibility, which properly falls upon the Government, of providing that the means of obtaining at least an elementary education shall be made accessible to the people of Bengal. He feels that this responsibility must be accepted in this, as in other Provinces, not only as one of the highest duties which we owe to the country, but because among the sources of difficulty in our administration, and of possible danger to the stability of our Government, there are few so serious as the ignorance of the people.

4. In Bengal, at least, the Government cannot be charged with having done too little for the encouragement of the higher branches of education. The expenditure, in 1866-67, on Government and Aided Schools, mostly of a superior class, was nearly £250,000, of which more than £150,000 was contributed by the State. The Government is entitled to say, quoting the words of the Home Government in the well-known Despatch of 1854, that it has done "as much as a Government can do to place the benefits of education plainly and practically before the higher classes" of Bengal. It may, indeed, be a question whether the Government has not done too much. For, as the Secretary of State wrote in 1864, the true principle by which the expenditure of the Government upon education ought to be governed is this—"That, so far as possible, the resources of the State should be applied as to assist those who cannot be expected to help themselves, and that the richer classes of the people should gradually be induced to provide for their own education."

However this may be, whether we have done, in this respect, more than was necessary or not, the duty that remains to be performed is clear, as was described as follows in the Despatch of 1854 which has been quoted above:—"Our attention should now be directed to a consideration, if possible, still more important, and one which has been hitherto, we are bound to admit, too much neglected, namely, how useful and practical knowledge, suited to every station in life, may be best conveyed to the great mass of the people who are utterly incapable of obtaining any education worthy of the name by their own unaided efforts."

5. While the Governor General in Council is not content to bear any longer the reproach that almost nothing has been done for the education of the people of Bengal, it is altogether out of the question that the Government can provide the funds without which the removal of that reproach is impossible. The Government of India has given ample proof of its desire to do everything in its power for the encouragement of education. Fourteen years ago, as Mr. Howell has said in his valuable Note, there were "no Universities in India, and no Educational Departments; there were only fourteen Government Colleges for general education; elementary Vernacular education had only been attempted with any degree of success in the North-West Provinces and Bombay; there were no Grant-in-aid Rules; * * * there were no Normal Schools; female education had not been attempted by the State at all, and the total annual grant for education in all India was £98,721." At that time there were not 40,000 pupils in all the Government Colleges and Schools in India. At the present time, the total number of pupils in Government and in Aided Schools is probably 630,000, and the estimate of the expenditure upon Education, Science, and Art amounts, for the current year, to £904,000.

6. It is evident that if the Imperial expenditure on education be allowed to go on increasing much longer at the present rate, the result must be a serious aggravation of the financial difficulties of the Government. The legitimate and unavoidable demands for the encouragement of education will be, at all times, very heavy; and it will be hard enough to meet them without incurring expenditure which need not fall upon the State. "As a matter of fact," as it was stated in my letter of the 28th October last, "the State has "never undertaken to provide funds for the "education of the mass of the people" in any part of India, nor is it prepared to undertake to do so in Bengal. It is only by acting on a totally different principle that so much has been accomplished in other Provinces. The Governor General in Council thinks that it is now desirable to declare distinctly that this is a subject which, in future, the Government will not consent even to discuss. While the Governor General in Council will always be ready to view, in the most liberal spirit, all questions that may arise, and to afford every help that the Government can reasonably be expected to give, he will decline, in future, to listen to any proposition, the effect of which would be to throw upon the State the main burden of the cost of educating the people of Bengal. The only way in which that cost can be met is, unless some voluntary arrangement be possible, by means of local taxation, specially imposed for the purpose.

7. The Home Government, in the Despatch of 1859, pointed to "the levy of a compulsory rate "as the only really effective step to be taken." "The appropriation," it was stated, of a fixed "proportion of the annual value of the land to "the purpose of providing such means of education for the population immediately connected "with the land seems, per se, unobjectionable; "and the application of a percentage for the construction and maintenance of roads appears to "offer a suitable precedent for such an impost."

The Despatch then referred, in terms which are not altogether applicable at the present time, to the manner in which this principle had been already acted on in the North-Western Provinces, and went on to say, with special reference to Bengal, that "it seems not improbable that the levy of such a rate under the direct authority of the Government would be acquiesced in with far more readiness and with less dislike than a nominally voluntary rate proposed by the local Officers."

8. This principle has been already carried out in Bombay, in the North-Western Provinces, in Oude, in the Central Provinces, and in the Punjab. Although the educational cess in those Provinces is imposed as a percentage on the Government demand, it is, as was stated in my letter of the 28th October last, "clearly taken from the pro-" prietors of the soil as a separate tax for special "local purposes." Not only can there be no reason why a similar tax should not be imposed for similar purposes in Bengal, but in the opinion of the Governor General in Council there is no part of India in which the proprietors of the land can be so justly expected to bear local burdens of this nature.

9. The Governor General in Council is aware that it has been sometimes asserted that the imposition of such a tax would be an infringement of the conditions under which the permanent settlement of the land was made. He does not think, and he believes that His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor will concur in this opinion, that there is any necessity for argument to shew the futility of such assertions. Similar objections were made to the imposition of the Income Tax, and they are as groundless in the one case as in the other. It must, however, be admitted that if an educational cess were levied in Bengal as a percentage on the Government demand, it would, in the eyes of those who were not well acquainted with the true state of the case, have very much the appearance of an enhancement of the assessment imposed upon the land at the time of the permanent settlement. It is desirable, if possible, that the tax should be levied in such a manner as to give no occasion for any misconception of this kind.

10. The Governor General in Council believes also that there are other and more important reasons which would probably render it unadvisable to assess the tax as a percentage on the Government demand. It is well known that in Bengal the amount of the Government revenue has ceased to be any index whatever to the actual annual value of estates. This being the case, the amount of the revenue cannot form an equitable basis for new taxation. This difference between Bengal and provinces where a permanent settlement of the revenue has not been made was fully recognized in the Income Tax Act, and it appears equally right to recognize it in the present instance.

11. Almost the same reasons which have led the Governor General in Council to consider it necessary to provide for elementary education in Bengal by means of taxation specially imposed for the purpose have satisfied His Excellency that similar measures are necessary to provide for the construction of roads and other public works of local utility, the cost of which in other provinces falls not upon Imperial, but on Local Funds. In the North-Western Provinces, in the Punjab, and in Oude, the proprietors of land pay on this account a tax amounting to one per cent. on the Government demand. They pay the same in the permanently-settled districts of the Benares Division. In the Central Provinces they pay two per cent. In Madras the rate may be as much as 3½ per cent. In Bombay, assuming that one-half of the cess lately imposed is devoted to roads, the proprietors of land pay at the rate of 3½ per cent. In Bengal they pay nothing, although there is no part of India in which the means of the landholders are so large, in which the construction of roads and other works of local improvement is more urgently required, or in which such works have hitherto made so li[illegible] progress.

12. It was pointed out in my letter of [illegible] 28th October last, that in the permanently-sett[illegible] districts of the Benares Division of the Nor[illegible] Western Provinces, between which and the p[illegible]manently-settled districts of the Lower Provin[illegible] the most complete analogy exists, the proprie[illegible] of the soil had voluntarily agreed to the imp[illegible]tion of an educational cess on condition that [illegible] Government should give an equal amount; it [illegible] added that the Governor General in Co[illegible] would be glad if the Zemindars of Bengal c[illegible] be similarly brought to tax themselves for Ve[illegible]cular education, and that in such case, wi[illegible] pledging the Government to any specific c[illegible]tion, His Excellency would willingly give [illegible] aid as the finances of the Empire could, from [illegible] to time, fairly afford. Those remarks are eq[illegible] applicable to the question of local taxation fo[illegible] construction and maintenance of roads.

13. If, however, in either on both of [illegible] cases, it should be found impracticable to pro[illegible] by any such voluntary arrangement, the mea[illegible] meeting the necessary expenditure, the Gov[illegible] General in Council is decidedly of opinion [illegible] recourse should be had to legislation, and t[illegible] special tax should be imposed for these pur[illegible] upon the landholders of Bengal. Possibly, [illegible] Honor the Lieutenant-Governor may not [illegible] with all the reasons which have led the Gov[illegible] General in Council to this conclusion, but [illegible] Excellency hopes that the conclusion itself w[illegible] accepted by His Honor as proper and neces[illegible] and that His Honor will take measures for spe[illegible] carrying it into effect.

14. With regard to the details of the meas[illegible] that will be required, it is not necessary t[illegible] much should now be said by the Governor Gene[illegible] in Council. Such details can be far better con[illegible]sidered by the Local Government by which the money will be raised, and by which it will b[illegible] expended. There is only one remark on this par[illegible] of the subject which the Governor General in Council thinks it necessary now to make. The reasons have been stated which appear to render it undesirable that the proposed tax should be imposed as a percentage on the Government Land Revenue. Taking into consideration the great urgency of th[illegible] objects in view, and the wealth of the classes [illegible] whom the tax will fall, the Governor General i[illegible] Council is of opinion that the amount levied ough[illegible] not to be less than two per cent. on the net asse[illegible] or gross rental, of the land. This is the rate [illegible] which cesses are imposed, for the same purpo[illegible] in the Central Provinces; and, as was stated [illegible] my letter of the 28th October last, it appears [illegible] the Governor General in Council that at least [illegible] heavy a tax may fairly be imposed in Bengal.

15. The Governor General in Council no[illegible] leaves this subject in the hands of the Lieutenant[illegible] Governor, and he feels complete confidence tha[illegible] His Honor will carry out the measures whic[illegible] have been indicated in the manner which thei[illegible] great importance demands.

Junior Secy. to the Govt. of Bengal.

HERBERT G. BAINBRIDGE, ESQ., Chief Superinten- t, Assam Company, to the Secretary to the Govern- t of Bengal.—(dated Naznah, December 9th, 1867.)

AVE the honor to request that you will lay nclosed copy of a letter from myself to the ant Engineer of Seebsaugor before his the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal. The ce of Department Public Works, now too common, of harbouring and employ- engali coolies in this district, who have ed from their legitimate employers, is most and improper, coupled as it is with un- y high offer of wages which put, so to say, a um upon desertion, I have for sometime ed in this respect, but am only now able to the matter home. I have not brought the into court, because I should be the cause doing, of bringing punishment upon some e subordinate only, who is not the real der, and I feel sure that the matter has only e laid before the Lieutenant-Governor to re planters against any continuance of this tice for the future.

From HERBERT G. BAINBRIDGE, ESQ., Chief Superinten- dent, Assam Company, to C. H. RINGWOOD, ESQ., Assistant Engineer, Seebsaugor.—(No. 61, dated Naznah, the 5th December 1867.)

I HAVE the honor to acknowledge the receipt of your No. 391 of 5th instant, and to thank you for the information given therein. I will let you know to what factory the three coolies belong in a few days. While thanking you for your offers to assist me in recovering coolies, I would beg to draw your attention to the present practice in the Public Works Department of employing Bengali coolies who do not produce certificates of discharge. These coolies, we import at great cost to ourselves, and if any Department or individual gives employment to run-aways, offering them unusually high wages, it is encouraging them to desert their legitimate employers. Probably you are ignorant of this practice to the extent to which it prevails, but the contractors and Mohurirs, &c., working in connection with your department, make a regular practice of enticing away my coolies.

On the 6th instant, I recovered under warrants eleven coolies belonging to Hatty Pootty Factory from Golaghat, who were working at the time of arrest on the roads under your charge. I have been in search of these men for a long time, and they are the same regarding whom Mr. Phillips wrote to you. They were seen at work on the Seebsaugor roads before he wrote, and search was made for them as you know, and we then found they had been transferred to Golaghat, where we have found them; but for the assistance of a resident in Golaghat I could not have recovered these people. They all profess to have been received into employ upon Rupees 7 wages, and therefore they consider it a hardship to be brought back, and will no doubt run away again and do their best to take others with them.

I am quite aware that circumstances connected with Government work as carried on in Assam render it necessary to offer higher wages than the current rates in the province for their work; but it is a most unfair practice in my opinion, and Government should do as we are compelled to do, viz., import the labor they cannot get in the province at the usual rates. It is, however, a cruel injustice to planters that any Government Department should not only afford shelter to run-away coolies imported at great expense by other people, but should hold out the temptation of such wages as Rupees 7 to coolies to desert. If it be necessary for the Public Works Department to pay Rupees 7 wages, their Sircars should be ordered to refuse all Bengalee laborers who cannot produce a certificate of discharge. It is true that it is a punishable offence to employ them, but you are well aware that it is almost impossible for the legitimate employer to find out where the deserters are, and it is an unpleasant alternative to take the matter into Court and difficult to punish the real offender. I should be obliged if you would find out who gave employment to these coolies who are all under agreement, and would punish him yourself, as I have no wish to take the matter into Court, involving, as it may, the full penalty of Rupees 500 in each case. I may mention that numbers of Bengali coolies now come here for employment, but I never allow a single one to be employed who cannot produce a certificate of discharge; and if all employers of laborers would do the same, desertion must soon cease.

Copy forwarded for the information and guidance of the Officiating Superintending Engineer, Assam Circle.

2. Strict orders should be issued to the Executive Engineers in Assam in respect to the employment of run-away coolies, and the Executive Engineer, Upper Assam Division, should be ordered to make a searching enquiry in respect to the charge of Mr. Bainbridge, and to report who are the parties blameable in the matter.

By Order of the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal,

Fort William,
The 24th January 1868.

From Colonel S. H. J. Davies, Superintending Engineer, Assam Circle, to the Officiating Chief Engineer of Bengal,—(No. 24, dated Gowhatty, the 7th April 1868.)

No. 385 of 24th January 1868, from the Secretary to the Government of Bengal, Public Works Department, with enclosures.

No. 2141 of 1st April 1868, from the Secretary to the Government of Bengal, Public Works Department, with enclosures.

I have the honor to acknowledge receipt of correspondence marginally noted, together with a reminder this day received, and to forward the Report therein called for. The Executive Engineer, it will be seen, has used his best endeavours in preventing his subordinates from giving grounds for the accusation made against the department, which in my opinion were not warranted.

2. The delay in furnishing the report shewn to have arisen mainly through the inattention of Mr. Assistant Engineer Ringwood.

From Lieutenant-Colonel F. J. Davies, Executive Engineer, Upper Assam Division, to the Superintending Engineer, Assam Circle,—(No. 1100, dated Debrooghur, the 26th March 1868.)

Bengal Public Works letter No. 385 of 24th January 1868, with enclosures.

I have the honor to acknowledge the receipt of your memorandum No. 2258, dated 8th February 1868, with enclosures as per margin, having reference to a charge brought against the Department Public Works, by Mr. H. Bainbridge, of harbouring and employing Bengali coolies who have deserted from tea plantations.

2. On receipt of your memorandum under reply, I instructed the subordinates in charge of the Seebsagur and Golaghat Sub-Divisions in my memorandum Nos. 953 and 957, dated 11th and 15th February, respectively, to send in a return of all Bengali coolies engaged during 1867-68, in accordance with a form furnished.

3. The subordinates in charge of these Sub-Divisions have been frequently instructed both by letter and verbally, as shewn in letters as per margin attached, not to engage Bengali coolies unless they are furnished with discharge certificates from their former employers.

4. The reply of Assistant Engineer, Mr. C. H. Ringwood, in charge of Seebsagar Sub-Division, attached in original, received only three days ago, is not so satisfactory as I could wish; he a[illegible] to have entertained several men who had n[illegible] charge certificates, and without satisfying [illegible] self at once by communicating with their [illegible] employers that they had served their ti[illegible] received their discharge. At the same t[illegible] have received no complaints from any plan[illegible] any of their coolies having been harbou[illegible] this Sub-Division; the complaint referred i[illegible] Resolution by Bengal Government, dated [illegible] January last, of the Secretary, Assam Con[illegible] in letter dated 20th August 1864, was [illegible] not established when referred to the Deputy [illegible] missioner, Seebsagur, and myself, for en[illegible] but the Superintendent, Mr. Smith, stated [illegible] the Overseer in charge of the Sub-Division, [illegible] from harbouring coolies, had given him ever[illegible] lity for recovering run-aways.

5. The return from the Golaghat Sub[illegible] sion also sent in original is more satisf[illegible] One or two complaints have however r[illegible] me regarding this Sub-Division, but o[illegible] run-aways appear to have been harbour[illegible] coolie sirdars on the road without t[illegible] ledge of the Overseer. Whenever an[illegible] the department have been convicted o[illegible] ing run-aways, they have been invariabl[illegible] by fine or dismissal, and every effort has [illegible] to put a stop to the practice. The Overse[illegible] in original, on the subject of the elev[illegible] referred to in Mr. H. Bainbridge's lette[illegible] Ringwood, is attached; the remarks at [illegible] his letter shew how difficult it is to prever[illegible] and especially women being secreted in [illegible] lines on the road, and we get the credi[illegible] it systematically, though the real fact[illegible] Government suffers more in this respec[illegible] Planters. Our coolies work in station[illegible] public roads, and were we to harbour [illegible] coollies they could not long escape de[illegible] the locale of the generality of planters ga[illegible] a sealed book to us, so that if our coolies [illegible] (and they do sometimes, notwithstandi[illegible] alleged superior pay,) we seldom recover th[illegible]

6. The high rate of wages given to s[illegible] the imported coolies in the department has [illegible] thus. The first batch of coolies imported [illegible] division in 1862, were entitled to receive [illegible] the usual rate of 5-4 and 3 for men, wome[illegible] children; and rice at the rate of one per maund [illegible] was found to complicate the accounts, and h[illegible] to keep up and serve out rice led to a good [illegible] of roguery; so my predecessor commuted the [illegible] at a fixed rate to the higher rates of 7-6 an[illegible] the coolies to furnish themselves with rice. [illegible] the agreement of these coolies expired, an[illegible] some time afterwards the price of rice was so [illegible] that the same rate of pay was given to [illegible] re-engaged, the last batch imported in 18[illegible] only receive 6-5 and 4 respectively and [illegible] the bazar rate.

From C. H. Ringwood, Esq., Assistant Engineer [illegible] saugor, to the Executive Engineer, Upper Assam [illegible] sion, Debrooghur,—(No. 510, dated Seebsaug[illegible] 19th March 1868.)

I have the honor to forward herewith the [illegible] criptive Roll of the Bengalli coolies that [illegible] been employed in the Seebsaugur Sub-Div[illegible] since the commencement of the year, and, [illegible] reference to remarks contained in Mr. Bainbri[illegible] letter, beg to state that, so far from conce[illegible]

away coolies in the lines in my Sub-Division, ve always given planters every facility for ering such and even make it my business to o the trouble of apprising them of the fact never it comes to my notice that there are away coolies working in the Government

It seems to me that planters have only them selves to blame if they are unable to recover run-away coolies from Government; nothing can be simpler than to send a trustworthy man that knows the coolie by appearance with a letter to the officer in whose district it is supposed they are concealing themselves.

This course is, however, seldom adopted.

From Overseer E. R. McCARTHY, D. P. W., in charge of Gholaghat Sub-Division, to MAJOR F. J. DAVIS, Executive Engineer, Upper Assam Division,—(No. 19, dated Gholaghat, the 6th March 1868.)

IN reply to your memorandum 957, covering Superintending Engineer's 2,258 and Secretary to Government, Bengal, No. 220, with a copy of a letter addressed by Mr. Bainbridge to Mr. C. H. Ringwood concerning some coolies who had deserted from his employ, I have the honor to offer the following explanation:—

The 11 coolies alluded to by Mr. Bainbridge as having been transferred from the Seebsaugor Sub-Division were never transferred, they came down as I have since learned from Nazarah or some place near it, and were kept for a fews days, by the coolie Sirdar and Mohurir at Borsoicotta, but were given up at once when applied for, both coolie Sirdar and Mohurir have been dismissed, as they have been repeatedly warned by verbal order and perwanah to entertain no cooly on the road, and if any come for employment, not to harbour them in the lines, but let them go in, if they wish to do so, to the Station, where I can see for myself whether they have got certificates or not.

It is not easy to keep detachments of coolies scattered along 30 or 40 miles of road strictly to rule, as they are necessarily a great part of the time under the supervision of sirdars, &c., while the case is quite different on Tea Estates, where the Assistant in charge can see his men mustered every day, and knows at once what men he has.

As I am on the lowest station in the division, more come this way than any other, as it is on the road home for them, and very often when they come so far they find that they have not sufficient means to go any farther, and try to earn some more pice, or in the plantations lower down, this I have taken the most rigorous steps to put a stop to as far as dismissal would do so, and it is now almost at an end. I say almost, because a large proportion of my coolies are single men, and eagerly embrace the opportunity of harbouring women, and this it is impossible for me to find out, as they take care to secrete them when I go near their location, but they are severely punished when detected.

The questions raised concerning high pay, &c. I leave in your hands.

I annex copies of my perwanahs to Mohurirs and others on this subject.

We have considerably modified the provisions respecting the assessment, imposition, and levy of taxes under this Act.

We have given power to invalidate certain unauthorized provisions for conservancy, and have inserted clauses to prevent difficulties arising from mere informalities.

We have made some verbal alterations, and recommend that the Bill as amended should pass.

I should have considered it a greater improvement if the provision for the conservancy of towns under Section 3 of the Bill had been entirely omitted, and if the duties of Town Committees referred to in the Bill had been limited to the making of assessments only.

DISTRICT MUNICIPAL IMPROVEMENT.

KOOMAR HARENDRA KRISHNA moved that the Bill "to amend the District Municipal Improvement Act" be passed.

The motion was agreed to, and the Bill passed.

POSSESSION OF CHURS AND ISLAND.

MR. THOMPSON moved that the Report of the Select Committee on the Bill "to amend the provisions of Act IX of 1847—an Act regarding the assessment of lands gained from the sea or from rivers by alluvion or dereliction within the Provinces of Bengal, Behar, and Orissa"—be taken into consideration in order to the settlement of the clauses of the Bill, and that the clauses be considered for settlement in the form recommended by the Select Committee. He said, with the exception of the 3rd Section in which a slight verbal alteration had been made, the first three clauses of the Bill remained as they were. The 4th Section had been added to give what the majority of the Select Committee considered was the right construction of Clause 3, Section IV, Regulation XI of 1825, which referred to churs or islands thrown up in navigable rivers or in the sea, the channel between which and the mainland was not fordable at any season of the year. The disposal of such islands by that Regulation was vested in the Government. The 4th Section of the present Bill proposed to enact that the subsequent junction of any such island so taken possession of by Government should not affect the right of Government. The Section provided that—

"Any island which may have been taken possession of by the local Revenue authorities on behalf of the Government at a time when the channel between such island and the shore is not fordable, shall not be deemed to have become an accession to the property of any person by reason of such channel becoming fordable after such island shall have been so taken possession of."

That depended on the fact of Government having taken possession of the land in the condition and character of an island separated by deep unfordable water. Once having done so, the land was, as the law expressed it, "at the disposal of the Government," and the Government was capable of dealing with it by gift or sale, or by making a settlement for the payment of revenue. Such a construction, it appeared, was in accordance with the policy and principles of the existing law as laid down in Regulation XI of 1825, and certain decisions of the High Court supported the same view. The Committee had, however, the misfortune to find that one of their number, who was the owner of adjoining property, or a part of a [illegible] where islands were frequently being thrown up, differed on that point. And he (Mr. Thompson) thought he correctly described the honorable member's views when he said, that the honorable member's view of the opinion that the Government might rightly exercise the power of at once taking possession of churs and islands thrown up in rivers or in the sea; but whenever by gradual accretions, such islands were joined to the mainland, they should be surrendered to the nearest adjacent proprietor. The majority of the Committee were opposed to that view, and were of opinion that such islands should not be accorded by right to the zemindar. It should be (Mr. Thompson) was now in a position to speak on behalf of the Government, he might safely say that Government was in no way disposed to recognize this possession of islands thrown up in the rivers, as it had rather been to dispose of such property; and in the case of islands, described in this Bill, the Revenue and other courts should always, in practice, recognize the claim of the nearest proprietor to a prior right to the purchase of the same or to a [illegible] lease of the lands.

The Council then spent a good deal of correspondence had taken on the subject of the Bill in the press, and he had had interviews also with several gentlemen on the subject; there was also a memorial from the British Indian Association which referred to this Bill. In the discussions which appeared in the public papers, objections were raised chiefly to the rules laid down in Act IX of 1847 for the assessment of alluvial accretions to zemindaries. But he (Mr. Thompson) thought that the adoption or rejection of the present measure would in no way concern that question, and excluding the general principle under which Section 4 of 1847 proceeded was not one which the Council was now called on to express. It was too large and important a question to be entertained on this occasion.

There had been another objection introduced by the Council of giving power to the Collector to [illegible] any chur or island which might subsequently be connected to the mainland, and doubting that such rights should be considered [illegible] Such an opinion was introduced in the [illegible] of the members of the occasion when the Bill was referred to Council, and was introduced in opposition to the [illegible] and the [illegible] under them in estate being deprived of its river frontage.

The Bill was then read and passed.

Sections 1, 2, and 3 were passed as they stood.

Section 4 having been read—

Baboo Ramanath Tagore said, he was strongly opposed to this Section. It was, he thought, a repeal of the principle of Clause 3, Section 4 of Regulation XI of 1825. That clause declared, that [illegible] should be drawn upon a large [illegible] (the bed of which was not the property of an individual) or in the sea, and the channel of the river cross between such island and the shore might not be fordable, it should, according to established usage, be at the disposal of Government. But if the channel between such island and the shore was fordable at any season of the year, it should be considered an accession to the land or estate of the person whose estate might be most contiguous to it. But by the sub Section of the present Bill, the effect of that proviso would be completely destroyed. He did not know the object of Government in bringing forward this Section. Did they wish to become proprietors of land? He believed not. All that the Government wanted was their revenue. Under the existing laws, both of 1817 and 1825, ample provision was made as to the power of Government in assessing newly formed lands, whether islands or accretions to the mainlands. Why, then, did we introduce this section, and destroy in a manner, the good effect of Clause 3, Section 4 of Regulation XI of 1825? He (Baboo Ramanath Tagore) could not see what the object was. If this section was expunged from the bill, it would not give Government no [illegible] income. Under the Regulation of 1825 Government could take possession of an estate such as that described in that enactment. But the moment the channel between the island and the mainland became fordable, the Government would then be surrender possession to the proprietor of the nearest estate, and the Government would only have the power of making a new assessment. It was all very well for private individuals to fight and secure as much as they could; but, so far as the Government was concerned, the principle to be observed was different. He therefore thought that this Section, by which the Government sought to deprive the zemindar of a right which he had enjoyed since the permanent settlement, should be omitted, and he would move accordingly that Section 4 should be expunged from the bill.

Baboo Prem Chand Mittra begged to bring to the notice of the Council that in Morley's Digest of Indian Cases, after quoting several cases, there was a note well worth the consideration of honorable members:—

"It may be added that in the common case of alluvion or percement by the action of a river or a sea, the Indian law and usage accords with those of England and with the Civil law. When a stream by gradual accession [illegible] property of him to whose side the reverse of the river has been thrown. [illegible] by the gradual encroachment of a river or sea, without resistance to the owner whose property is thus destroyed."

The question before the Council was contrary to the spirit of this ruling, and it would therefore be desirable to consider whether it could be reviewed with due regard to private rights.

Sir Sutherland, while agreeing generally with many of the remarks just made, said, if he was not out of order at this stage in referring to it, he regretted that the Bill did not go further towards amending Act IX of 1847. When the Bill was introduced, he was asked to serve on the Select Committee, but as he was unacquainted with the subject, it never having come before him in the course of business, he feared he would not have been of service in assisting the Committee's deliberations, and he therefore declined serving. But since the Bill had been published in the newspapers, he had received several letters from Mofussil friends of large experience in zemindary matters, complaining very bitterly of the hardships inflicted by the operation of Act IX of 1847. The amendment did not appear to him to have touched the special hardships of Act IX. The assessment for increment to estates being levied at current rates, and the rebate for alluvion or any portion washed away being allowed only at the rate of the perpetual settlement, struck him as manifestly unequal in its bearing. Loud complaints, too, were made of the conduct of the Ameens and their people in the re-surveys.

He still hoped that Act IX of 1847 is a evil might be re-considered by Government, and that a broad and liberal measure might be introduced to set the vexed question at rest.

Mr. Hogg said, he did not perceive what advantage there was in introducing this question. It seemed to him that, by Clause 3, Section 4 of Regulation XI of 1825, if an island was thrown up, and the channel between it and the mainland was not fordable, the mere fact of the channel subsequently becoming fordable would not interfere with the Government right to the island. If that was a correct view of the existing law, the use of introducing the section which had given rise to the present discussion was not apparent.

Mr. Thompson explained that by Clause 3, Section 4 of Regulation XI of 1825 an island, while in the state of an island, separated from the mainland by deep unfordable water, might be taken possession of by Government. Before Act IX of 1847 was passed, the Government could at any time have taken possession, and then by Regulation XI of 1825, the island would be at the disposal of Government. But by Act IX of 1847, Government could not assert its title to the possession of an island which was thrown up in a river or in the sea, till after the approval of the revenue survey of a district, and no second survey of a district could be made till the expiration of at least ten years from the time of the previous survey. Act IX of 1847 had thus caused delay, during which, by the action of the river, what was originally an island, very often might be joined to the mainland, or be only separated from it by fordable water. Thus, when the Government went into Court, and claimed possession, the Court had held that the status of the island at the time the Government came into Court must be the guide by which the right of Government ought to be determined, and therefore though the land was originally of a character such as the Government could take possession of, the ten years' delay had prevented the Government's occupation, in consequence of the accretions, by means of which the island had subsequently become part of the neighbouring zemindary. Under those circumstances, he thought it must be admitted that the ten years' rule had caused great hardship to Government. If the Government at any time took possession of an island in the state and condition of an island, subsequent accretions to that island were the right of Government, in the same way as accretions to a zemindary were increments to that estate under the law. He would give an illustration. The hon'ble member who had dissented from the Majority of the Committee was a large proprietor of estates near large rivers. We would suppose that an island had arisen in the neighbourhood of his property, and that Government, after taking possession of it, had disposed of it by setting it to the hon'ble member. At the five or six years' occupation by him, the island became joined to the mainland, would not the hon'ble member consider it a hardship to have to surrender the island to the zemindar to whose estate the island was contiguous attached? And yet that was the course which he advocated where the Government was concerned!

Mr. Dampier said, in continuation of the remarks of the hon'ble mover of the Bill, he would observe that the substantive law on the subject was contained in Regulation XI of 1825. That was the law which declared the right as to accretions to the mainland, and as to islands. For certain reasons it was found that the constant evening of the law, frequent surveying and making enquiries, caused much harassment and annoyance. Therefore, for no other object than to stop that harassment and annoyance, and not to vary any object of transferring rights as declared by Regulation XI of 1825 from one party to another, Act IX of 1847 was passed. That Act provided that when a district had once surveyed and all rights settled, the settlement so made should remain in force, notwithstanding subsequent changes in the face of the country, until at least ten years had elapsed from the date of the survey. The sole object, he would repeat, being to avoid vexation and harassment, and not to transfer rights as declared by existing law. The object of Act IX of 1847 being this, it had happened, as was described by the hon'ble mover of the Bill, that the operation of the Act frequently entailed incidentally a transfer of rights; for, if an island chanced, the right to which, under Regulation XI of 1825, was vested in the Government, sprung up two years after a survey, and then in the interval, during which the Government was debarred by Act IX of 1847 from asserting its right (that was before the next survey), became no longer an island, but connected with the mainland—the right which the law of 1825 deliberately declared to belong to the Government, became transferred to the zemindar of the nearest estate. It had been found that as regards island, the law enacted in 1847, so far from preventing harassment and vexation to the people, had had the effect of causing disputes and affrays between parties neither of whom had any real right to the islands thrown up. This Bill had therefore been introduced on the ground that more harm than good was done to the public by delaying the assertion of the right of Government to such islands, and its object was simply to allow the Government to assert an indefeasible right as soon as it accrued. As the hon'ble member on his left (Mr. Hogg) had said, he (Mr. Dampier) fully believed that Clause 3, Section 4 of Regulation XI of 1825, would have all the effect of this section, even if this section were excluded from the present Bill. Before the question had been raised and discussed, he should be extremely sorry to have the section now struck out, because those who might be taken to deal with the help of this act, would perhaps think that the Council was not decidedly and positively of opinion that the right to an island vested in the Government. With reference to the remarks of the hon'ble member opposite (Mr. Sutherland), he might be sorry that the Government had considered with the attention they deserved the discussions that had lately appeared in the public prints, as well as the memorials which had been presented by the Landholders' Association and others, on the general subject of the evils of re-surveys during Act IX of 1847 after ten years. The subject was one of difficulty and required much enquiry, and the Government was not yet in a position to come to final conclusion on it. But the object of the present Bill was distinct from the general question raised in those discussions, and need not interfere with the future consideration of it.

Mr. Thomson said, the memorial of the British Indian Association which took objection to the present Bill, and was supported by the hon'ble member opposite (Baboo Ramanath Tagore), appeared to be a remarkable document. They admitted that the right to the possession of the land as an island was vested in Government, and they admitted that there was no provision by the law, as it now stood, as to who should occupy an island chur of the kind under notice, during the intermediate decennial period, and that in consequence frequent quarrels and disputes might and do arise. Still the whole gist of their memorial was that the ten years' rule was a good one, because it interposed a delay by which the status of the island was often changed, and thus by gradual accretions and extensions the island attached itself to the mainland, and thus became a part of the estate of the neighbouring zemindar. It was not denied that in its island character the chur was at the disposal of Government; and if the Government chose to sell it, and subsequently the island became attached to the mainland, would not the right be still with the purchaser? Here the Government would have no concern in the matter, and he (Mr. Thompson) should think that there would be no question that in such a case all the accretions to the chur, held as a separate estate on the Collectorate Towjee, would be accretions to the property of the purchaser.

The question about the advisability of altering the law arose many years ago, when Mr. Sconce, who had had large experience of the operation of the law as to churs, wrote:—

"Section 7 of Act IX of 1847 applies to churs or islands the property of Government, and appears to contine the assumption of possession of a new chur to the completion of a new survey. But the nature of things seems to run counter to this construction. A new island rising in a large channel, and approaching only by boat, is no man's land. By law, the title is with Government only; and it would seem that Government should secure both possession and title whenever the opportunity presents itself. To the best of my belief, this is the practice in the District of Bullooah,—a district which was, and probably is, most fertile in new churs; but, at any rate, the proper course to be followed in such cases, in Bullooah or elsewhere, may deserve consideration. Possibly, the law may permit that a Collector might watch the growth of a chur for ten or more years; might see one man and then another enter into occupation; but, nevertheless, that he who alone had legal title should keep aloof. In the case of a quarrel, it might even be the fact of a Magistrate to declare that neither of two claimants had a right of occupancy, and to offer the disputed land to Collector, who by law could not take possession. There seems to be something so unreasonable in this course of proceeding, that if dictated by the law, possibly the law should be changed."

That unreasonable proceeding was what we now wished to do away with, by repealing the ten years' rule. It had been alleged by the British Indian Association that the present rule was a fair one, because zemindars suffered so much from diluvion, and therefore zemindars should have the chance of the eventual proprietorship of such islands to make good their losses. He (Mr. Thompson) distinctly denied that the possibility of islands attaching themselves to estates, and thereby compensating for losses by diluvion, formed any part of the consideration upon which Act IX of 1847 was passed. It was a law based on considerations of compensation and balance. But the nature of this was, as an hon'ble member (Mr. Dampier) had explained, that whatever accrued to a zemindar's estate during the ten years, should remain in his possession free from public assessment; and for what was lost by diluvion during that period, there should be no diminution of Government revenue. The loss in one case should be balanced by the gain in the other; but the question of islands, and the manner of their occupation, was provided for in quite a distinct section, and was no element in the considerations of the compensating principle upon which the law under review was passed.

Apart from this, it seemed to him (Mr. Thompson) very remarkable that the British Indian Association, admitting and recognizing throughout their letter the principle referred to of compensation and balance, should conclude their suggestions as follows:—

"The Committee are humble of opinion that the present opportunity should be taken to remove the blot which disfigures the otherwise excellent law of 1847. It gives the zemindar no power to claim abatement in case of loss by diluvion within the decennial period."

The principle of gain and loss being admitted, it seemed rather peculiar that the Association should claim abatement of revenue in cases of loss, when no assessment was to be made for accretions during the same period.

Baboo Ramanath Tagore said, if he had rightly understood the hon'ble mover of the Bill, he thought that the Government had the power of selling an island after taking possession. He (Baboo Ramanath Tagore) denied that right. He said that the Government had no power to sell an island of which it might take possession under the existing law. Under Clause 3, Section 4 of Regulation XI of 1825, when an island was thrown up, Government might take possession, but the moment the channel between it and the mainland became fordable, the island must be given over to the zemindar near whose estate the island had formed. The law of 1825, as he understood it, contemplated that Government should act as trustees; they should take possession, and give it over to the zemindar. He did not contend that Government had not the power of assessing the land. He said that they had as much power of assessing an island as they had of making a permanent settlement. But he questioned the right of Government to take the island and lay out money on it, or sell it. The British Indian Association, therefore, said that Government having at present no power to take possession or interfere with any island until the next survey, the best course would be that Government should take possession as trustees. If after ten years the island attached itself to the mainland, it would go to the proprietor near whose estate the island had formed. Under the proposed scheme the proviso in Clause 3 of Section 4 of Regulation XI of 1825, would become entirely nugatory; the island would become the perpetual property of Government. That was his real reason for opposing the 4th Section of this Bill. He said, let the Government enjoy what the law gave them; but why give them a right which they never had?

Mr. Trevor said, a very few words would tend to show that the hon'ble member on his left (Baboo Ramanath Tagore) had quite misunderstood the meaning of Clause 3, Section 4 of Regulation XI of 1825. The clause must be read as one. It began with asserting that when a chur or island might be thrown up in a large navigable river, it became the property of Government. Then it went on to say: But if the channel between such island and the shore was fordable at any season of the year, it should belong to the person whose estate was most contiguous. The question was, to what time did that apply? For an answer to that, you must look to the opening words of the clause, "when the chur or island is thrown up," &c. If at that time the channel were fordable, the island should be considered an accession to the land of proprietor whose estate was most contiguous. But if at the time the island appeared there was an unfordable channel on both sides, then the first part of the clause solely applied, and the island was at the disposal of Government. The present Bill, in his (Mr. Trevor's) opinion, in no way contravened either the right of Government or of individuals, conferred by Clause 3, Section 4 of Regulation XI of 1825. It, on the contrary, appeared exactly in accordance with that law. He therefore hoped that the hon'ble member would agree to the passing of this Bill.

The Advocate General said, he wished to say one word in support of what had fallen from the hon'ble member who spoke last. The only doubt he had with regard to this section was as to its necessity. But after the strong opinions expressed, he thought it was in every way desirable that the section should stand to avoid possible doubts. But for such opinions, he should have thought nothing could possibly be clearer than that the Legislature in Clause 3, Section 4 of Regulation XI of 1825 referred, and referred only, to the status of the island at the time of its original formation—that the right of the Government depended on the consideration whether the channel was then fordable or not; it was not to remain contingent or fluctuating on any subsequent condition of the channel.

Ayes 4.	Noes 9.
Koomar Satyanund Ghosal.	Mr. Sutherland.
Baboo Peary Chand Mittra.	Mr. Alcock.
Baboo Ramanath Tagore.	Mr. Knowles.
Koomar Harendra Krishna.	Mr. Hogg.
	Mr. Thompson.
	Mr. Trevor.
	Mr. Dampier.
	The Advocate-General.
	The President.

The motion was therefore negatived, and the section was passed after a verbal amendment.

Section 5 empowered the Collector to lay out public ways in churs and islands.

Mr. Dampier said, he would ask the hon'ble mover of the Bill to explain exactly what power it was intended to give to the Collector by Section 5 of the Bill. The Council had accepted it as the law that an island once thrown up was the absolute property of Government. The Government might therefore of course sell or otherwise dispose of it. He (Mr. Dampier) would apply this section to the case of such an island being sold by Government, and of which the purchasing zemindar had been in possession for several years, and had covered the land with the sub-tenants, and so on. Suddenly the channel on one side between the mainland became fordable. He wished to know what was to be the power of the Collector to interfere with the ryots and other persons who had acquired rights in the soil. Government had the power to take up land for roads under the existing law but because the status of the land was originally insular, was the Collector to have absolute power for all time to lay out roads and ways?

Mr. Thompson said, the section was introduced on the suggestion made by an hon'ble member (Mr. Knowles) when the Bill was read in Council. On the junction of an island with the mainland it would in many cases operate hardly upon the zemindar that he should lose his river frontage; and it was thought that some provision of law should be made by which the riparian proprietor should have access to the river. The objections brought forward were certainly strong in the case where a chur was sold by Government. The section would give the power to any proprietor to call upon the Collector to make a road across the island, though Government might have no property in the chur; but he thought the principle of the section was right, and that where a river frontage was lost to a landed proprietor, some provision should be made to afford access to the river. Perhaps it would answer if a clause were inserted providing that such roads should be made at the expense of the applicants.

Mr. Dampier said, subject to any wish that there might be to have a clause differently framed, he would move the omission of the section. He did not say that the Government should not be obliged to make such roads where the right of Government only was affected; but as the clause stood, the power was unlimited and undefined, and, whatever it was, extended to the rights of all parties.

The Advocate General said, he should support the amendment, if only on this ground that the section as it stood might possibly involve a principle which it might be desirable to have carried out, but which could not be done by this section. The section went too far, first, as the power of the Collector to interfere was not limited to the period during which the island was in the possession of Government. Again, as the section stood, it applied to all islands, and might apply to islands never taken possession of by Government. The island might be an accretion to the estate of a neighbouring zemindar, and why should he be allowed to call on the Collector to provide ways?

Mr. Knowles said, there was no doubt a great deal could be said on both sides. If some such clause were not introduced, the neighbouring zemindar would suffer much greater hardship than the new proprietor. The Collector could see that too much inconvenience was not suffered by the proprietor of the new island, and he (Mr. Knowles) would suggest that the section be allowed to stand.

The President said, it seemed to him that the last objection taken by the learned Advocate General was fatal to the section as it stood. He (the President) would therefore vote for its being omitted. But he should be glad to see a different section, somewhat on the same principle, introduced afterwards.

Mr. Thompson intimated his intention of submitting a section for the approval of the Council before the Bill was passed.

The motion for the omission of Section 5 was then agreed to; and the further consideration of the Bill was postponed.

POLICE AND CONSERVANCY OF TOWNS.

Mr. Dampier moved that the Report of the Select Committee on the Bill "to amend and consolidate the law for the regulation of Police in towns under the control of the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal, and for the conservancy and improvement thereof," be taken into consideration, in order to the settlement of the clauses of the Bill, and that the clauses be considered for settlement in the form recommended by the Select Committee. In doing so, he said, the Report of the Select Committee had been some days in the hands of hon'ble members. When he had the honor to move the Bill he read in Council, he said that in consideration of the wide range in degrees of advancement, and in the characters, of the towns to which he proposed the law should apply, he had not up to that time been able to devise any provisions which should be applicable to all such towns, and which should give to what were then called Punchayets anything more than a consultative position. He had said that if in Committee or elsewhere any hon'ble member could suggest any provisions by which larger powers could be given, he should be happy to see them introduced. That object, he was glad to say, had been attained in Committee.

The main points in which the Bill had been amended, had been stated in the printed Report of the Select Committee; he should therefore now only notice two or three of the chief of those points. The first was the omission from the Bill of the power to impose a rate on the annual value of property within a town. Such an alternative mode of assessment was allowed by Act XX of 1856; but the Committee had accepted the principle that where a town was not ripe for the introduction of the District Municipal Improvement Act, the house and land property in such town might be assumed not to have reached that value which could make them proper data for an assessment for municipal purposes. The Committee had therefore limited the tax under the Bill to the other mode which had been in force under Act XX of 1856, viz., an assessment according to the circumstances, and the property to be protected, of the person liable.

The Bill, when laid before the Select Committee, contained a provision that the Punchayets should assist the Magistrate with their advice only. In Act XX of 1856 they were only vested with the power of making the assessment, and were to report Chowkeydars when absent from duty. They had nothing to do with the works that were to be carried on out of the surplus of the tax after paying for the Police. The Select Committee, in the body of the Bill, had provided that the Town Committees, which were to take the place of the Punchayets, should have consultative powers only; but in view, as he had said, of the large range and difference of character of the towns to which the Bill would be extended, sections had been introduced which would enable the Government to vest any such Committee, of which the Magistrate should then be Chairman, with any of the powers which the body of the Act vested in the Magistrate himself. Sections had been introduced as to the constitution of these Local Committees, enabling the Government to lay down different rules for the appointment of members of the Committees in different towns according to the stage of advancement which each town might have reached. Unless any other mode of appointment were prescribed, the Magistrate, with sanction of the Commissioner of the Division, was to nominate the members of the Committee; but provision was made for the election of the members when the Government had reason to believe that the town was far enough advanced. Those members who were not so ex-officio, were to retire in rotation, one-third going out every year, but were eligible for re-appointment. At the urgent instance of their native colleagues, the Committee had taken away the penalty for refusing to serve on a Punchayet. That had been done in the deference to native feeling on the subject. The native members of Council appeared to think that natives of respectability would consider the mere existence of a section in the Act prescribing penalties for a refusal to serve, to be indignity to gentlemen of respectability who were likely to be chosen as members. It could not be denied that in working the proposed law the Government would have to rely materially on the co-operation of the native community. Therefore, at the urgent instance of the hon'ble members who represented the native community, the Select Committee had struck out the penalty clause. The Committee had given power to the Government to introduce certain modified provisions for conservancy, and had inserted clauses to prevent difficulties arising from mere informalities. It was his (Mr. Dampier's) wish to give the Government power to extend to places which might be brought under the operation of this Bill, according to their requirements, any of the conservancy clauses of District Municipal Improvement Act. If the Committee had agreed to that, the necessity of retaining some 20 Sections of the Bill would have been saved. But he could carry his own views in Committee, and intended to propose to the Council an amendment on the point.

The consideration of Section 1 was postponed.

Section 2 was agreed to, after the omission of the words "not being a cantonment" in the 3rd line.

In Section 3 the words "so far as the same relates to towns as therein defined," in the 8th and 9th lines were struck out.

Section 4 was agreed to with the addition of the word "only" after the word "agriculture" in the 6th line.

Section 5 provided for the formation of Unions.

Mr. Thompson moved that this section be left out. He said he objected to the principle of the section. He considered all systems of grouping, whether for purpose of representation, as suggested in higher places, or for Conservancy and Police as in this Bill, were bad in principle. The principle of this section had been in force since Act XX of 1856 had been passed, and experience had shown that whatever amount of care or supervision was exercised, the result was always the same, that larger places benefited solely at the expense of the smaller places which composed the union; and the collections, intended equally or nearly equally for places paying the assessment, were appropriated, in nearly every instance, to those places which had the largest interest and influence in the distribution of the funds. The Hon'ble Mover of the Bill had adverted to those inequalities in his own speech on the introduction of the Bill, and had given us some experiences of his own as a Commissioner of a Division, which told strongly in support of his (Mr. Thompson's) contention. Another hon'ble member had also instanced similar cases. The present Bill, it was true, provided some restrictions in the power of forming unions, and had limited the distances within which unions might be created, and so far it was an improvement; but he (Mr. Thompson) was still opposed to the principle as a bad one, and one which would always work badly. The places to which this Bill would apply would in most cases be remote from the head-quarters of the district, and there would be no check against inequalities and improprieties, such as had too often been experienced already where the system of unions prevailed. He would remind the Council that they were coming to some very formidable section in the Bill, providing complicated machinery and details for the conduct of business; and it was very difficult to realize how it would be practicable to carry on the business which the Bill required, where the members composing the Town Committees had to meet together from distant places, and bring into harmony their differing interests and opposite claims. To show how the system had worked hitherto, he would beg to refer the Council to a petition from the inhabitants of certain villages near Moorshedabad, which was printed as an annexure to the present Bill. They said:—

"That your petitioners are inhabitants of certain villages, situated on the west bank of the River Bhanggirutty, in the District of Moorshedabad, and have been subject to the provisions of Act XX of 1856, the introduction of which, however, at an early date, had not been very generally known to them, a greater portion of them being people in very low circumstances of life, till the increase of the taxes from year to year disabused their minds; for heretofore they were under the belief that it was a tax imposed simply to defray the charge of maintaining Chowkeydars.

"That since the past four or five years the tax has been so increased as to make it to be felt a grievious hardship by the inhabitants, some of whose taxes were increased all on a sudden from Rupees 1-8 a year to Rupees 6, and in one case from Rupees 6 to Rupees 36 a year, at the same time beyond the services of a Chowkeydar at night, which again have been of late dispensedwith. The inhabitants did in no instance ever derive a particle of benefit from the operation of the Act, the surplus being always expended for Municipal purposes on the other side of the river.

"That the petitioners' villages, it appears, have been united to the City Union. The city of Moorshedabad, however, is pretty nearly five miles distant from the villages on the west bank of the River Bhanggirutty, and the Notification, by which this union had been formed, had never come under the observation of your petitioners, who seldom have any opportunity of reading the Gazette."

The Council would observe that the establishment of the unions was in this case without knowledge on the part of the inhabitants, and, as would be seen below, without any advantages to the parties who formed the union. In another part the petitioners said:—

"The villages your petitioners inhabit, have no roads, nor is there, from the situation of the houses, as also of the river bank, the slightest possibility of any being made; Municipal improvement therefore, however desirable, is entirely out of question in such places."

The British Indian Association also had referred to some inequalities and difficulties in connection with this subject. They said, referring to Act III of 1864 (even under that law which applied to larger towns and places of some importance this objection had been found in the working of it):

"There are a of Municipalities is so largely extended, comprising villages which do not at all possess any of the distinguishing characteristics of a town, and are not, therefore, advanced for Municipal Government; that the people not unnaturally infer that the inclusion of such villages is made solely for the purpose of taxation, and not for that of improvement."

The Hon'ble Mover of the Bill had been kind enough to say, during the discussions in Select Committee, that he would be open to accept any compromise which was reasonable, with a view to do away with the admitted evils of the system. He (Mr. Thompson) had accordingly given some attention to the subject, and it seemed to him that if the section was to be retained, the only suggestion which he could make was that there should be a provision in the Bill, that a fair proportion of the funds which were raised in any place should be appropriated to that place; but if that was allowed, he thought there would be no necessity of having unions at all, for each place under such circumstances would be able to stand by itself.

Mr. Dampier said, if the Council was of opinion that the formation of unions should not be permitted, he had no objection to offer to the motion. But if any of the subsequent sections of the Bill were materially altered, it might be necessary for him to call attention again to Section 5. Assuming, however, that the other sections passed as the Bill stood, he had no objection to the present motion.

Mr. Hogg said, it had been suggested that the system of unions should not be introduced, and if this was done, each village or each town would have to be formed into Municipality, and to have a complicated system of Municipal management. He would submit that to say these small towns should not assist each other, was altogether wrong in principle. It might as well be argued that every small street in Calcutta was to have the tax raised in it, expended on that street. It would preclude the possibility of large improvements in any place. He thought the Council might well leave it to the discretion of the local authorities to decide what villages should be brought into unions, those Officers having better means of judging of the propriety of dealing with villages under this Bill. He would therefore leave the formation of unions entirely to the discretion of the Government.

The Advocate-General said, he rose not for the purpose of expressing any opinion with regard to the desirability of omitting or retaining this section, but he desired to have some information as to the point whether practically this section would enable the establishment of unions in such towns or places to which the Municipal system of 1864 would not be applicable. He thought the Bill ought only to be extended to such places as could support the machinery that this Bill contemplated.

At the suggestion of the President, the consideration of the section was postponed.

Section 6 provided for the definition of the limits of the places to which the Act might be extended, and who should be liable to the assessment of the tax.

Mr. Dampier said, he thought the consideration of the first clause of the section might be postponed. He would move the insertion of the following proviso to the section:—

"Provided also that if any house or building be occupied by two or more separate families, not being tenants of one common landlord, the head of every such separate family shall, for the purposes of this Act, be deemed to be the occupier of a separate house."

It had been suggested to him that in the Mofussil there were numerous houses occupied by different branches of the same family living in different compartments, and he had been informed than in practice each of these compartments had been treated as a separate house. If this proviso was introduced, the effect would be that the maximum of five Rupees for each house, which was imposed by another section of the Bill, would be removed, and the maximum would become five Rupees for every separate family occupying a portion of a house.

BABOO RAMANATH TAGORE said, supposing one house was occupied by five families, and each family only occupied two rooms in the house, would those five families be obliged to pay five Rupees each?

MR. DAMPIER replied that each person ought to be assessed according to his means and the property to be protected. If he was in a position to pay the maximum, he did not see why he should not be required to pay it.

BABOO PEARY CHAND MITTRA said, if the proposed proviso was carried, it must lead to the making up enquiries as to the number of families and persons living in each house. As a rule every native house was occupied by more than one family. All the sons of a Hindu gentleman kept the same house, be their condition whatever it might be, whether they belonged to the middle, upper, or lower class. The law should be made simple, so as to levy a certain rate from each house; but if enquiry had to be made whether a house was occupied by several families, it must necessarily lead to difficulties and vexation, and give rise to extortion on the part of those who might be employed to make the enquiries. Taking all circumstances into consideration, he thought the gain would be the greater by assessing each house. By the system proposed you might gain more in a pecuniary point of view, but it would be at the expense of the peace and contentment of the people.

MR. HOGG agreed with the hon'ble member who spoke last. He did not think that the amendment could be practically carried out. It was imposing a very difficult duty on the executive, who could never ascertain what persons ought to be assessed without resorting to inquisitorial proceedings. But when the section for limiting the amount to be levied from any one individual to five Rupees was before the Council, he would propose that the limit be altogether removed. A zemindar who occupied a house with a rental of 500 Rupees, would under the Bill have to pay the same as a man whose means bore no comparison to the zemindar's. Again by another section cook-rooms, stables, shops, warehouses, orchards, gardens, and tanks, would be excluded from the assessment. He (Mr. Hogg) thought that a house with all its appurtenances and everything included in it should be taken into consideration when making the assessment.

THE ADVOCATE GENERAL said, the discussion seemed rather to be sliding to the general question as to whether we should have an assessment or not. He did not think the observations with regard to the position of joint-families arose on this section. He wished to understand whether the clause here was intended to apply to cases of sub-occupation by separate persons having separate families.

MR. DAMPIER said, the subject had been pressed on him very strongly by an Officer of great experience, and it seemed a reasonable provision to make.

The motion was then negatived, and the further consideration of the section was postponed.

Section 7 was agreed to.

Section 8 was agreed to with a verbal amendment.

Section 9 was agreed to.

Section 10 provided that the Police paid under the Act were not to be employed beyond the limits of the town to which they belonged.

MR. HOGG asked if the Police would not be bound to serve processes out of the limits of the town.

MR. DAMPIER said, they would certainly not be bound to do so; they would be entirely paid by the town, and should not be required to act except in the town, and for the purposes of the Act.

The consideration of the section was then postponed.

Section 11 provided for the monthly payment of the Police.

BABOO PEARY CHAND MITTRA said, he would like to be informed whether or not the surplus proceeds of the Cattle Trespass Fund would be available for the partial payment of the Police.

MR. DAMPIER said, if he should attempt to describe what became of the Cattle Trespass Fund, he should have to enter into an explanation of the whole system on which local and imperial roads were provided for. The Cattle Trespass Fund was applied to the construction and improvement of local roads and communications, but in a different sense to the improvement the Council was now considering. The fund went to the local funds of the district, and to the funds of town.

The consideration of the section was then postponed.

Sections 12 and 13 were agreed to.

Section 14 related to the application of the Town Fund, and provided that no large sum than Rupees fifty per mensem should be applied in vaccination, and the establishment and maintenance of dispensaries and hospitals.

MR. HOGG thought it was difficult to define the amount required for dispensaries and hospitals in the different towns. He would therefore move the omission of the proviso at the end of the section, which laid down the limit of Rupees fifty.

MR. DAMPIER said, he agreed with the hon'ble member, but had failed to carry his view in Committee. The section was taken from the Act lately passed for amending the District Municipal Improvement Act. At that time he (Mr. Dampier) had opposed such limit, for the simple reason that one Municipality might have an income of Rupees 10,000 a year, and another of Rupees 1,000; and why we should limit the discretion of the Municipality he could not understand.

KOOMAR HARENDRA KRISHNA said, in the larger towns Act III of 1864 would be in force. This Bill would only take effect in the smaller towns. Experience had shown that even in the larger Municipalities, the funds might not be properly applied. How then could we expect always to have a proper application of money in the small towns to which this Bill would apply. The motive of the limit was that the Town Committees might not be able to spend more than was absolutely necessary; and we could not consider that the circumstances of any town would be such as to make it proper that a larger sum than Rupees fifty a month should be expended in support of hospitals and dispensaries.

Mr. Dampier said, the extra-suburban unions, under Act XX of 1856, realised from Rupees 70,000 to 80,000 annually, and the limit given in this section was quite unsuitable to a place where the amount collected was of such magnitude. The object of the Bill was to give the Government power to everything as circumstances required.

Baboo Ramanath Tagore said, he was one of the members of the Select Committee who supported this section. His object was that the additional one anna per house, which was imposed by the Bill on the poor ryots and others, was solely intended for the construction and maintenance of roads and tanks, and for conservancy purposes. And as for vaccination and dispensaries, considering the towns where this Act would be introduced, he believed they would hardly be appreciated. The people in the Mofussil generally were very averse to English medicines, and many even believed that if they once went to a hospital, they would never be allowed to come out. He did not mean to say that was the feeling of all the natives in the Mofussil; but he knew that the ignorant entertained such fears, however absurd they were.

Another reason for the retention of the proviso was, that money raised for roads and conservancy ought not to be laid out for purposes for which zemindars and others were constantly making provision. Some Magistrates might think that the establishment of hospitals and dispensaries was far better than roads, tanks, and conservancy; but they forgot that if you have good roads and tanks, and clean places, there would be no necessity for hospitals. The former would operate as a preventive of sickness, while the latter as a curative only.

Again, in a Municipality there was a tendency to spend more money than was necessary. Take for instance, the Calcutta Pauper Hospital. When it was in the hands of the Government, the annual expenditure was not more than Rupees 16,000 or 17,000; but the moment it was placed under the Municipality, the expenditure rose to about Rupees 35,000, because what was everybody's money was nobody's money. He therefore thought if the object of the Bill was for the purpose of providing good roads and good tanks, the section should be left as it was. He might add that as that section permitted the expenditure of Rupees 50 per month for dispensaries and hospitals, where an urgent need might arise for the application of the Municipal Funds to such purposes, that object could be fulfilled under the section as it stood. Rupees 50, in his opinion, would be quite sufficient, considering the places where these hospitals and dispensaries would be established.

The Council then divided on Mr. Hogg's amendment:

Section 15 related to the preparation of the Police Budget.

Mr. Hogg rose for the purpose of asking a question as to the estimates.—

The Advocate-General rose to order. He thought the proceedings of the Council were drifting into mere conversation. When the question was put by the President, any member who objected ought to be prepared to move a formal amendment.

The President said, no doubt the proper course was to put formal amendments; but it was open to any hon'ble member to ask questions.

Mr. Dampier said, he would explain the system of estimates provided for in the Bill. The estimates were to be in two parts. First, the Magistrate was to draw up an estimate for Police, with which the Town Committee had no power to interfere. The second part was for conservancy, which was prepared by the Magistrate, with the advice of the members of the Committee, and in that part of the estimate they had a voice, and they had a right to record objections, which by another section must be submitted to higher authority. The two parts, the Police Budget, and the Conservancy Budget, formed the aggregate estimate for the town.

Section 15 was then agreed to.

Section 16 related to the preparation of an estimate, for all purposes other than Police.

Mr. Thompson asked if the hon'ble member in charge of the Bill would wish him to move here the amendment as to the duties of Town Committees, of which he had given notice. The President said, he perceived that there were two amendments of which the hon'ble member had given notice. The first amendment, for the omission of Section 5, was a specific amendment, which had been put to the Council. The second amendment was a very indefinite one, and should never have been put on the Council Paper. If the hon'ble member had any specific amendment to make, he might do so.

The consideration of this section, and of Section 17, was then postponed.

Section 18 was passed after a verbal amendment.

Section 19 was agreed to.

Section 20 was passed after a verbal amendment.

Section 21 was agreed to.

Section 22 having been read—

Mr. Dampier moved that all the words after the word "year" in the 16th line, be omitted, and the following words be substituted for them:—

"It shall also be lawful to declare the date from which the assessment made under the provisions of this Act shall take effect, provided that the amount of tax to be levied in respect to any portion of the year which shall remain unexpired on the date from which the said assessment may take effect, shall not bear a greater proportion to the maximum amount leviable under this Act on account of a whole year, than such unexpired portion of a year shall bear to a whole year."

The motion was carried, and the section as amended was agreed to.

The further consideration of the Bill was then postponed.

The Council was adjourned to Saturday, the 23rd instant.

Pensionary Claims of persons employed under Municipalities, or in Establishments maintained from Local Funds.

From J. E. Cooke, Esq., Assistant Secretary to the Government of India, Financial Department,—(No. 2197, dated Fort William, the 24th April 1868.)

Ordered, that an extract of the 2nd and the following paragraphs of the Resolution, and a copy of the Memorandum be sent to the Government of Bengal.

Extract Financial Resolution No. 2197, dated the 24th April 1868.

Para.—2. The rulings of the Home Authorities and the Government of India respecting the pensionary claims of persons employed under Municipalities or in Establishments maintained from Local Funds are stated in the accompanying memorandum. There is no objection, under those rulings, to the pensioning of persons in otherwise eligible grades, who may be employed in Establishments controlled by Government and paid from Local Funds, provided that the pensions be paid from the same source from which those persons received their salaries.

3. This proviso makes it indispensable that the income of the Local Funds which incur this liability for pension, should be derived from taxation like the cesses on land revenue, for education, roads, &c., or from other permanent sources, like those of the Bengal Amalgamated District Roads' Fund, and not from charitable donations or voluntary and revocable contributions, like some of the contributions for schools, which are comprehended in Local Funds under a loose acceptation of the term.

4. In the same view it is indispensable that the Local Funds should, as to the sources of their income, be under the control of Government, although Municipal Committees may, as in the interior of the Bombay Presidency, be employed to administer the funds.

5. The eligibility for pension from the source from which salary is paid of persons employed on establishments maintained from such Local Funds as fulfil these two conditions, is recognized by the rulings in the accompanying memorandum, and it may be provided for in such a way as to facilitate transfers of persons from establishments paid from Local Funds to those maintained from the general revenues and vice versâ.

6. The Governor General in Council is accordingly pleased to rule—

I.—That persons employed in Establishments that are maintained from Local Funds, which fulfil the two indispensable conditions above stated, shall be eligible to pension under the Uncovenanted Service Pension Rules, on the understanding that when the service has been rendered wholly on those Establishments, the pension shall be charged to those funds.

II.—That where a person has served partly in the Establishments appertaining to the Local Funds above described, and partly in Establishments paid from the general revenue, the pension shall be charged to the Local Fund and to the general revenue in the proportion of the total receipts of the applicant from those sources during the whole course of his service.

III.—That the pension, or portion of pension, which may be payable from a Local Fund under the two preceding rules shall be the first charge on the fund, so that provision to meet it shall be reserved before other expenditure of the year is defrayed from the fund.

IV.—That the pension, if payable partly from the general revenues, shall, during the course of the year, be disbursed wholly from those revenues, which will be recouped at the end of the year by the proper contribution from the Local Fund from the sum to be reserved for the purpose under Rule III.

V.—That where the strength and pay of an Establishment are fixed with the sanction of the Government of India, pension for service on such an Establishment shall be charged to the general revenues, although a portion of the cost be defrayed by a contribution from a Local Fund, unless a debt of a part of the pension to the Local Fund be ordered in regulating the fund's contribution.

7. The Engineer Officers employed under Municipal Committees in the interior of the Bombay Presidency may be graded with the Imperial Public Works Department, on the understanding that their pay will be disbursed wholly from Local Funds that their pensions will be adjusted under these rules; and that the income of the Local Funds will be secured by the levy of the anna cess, for which permission to legislate has been accorded by the Secretary of State.

E. H. Lushington,

Secretary to the Government of India.

MEMORANDUM.

Questions have arisen from time to time regarding the eligibility to pension of persons employed.

1. By Municipalities.
2. In Establishments which are paid from Local Funds, and also of Government servants who are permitted to take the foregoing employments.

2. The decisions on these subjects are numerous, but not inconsistent, when the governing principles of the decisions are regarded.

3. The two fundamental principles are that pensions—

1. Shall be restricted to service under Government, or in Establishments which are controlled by Government in such a manner that the officers employed in it are Government servants.
2. Shall be paid from the same source from which the salaries of the applicants for pension may have been defrayed.

4. In accordance with the first of these principles, service under Municipalities has held in the following decisions not to confer any claim to pension from the general revenues:—

I.—The Court of Directors in a letter No. 36, dated 21st July 1852, negatived an application for pension by an Uncovenanted Officer who had held different offices under Government for a period of 32 years, but whose salary, in the last six years of his service, had been paid from the Municipal Fund of Singapore. A gratuity of 12 months' pay was given in consideretion of the applicant's summary dismissal, upon a ground which did not affect his moral character.

II.—In a letter No. 98, dated 3rd December 1856, the Court of Directors negatived, as quite inadmissible, an application for pension by House Assessor of the Town of Calcutta, his appointment having been held under the Municipal Commissioners, and his salary been charged upon the Municipal Funds.

III.—An Assistant Resident Councillor and Commissioner of Police at Singapore, whose salary for some years had been paid from Municipal Funds, was exempted, in the Secretary of State's Despatch No. 106, dated 16th May 1864, from the letter of the foregoing decisions, on the grounds that the appointments which he held (except for a short period in one year), though paid by the Municipality for some years, had been conferred upon him by Government, that the pay of these appointments had since become chargeable to the revenues of the Government of India, and that from 1855 he had been employed and paid by Government.

IV.—In 1865 the Government of India recommended to the Secretary of State for India, with reference to the employment of Military Officers in the Office of Municipal Commissioner, "that the time passed by "Officers in Municipal employ may be allowed to reckon as service towards "pension, but that no such employment be permitted, save when officers can be "spared from military duty, with the sanction of Government and the Com-"mander-in-Chief of the Presidency to which they belong, and that they be "considered liable to return to duty whenever their services are required." The Secretary of State for India regretted in a letter, dated 30th June 1865, that he was not able to allow the recommendation, adding—"there can be no objection "to an Officer taking employment, of the nature referred to, during leave taken "under the regulations of the service; but I cannot sanction the recognition of "the time passed in such employment as qualifying towards pension under those "regulations."

Financial Proceedings, Nos. 146 to 150, August 1865.

About the same time the Government of Bombay represented to the Government of India that they had appointed Major Thacker, an Officer of the Bombay Staff Corps, to be Controller of Municipal Accounts; that owing to the large debt due by the Municipality to Government, it was desirable that a Government Officer should fill the appointment, the Municipality paying his salary,—and that accordingly the Officer selected by the Government of Bombay might be allowed to count his service in the appointment "as service in India for all "purposes, pension included, in the same manner as if it had been in any Office "of the Account Department under the Government of India." The application was twice negatived by the Government of India with reference to the decision of the Secretary of State, dated 30th June 1865, but simultaneously with its rejection for the second time, a further application from the Government of Bombay that Major Walker, Inspector-in-Chief of the Cotton Frauds Department, who was paid from a Local Fund, might be allowed to count his service towards pension, on the condition of his sufferring a deduction of 3½th per cent. from his salary, was granted without enforcing any deduction from his salary. In explanation of this distinction between the two Officers, it was pointed out that the Secretary of State's decision of 30th June 1865 was passed on the case of a Military Officer, whose appointment was "unconnected with the administration under His Excellency in Council," on which account Major Thacker, whose case was similar, could hold his appointment "only during leave taken under the regulations of the service, that is, "during any furlough to which he may be entitled;" whereas Major Walker was differently circumstanced, "inasmuch as his appointment in the Cotton "Frauds' Department is directly and exclusively under the administration of the "Government of Bombay. All that had to be determined with regard to him "was, whether his employment in the Cotton Frauds' Department was admissible "or not; and, that having been determined in his favor, he is entitled, in Financial Proceedings, Nos. 146 to 150, August 1865.

"virtue of his Military Commission and Covenant, to count his service in that "department towards Military pension without being required to submit to any "deduction from his salary"

In a letter to the Secretary of State for India, dated 27th January 1866, the Government of Bombay demurred to the distinction that Major Walker's appointment was, but Major Thacker's appointment under the Municipality of Bombay was not, directly and exclusively under the administration of the Government of Bombay. This distinction (it was urged) did not in any way affect the financial aspect of the question, which would be met by a suitable deduction from Major Thacker's salary, on account of which he might be allowed to reckon towards pension his service in the Municipal appointment, which it was urged was of a quasi Government character.

The Secretary of State in a Despatch to the Government of Bombay, dated 17th April 1866, No. 45, replied that "the views expressed by the Government of India are in accordance with those communicated in the Financial Despatch dated the 16th December 1864, No. 302, and in the Military Despatches dated the 30th June and 15th December 1865, Nos. 215 and 351, and Her Majesty's Government see no reason to interfere with the decisions which have been passed in regard to the cases of Majors Walker and Thacker. Officers of the Army should not be employed in other than situations under Government, though there may be, as stated in paragraph 3 of the Military Despatch No. 215, no objection to an Officer taking employment of the nature referred to during leave taken under regulations of the service.

V.—In Financial Resolution No. 966, dated 18th July 1864, it was ruled, with respect to Municipal Police Forces in the interior of the three Presidencies, that where the Police of a town is wholly supported by, and under the control of a Municipality, no pension can be allowed to the force from either Imperial Revenues or a Police Superannuation Fund; but that wherever the Government is so much interested in the efficiency of Municipal Police as to undertake its organization and control, in connection with and auxiliary to the Constabulary, the responsibility connected with both the pay and pensions of such Municipal Police must rest with Government and the Police Superannuation Fund; the Police Cess going to relieve the Government as far as it may be.

5. The foregoing decisions are adverse to the reckoning of service towards pension in appointments under Municipalities in which the Officers are not under the direct and exclusive control of Government. But mere subordination, more or less, to Government control does not in itself bring an appointment within the category of those which qualify for pension exclusively from the general revenue, it being another fundamental principle that pensions should be paid from the same source from which the salaries of the applicants for pension are defrayed.

6. In accordance with this latter principle, the following decisions have been passed:—

I.—When education was being introduced into the Bombay Presidency, numerous Vernacular Schools and several English Schools were established by Government, on the understanding that one-half of the pay of the Teachers would be paid by Government, and that the other half, with the remaining charges, would be defrayed by popular contributions. The Government of Bombay recommended that in the cases in which the Government pays half of the salary, pension computed on the full salary be granted, nevertheless, by the State, the School Masters being Government servants employed in Government Schools, the expense of which is partially defrayed by popular contributions. The Court of Directors in a Despatch No. 84, dated 17th September 1856, paragraphs 6 to 8, ruled that "we cannot adopt this principle with "due regard to financial considerations.

Consn. No. 53, 5th Jan. 1856.
" " 38, 25th April "

"In cases in which the Masters and Assistant Masters of schools receive salaries of "Rupees 10 per month and upwards, partly paid by Government, and partly "by local contribution, the pension from the State on retirement must be com-"puted only on the Government share of the salary, according to the length of "service. If the Local Funds applicable to the schools should admit of the "grant, an additional pension might be given from that source."

II.—In the same correspondence the Government of Bombay recommended that Masters of schools in Kattywar, which were under the control of the Director of Public Instruction, should be allowed pension from the general revenues, notwithstanding that their salaries were paid from the Infanticide Fund and by a contribution from the Native Chiefs. The Court of Directors replied in the Despatch above quoted, that "it does not appear that the Government pay any "portion of the salaries, and in this case, therefore, the School Masters would "not be entitled to receive pensions from the State, but they might from the "old Infanticide Fund, from which the schools in question are supported."

III.—A like decision was passed respecting the Masters in the Elphinstone Institution, which is regarded by Government as an institution not differing substantially from a public establishment maintained by the State, but which is supported partly by Trust Funds. The pension of the Masters, it was held, should be borne by Government and the Trust Funds, in the proportion of their respective contributions towards the expenses of the school.

IV.—An equitable division of charge between the general revenues and Port Funds has been authorised in the case of a Master Attendant and other officials payable from a Port Fund, excepting that the whole charge is borne by the fund when the service was rendered wholly on establishments chargeable to it.

Finl. Pro., Nos. 80 to 83, June 1865.
" " " 29 & 30, " 1867.

V.—In a Despatch No. 57, dated 16th April 1863, the Secretary of State declined to allow pension "under the rules applicable to "the members of the Uncovenanted Service," i. e., from the general revenues to clerks employed on the accounts of the Police Superannuation Fund, on the ground that "the clerks referred to do not appear to be strictly servants of Government, "and their salaries are defrayed from the "fund and not by the Government; I see "no reason for making their cases exceptions "to the rule under which clerks similarly "employed by the other funds* noted by "you are ineligible to the benefits of the "Pension Rules." In a subsequent decision the Government of India allowed these clerks to subscribe for a pension to be paid from the Police Superannuation Funds.

Financial Proceedings, Nos. 36 to 38, January 1863.

* Municipal Funds.
District Local Funds.
Military and Medical Service Funds.

Financial Proceedings, Nos. 47 to 49, July 1863.

VI.—The Government of Bombay proposed that service on the Establishments employed under the Cotton Frauds' Act should count for pension under the Uncovenanted Service Pension Rules, that is, from the general revenues. The Government of India objected on the ground that the Cotton Frauds' Act is not a general but a Local Act based on a Local Fund, the income of which is connected with the operation of the Act. The Secretary of State for India negatived the proposition in a Despatch No. 302, dated 16th December 1864, observing that "if it were admitted that servants appointed under Local Acts, whose salaries "are paid from fees levied under the provisions of those Acts, were to be granted "superannuation pensions out of the general revenue, the charge to the State "for those pensions would be largly and indefinitely increased. The correct "principle in regard to superannuation appears to be that pensions should be "granted out of the same funds from which the salaries have been paid."

7. In the foregoing decisions, the principles established are, that persons employed on the establishments of Local Funds should not be pensioned from the general revenues, but from the source from which their salaries are defrayed; and that if employed on Establishments which are maintained partly from the general revenues, and partly from a Local Fund, their pension from the general revenue should be limited in the same proportion.

8. These principles have been approved or affirmed by the Home Authorities. In 1861 the Government of India authorized the employment of Engineers of the Imperial Public Works Department as Divisional Engineers for the control of works under Road and Ferry Fund Committees, without prejudice to their prospects of promotion and furlough, and on the understanding that they should be considered as temporarily transferred to the Divisional Service. In a Financial Resolution dated 4th September 1862, it was ruled that the time spent by Government servants of the Public Works Department in superintending, by order of Government, local works under Road and Ferry Fund Committees, shall count towards pension. The charge of a portion of the pension to Local Funds was not stipulated for, and the decision was not reported to the Secretary of State. On a further enquiry, whether persons, who are wholly employed on Local Funds works, and have no connection with the Public Works Department should be considered to have any claims for pension from Government, it was ruled that they are not entitled to pension from the Imperial Revenue, and if the Local Government propose that such persons should be pensioned out of Local Funds, the Government would be prepared to take the matter into consideration.

Proceedings, 1st and 3rd September 1862.

In April 1863 a portion of the charge for the Punjab Secretariat, equal to the pay of the Assistant Secretary and Office Establishment employed in the Local Fund Branch of the Secretariat, was made payable from funds chargeable to Local Funds. The Establishment having been previously charged to Imperial Revenue and eligible to pension, it was urged that they should not lose their title to pension, and it was explained that there was no intention to keep the Establishment permanently distinct from that for imperial public works, eventually there would be one Establishment paid partly from different sources. The recommendation was allowed.

House Accommodation at Mofussil Stations

From H. L. Dampier, Esq., Officiating Secretary to the Government of Bengal, to the Secretary to the Government of India, Financial Department,—(No. 1985, dated Fort William, the 6th April 1868.)

I am directed to submit, for the consideration and orders of the Government of India, the accompanying copy of a letter No. 1782, dated the 10th instant, from the Inspector-General of Police, with its enclosure, regarding an application from Mr. R. W. King, District Superintendent of Police, Lohardugga, for an advance of Rupees 4,200, to be paid by instalments in two years, to enable him to build a house for himself at Ranchee.

2. The Lieutenant-Governor avails himself of the opportunity to bring the question of house accommodation, for Government Officers at Civil Stations in the Lower Provinces, prominently before the notice of the Government of India. The marked insufficiency of houses at present as compared with former times, at many, if not most, Stations, has been the source of serious inconvenience to the European Officers in all branches of the public service. In every District there has been a considerable increase of late years in the strength of both the Covenanted and Uncovenanted servants of Government. The introduction of the new constabulary for instance has caused an addition to the number of European Police Officers resident at Mofussil Stations. The number of Assistant Magistrates and of European Officers in the Subordinate Executive Service has also considerably increased of late. The Education Department and the Public Works Department have both added to the population for which house accommodation is required; while at Stations on the lines of Railway, many of the houses which were formerly available for Officers joining the Station, have become permanently occupied by the servants of the Railway Company to the exclusion of all others. The experience of the last few years has shown that native capitalists finding safer and more profitable investments than house property, have made no effort to meet the demand for dwellings which undoubtedly exists, and the consequence has been that the action of Government has frequently of late been hampered and the public interests injured by the impossibility of compelling married Officers to proceed to Stations at which it was notorious that no house was available for their accommodation. At the station of Jessore, for instance, there are at present only four available houses, exclusive of the Circuit House and the Parsonage, while there are nine Officers, six of whom are married men, who require accommodation. The Lieutenant-Governor would strongly urge on the Government of India the necessity of extending to the Lower Provinces of Bengal the orders passed in the Financial Department, No. 3115, dated 20th December last, under which allowances for the purpose of building houses may be made to Officers in the Assigned Hyderabad Districts. The Local Government would exercise its discretion in restricting such loans to cases in which they might be really necessary.

3. As regards the case which is the immediate subject of the present reference, Mr. King states that there is no house accommodation at Ranchee for the District Superintendent of Police, and that had not the Deputy Commissioner kindly given up to him part of his house, he (Mr. King) would have been compelled to live in tents during the hot season and rains.

4. Under these circumstances the Lieutenant-Governor would wish to make an advance to Mr. King under the orders referred to.

From E. H. Lushington, Esq., Secretary to the Government of India, Financial Department, to the Secretary to the Government of Bengal,—(No. 2606, dated Fort William, the 30th April 1868.)

In reply to your letter No. 1985, dated the 6th April 1868, I am desired to inform you that, on the representation of the Hon'ble the Lieutenant-Governor, the Governor General in Council has sanctioned the extension to the Lower Provinces of Bengal of the orders passed in Financial Notification No. 3115, dated 20th December last, regarding the payment and adjustment of advances to Officers in the Hyderabad Assigned Districts, for the purpose of building small substantial houses of residence for themselves.

2. The advance proposed to be given to Mr. R. W. King, District Superintendent of Police, Lohardugga, should be regulated according to the terms of the Notification above-mentioned.

BENGAL SECRETARIAT,

LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

The following Report of a Select Committee of the Council of the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal for making Laws and Regulations is, together with the amended Bill, by order of the President, published for general information:—

From Honorary Secretary, Tenidel Indian Association, dated 28th April 1868.

From Officiating Commissioner, Presidency Division, dated 6th April 1868.

Extract of a letter from Officiating Commissioner of Cuttack, dated 30th April 1868.

We, the Select Committee appointed to consider the Bill "to make further provision for the recovery of arrears of land revenue, and public demands recoverable as arrears of land revenue," have the honor to submit the following Report:

We have considered the papers noted in the margin.

We have deemed it inexpedient to confer upon proprietors who may recover possession of estates sold for arrears of revenue, and upon purchasers of estates sold for demands not accruing upon such estates, the power of ousting subordinate or derivative interests; and we have therefore omitted Section II.

We have not thought it advisable to permit any interference with a sale, when no appeal against it has been lodged; but we have extended the time for appealing to thirty days. We have not provided any maximum limit for the time within which sales should be held.

We have omitted all provision for the personal service of notice upon defaulting proprietors of estates, but have provided that notices should be posted at the Sub-divisional Cutcherry within the jurisdiction of which the estate in arrear is situate.

We have provided that in case of applications for the registration of tenures not held immediately from the proprietors of estates, notices shall be served on the owners of all mesne interests.

We have provided that the time for the sale of tenures for arrears of revenue shall be regulated by the latest day of payment fixed for estates.

We have introduced a Section providing for the recovery of demands payable to Government Officers other than Collectors, and we have also confined to Collectors of Districts the power of enforcing demands by the summary procedure introduced by this Act.

We have limited the lien of Certificates under the Act to the immoveable property of defaulters situate within the jurisdiction in which such Certificate or a copy thereof may have been filed.

We have introduced provisions to enable persons interested to discover Certificates filed under this Act, and to provide for recording the satisfaction of demands secured by such Certificates.

We are not agreed as to the provisions of the Bill respecting the recovery of demands other than arrears of revenue; but considering this question as one of principle more fit for the consideration of the Council, than of a Committee, we have retained these provisions in the Bill.

We have somewhat extended the class of demands recoverable by the summary procedure of this Act.

We have made some verbal alterations, and we recommend that the Bill as amended may be passed.

AMENDED BILL.

A Bill to make further provision for the recovery of arrears of Land Revenue and public demands recoverable as arrears of Land Revenue.

Preamble.

Whereas it is expedient to amend and extend the law for the recovery of arrears of Land Revenue and of public demands recoverable as arrears of Land Revenue, it is declared and enacted as follows:—

Interpretation.

I. In this Act and in Act XI of 1859 to improve the law relating to sales of land for arrears of Revenue in the Lower Provinces under the Bengal Presidency) the words in this Section mentioned shall have the meanings thereon attributed to them respectively.

"Proprietor."

The word "Proprietor," includes any tenant by whom any land is held directly under Government, or by whom any demand is payable to Government.

"Revenue."

The word "Revenue" includes every sum annually payable to Government by the Proprietor of any estate or tenure in respect thereof, and every sum payable to Government in respect of Tuccavee, or of any money advanced by Government to Proprietors of land for making or repairing embankments, reservoirs, or water-courses, or other improvements on the land held by them.

"Estate."

The word "Estate" means any land or share in land subject to the payment to Government of an annual sum in respect of which the name of a Proprietor is entered on the Register known as the general Register of all Revenue-paying estates, or in respect of which a separate account may, in pursuance of Section X or Section XI of the said Act XI of 1859, have been opened.

"Tenure."

The word "Tenure," includes all interests in land whether rent-paying or lakhiraj, (other than estates as above defined), which by the terms of the grants creating the same, or by the custom of the country, are transferable, whether such tenures are resumable or not, and whether the right of selling or bringing to sale for an arrear of rent may or may not have been specially reserved by stipulation in any instrument.

"Jurisdiction."

The "Jurisdiction" of the Collector of a District means the District to which such Collector is appointed, or throughout which any Officer vested with the powers of a Collector is authorized to exercise such powers.

"Collector."

The word "Collector," includes any person vested with the powers of a Collector.

"Demand."

The word "Demand" means any of the following public demands, arrears of which are by law recoverable as arrears of revenue:

Sums due from Public Accountants and their sureties.

Any sum due from any Public Accountant or from the sureties of any Public Accountant on account of any loss or defalcation in the accounts of such Public Accountant.

Sums due from the sureties of farmers.

Any sum which may be due from the sureties of any farmer in respect of the revenue of the estate farmed by him;

Arrears of revenue payable in respect of tenures.

Any arrears of revenue payable in respect of any tenure for the recovery of which the Collector may not think fit to proceed under Section XI of this Act;

Costs of certain partitions.

Costs of certain partitions.

Any sum which may be due from any person in respect of any award of the expenses of the construction, alteration, or extension of any embankment, which may, in pursuance of Act VII of 1866 passed by the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal in Council, be made by any Collector;

Loss on re-sale of estates.

Any sum which may be payable by any person under the provisions of Section XXIII of the said Act XI of 1859, for the difference between the proceeds of the sale of an estate which may be eventually consummated, and the price bid by such person at a sale of such estate for arrears of revenue;

Water-rates.

All sums payable to any Collector for water-rate under any agreement made in pursuance of Act VIII of 1867, passed by the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal in Council;

Fines upon farmers.

All sums payable as fines under the provisions of Act XX of 1848 (for better enforcing the attendance of proprietors and farmers of land before Collectors of land Revenue in the Lower Provinces of the Bengal Presidency);

Other Revenue Demands.

Any other demand which by any law for the time being in force is or shall be recoverable as arrears of revenue.

Appeals against sales.

II. It shall be lawful for the Commissioner of Revenue to receive an appeal against any sale made under this Act or the said Act XI. of 1859, not being a sale made under and by virtue of any execution issued upon a Certificate made as hereinafter is provided, so that such appeal be preferred to such Commissioner on or before the thirtieth day from the day of sale, reckoning as in Section XXIII of the said Act XI of 1859, or be presented to the Collector or other Officer duly authorized to hold sales under the said Act for transmission to the Commissioner on or before the fifteenth day from the day of sale, reckoning as aforesaid, and not otherwise; and the Commissioner shall be competent, in every case of appeal so preferred, to annul any sale of an estate or share of an estate made under this Act, which shall appear to him not to have been conducted according to the provisions of this Act, awarding at the same time to the purchaser a payment from the proprietor of any moderate compensation for his loss, if the sale shall have been occasioned by neglect of the proprietor, such compensation not to exceed the interest at the highest rate of the current Government Securities on the amount of deposit or balance of purchase money during the period of its being retained in the Collector's Office: and the order of the Commissioner shall in such cases be final.

LIMITATION OF REVENUE APPEALS.

MR. TREVOR moved that the Bill "to amend the law relating to appeals in cases under Regulation VII of 1822" be passed.

The motion was agreed to, and the Bill passed.

POLICE AND CONSERVANCY OF TOWNS.

MR. DAMPIER moved that the Report of the Select Committee on the Bill "to amend and consolidate the law for the regulation of Police in Towns under the control of the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal, and for the Conservancy and improvement thereof," be further considered, in order to the settlement of the Clauses of the Bill.

The motion was agreed to.

Section 59 provided that the assessment should stand good for one whole year.

After a verbal amendment—

KOOMAR HARENDRA KRISHNA moved the substitution of the words "three years" for "one whole year." His reason for doing so was that in the Mofussil the owner and occupier of a house was in general the same person. In Calcutta and in places under the District Municipal Improvement Act, the assessment was for three years, and he thought it would be advantageous to the people if the assessments under the present Bill were also to stand good for three [illegible] He did not think it would much benefit the finances of the Town Committee if there was an annual assessment, for generally, no doubt, the assessments would stand good for more than one year. But the amendment which he proposed would, he thought, remove a great deal of anxiety from the minds of the people, for they would then know that when an assessment was once made, it would hold good for three years.

BABOO PEARY CHAND MITTRA said, he would support the amendment. Those who had been in the Mofussil must have observed that there was hardly any change for years in property; the same dull, monotonous aspect was presented almost every where. One object gained by the amendment would be that the people would not be kept in terrorem; they would know that the assessment would stand good for three years. It was, moreover, desirable to accustom the people gradually to Municipal improvement; they should be allowed to get attached to the institution, and great care should be taken not to make them dissatisfied in any way.

THE ADVOCATE-GENERAL said, the hon'ble mover of the amendment had acquainted him with his intention to bring forward this amendment, and he, the Advocate-General, had at first sight expressed his approval of it; but on further consideration he though that, as the Section now stood, the amendment was quite unnecessary. Practically, the same assessment might go on for an indefinite period of years. Under the 54th Section of the Bill, the Magistrate might require that, instead of a new assessment, there should merely be a revision or amendment; and again he might direct the simple adoption of the assessment for the time being in force, and by the provision in Section 59 that every assessment should be valid for one year, coupled with the provision that no new assessment was to be made unless made and published before the expiration of the first three months of the year, more was gained than would be gained by the proposed amendment.

Mr. Dampier said, under the Bill as it stood, the assessment would be adopted from year to year; and, practically, unless there was some good reason for doing so, no new assessment be made. But that, he believed, would fail to secure the object of the amendment. The hon'ble member wished it to be guaranteed that the assessment once made should not be interfered with for three years. The practical difficulty was this—that the Budget Estimate might be more or less for one year than for the last and that would make it necessary to revise the assessment. He (Mr. Dampier) thought that with Section 55 as now printed, sufficient protection and security were given.

Koomar Harendra Krishna said, under the 55th Section the revision of the assessment was optional. If the Magistrates chose, they might direct it to be revised every year. In one case the present provision might be beneficial to the people; but if the assessment was to be revised and raised yearly, it could not but be harassing to the people.

The Council then divided:—

The President.

The motion was therefore carried, and the Section as amended agreed to.

On the motion of Mr. Dampier, Section 55 was transposed so as to stand after Section 59.

The consideration of Sections 60 to 66 was postponed, as they were affected by the amendment made in Section 59.

Sections 67 to 69 were agreed to.

Section 70 was passed after a verbal amendment.

Sections 71 and 72 were agreed to.

Section 73 was passed after verbal amendments.

Section 74 was agreed to.

Section 75 was passed after verbal amendments.

Sections 76 to 82 were agreed to.

Section 83 was passed after a verbal amendment.

Mr. Dampier said, under the Section just passed, Government was empowered to extend to any place any of the provisions of Schedule G, which contained rules for conservancy, with penalties attached. In the 15th Section of the Schedule there was a provision for the levy of all sums recoverable under any other provision of the Schedule; for instance where the Magistrate executed any work which could be done at the expense of the owner, Section 15 provided that the expense so incurred might be recovered as a fine. He proposed to transfer that Section, with a slight modification, to the portion of the Bill which the Council was now considering, as it was a provision which ought to be in the body of the Bill, rather than in the Schedule. The Section which he proposed to insert here would stand as follows:—

"It shall be lawful for the Magistrate whenever any sum may be recoverable from any person under any of the provisions in the said Schedule G. contained, for the expenses of any work performed by such Magistrate, to make out a bill of the amount of such expenses, and to cause notice of the particulars of such bill to be served upon the person liable to pay the same. If such bill shall not be paid within five days after the service of such notice, the amount thereof may be recovered from the person upon whom the bill shall have been so served as if such amount were an arrear of assessment due under the provisions of this Act."

The motion was agreed to.

Sections 84 to 90 were agreed to.

Section 91 was passed with a verbal amendment.

The consideration of Section 92 was postponed.

Schedules A to F were agreed to.

Schedule G was passed with the omission of Section 15, which had already been transferred to the body of the Bill.

Schedule H was agreed to.

POSSESSION OF CHURS AND ISLANDS.

Mr. Thompson moved that the Report of the Select Committee on the Bill "to amend the provisions of Act IX of 1847 (an Act regarding the assessment of lands gained from the sea or from rivers by alluvion or dereliction within the Provinces of Bengal, Behar, and Orissa)" be further considered in order to the settlement of the Clauses of the Bill. The first four Sections, he said, had been passed by the Council. The discussion remained on the 5th Section as regarded the duties of the Collector in lying out roads and paths. The principle had been considered good that if a person should lose his river frontage, he should be entitled to some consideration as regards roads and paths to be laid out so that he might regain access to the river. Another principle which he (Mr. Thompson) wished to see determined was that the duty of laying out these roads and paths should only be required of the Collector in cases where the Government was directly in possession of the land, or was in possession through some sub-tenant holding under temporary settlement. Where the Government had permanently disposed of its interests, it could not be right to impose upon it any such duty.

The Advocate-General said, when this Section was [illegible] under consideration, it would be [illegible] the re[illegible] of the Council that he proposed to move four Clauses in substitution of the one Clause which the hon'ble mover of the Bill proposed to introduce by way of amendment. Those Clauses had since been in the hands of hon'ble members. In framing them, he (the Advocate-General) certainly proceeded on the principle that the right of the riparian proprietor to apply to the Collector for the purpose of having fresh access given to him to the river should not be limited to such period as the island or chur should continue in the possession of the Government as Government property. But it had since been stated to him, by an authority of much more knowledge than he could have on the subject, that practically, there could be a necessity of having this power to apply to the Collector for the construction of paths and roads, only during the time the island should remain in the immediate possession of Government. It had been found that, as regarded temporary settlements, the Government could always protect the interests of the adjoining proprietor by inserting a provision respecting the construction of such paths and means of access as might be necessary in consequence of the island becoming ultimately attached to the mainland. And when, after taking possession, the Government absolutely disposed of the island, he understood that hitherto it had been the practice in all such cases to leave the proprietor or proprietors of the riparian mainland, in the event of the island becoming attached, to make such settlement as they best could, and on such terms as they could, with the proprietor or proprietors to whom the Government had disposed of their interest in the island, and that no complaints had been made or difficulties arisen in consequence of that practice. And therefore, recurring to the limitation which the hon'ble mover of the Bill had inserted in the Section which he proposed, he (the Advocate-General) should move, as his first amendment in his motion, that what now stood in the printed paper as Clause (a) should be introduced with a slight alteration, which would make the Section run thus :—

"Whenever an island, possession of which shall have been taken by Government under Section III of this Act, shall become attached to the mainland, any person having an estate or interest in any part of the riparian mainland to which such island may become attached while it is in the possession of the Government, may apply to the Collector to take measures for the construction of paths and roads on the island."

The motion was agreed to.

The Advocate-General said, he then proposed, as he was informed that it was necessary for the protection of the Government that security should be given for the necessary expenditure in constructing the roads and paths applied for, to follow up the Section just carried by the following :—

"Thereupon the Collector may require the applicant to make such deposit of money as to the Collector shall seem sufficient, and on such deposit being made, the Collector shall proceed to lay out and construct such paths and roads in and through the island as he may deem necessary for securing access to the river or sea from the land to which the island may have become attached."

Baboo Ramanath Tagore said, that if the amendment became law, he feared that no zemindar would ever apply for the construction of a road when he knew that he should have to pay a certain sum of money for its construction, and the consequence would be, that the poor villagers would suffer by it, for they would be deprived of their ancient right to the river frontage, and the manifold advantages they derived from it. Was it reasonable or equitable that the poor villagers should be deprived of the access they had to the river from time immemorial, because the zemindar did not think proper to apply for a road?

Besides, he thought it was a false economy on the part of the Government to ask the zemindar to pay for the construction of roads, because it was certain that roads and canals were the chief means of promoting commerce and trade. He therefore thought it was the duty of the Government to encourage the construction of roads and canals, and whether the zemindar applied or not, it was the duty of the Government to incur the expense.

Under those circumstances, he was of opinion that this Clause, which required a deposit to be made by the zemindar, should not be inserted in the Bill.

Baboo Peary Chand Mittra said, the amendment before the Council might read very well on paper, but he very much feared that, practically, it would not be found a good working provision ; and for this reason, that the opening of roads was left to the application of the zemindar or riparian proprietor. The question was—would every zemindar, situated as a riparian proprietor, apply to the Collector for the construction of roads? It was possible that there might be large-minded zemindars who, for the good of their tenantry, might think of constructing roads at their own expense; but he doubted much whether, generally, any application of the kind would be made. He had that morning been told that no application of the kind had ever been made to the Board of Revenue, and therefore, if the construction of a path was made contingent on the application of the zemindar, the application would never be made, and the people would in consequence suffer. It was therefore necessary that due provision should be made, by which facilitates should be given for the construction of paths for the promotion of intercommunication and commerce, and the accommodation of the people inhabiting the adjacent places.

Mr. Knowles said, he certainly agreed with the last two speakers. He was certain that the last three Clauses of the amendment before the Council would make the present Section inoperative. In many cases not only would the applicant be benefited by the roads that would be constructed, but the public generally. It would therefore be hard to call on the applicant, not only to pay all the expenses, but to lodge them beforehand. He (Mr. Knowles) thought that, instead of the last three Clauses of the amendment, a short Clause should be introduced, providing that the costs should be divided between the applicant and the occupier of the new island, at the discretion of the Collector.

Mr. Thompson said, if it was the intention of the learned Advocate-General to press for the adoption of the third Section of the amendment, of which he had given notice, he (Mr. Thompson) would agree in the remarks of the last speaker.

He did not not think, under the circumstances, that any one would come forward and deposit money. But he belived it was intended to withdraw the third Section on the paper, which referred to the payment of compensation for taking up the land for the road. If the present motion was carried, the application would have to be made while the island was in the possession of Government. The land for the road would be given by the Government, and merely the expense of construction would fall on the applicant; and it seemed to him only a fair provision that the expenses necessary for carrying out the desire of the applicant, which was mainly for his own benefit, should be defrayed by him. If the third of the proposed Sections, providing for the payment of compensation for the land taken up for the construction of the road, was omitted, the expense would be considerably lessened, and the chief objections of some of the hon'ble members would cease. As long as the island was in the possession of the Government, they should, he thought, give the land for the public road. If the island was settled with sub-tenants, a Clause could be easily inserted by the Revenue Authorities that the settlement was made subject to the taking up of any land required for laying out roads, and all that would be required from the applicant would be a deposit of the sum required for constructing the road. He (Mr. Thompson) had been told that, practically, no difficulty had ever been found where an island had become attached to the mainland.. A truck across the chur always secured to the water, and soon became as serviceable as most roads in the Mofussil for public traffic.

Mr. Sutherland said, he thought the Clause obliging the riparian proprietor to apply for a road, and to deposit funds for its construction, must defeat the object in view. He was of opinion that the duty of providing roads should rest with the Government. It was sufficiently hard for the poor people to be suddenly shut out from the river; and as Government was the chief beneficiary in the transaction, he thought the expense should fall on it.

After some further conversation, the Section was passed after the following words had been added to the previous Section:—

"The costs thereof to be equally divided between the applicant and the Government."

The Advocate-General said, in moving the next Section, he thought it unnecessary to make any observations regarding the objections which had been taken, because by the amendment adopted, the expense to the extent of one-half was not to fall on the applicant. The first Section never intended to apply to the case of the continuation of public roads, which, in consequence of an island having become attached to the mainland, had become useless. He understood that the whole subject had reference to the case of the neighbouring proprietor, who, for his own purposes and benefit, required means of access to the river. As regarded other cases, where it was necessary to continue public roads that would not come under the Section, he presumed that in such cases such action as was necessary would be taken by the Government with regard to the general mode of improving the communications of the country. He understood the Section to apply to the case where, for reasons of his own, the neighbouring proprietor desired that he should have opened for him an acess across the chur to the river. He (the Advocate-General) thought it was quite concession enough that the expense of making the road or path should be divided between the Government and the applicant; and he thought it was only safe that the applicant should be required to make deposit to meet his moiety of the expense. The Section which he proposed ran thus:—

"In every case the applicant shall be liable to pay and make good to the Government one-half of the costs of laying out and constructing such paths and roads as aforesaid, and any moneys due from the applicant under the provisions of this Section, may be deducted and retained by the Collector out of the deposit so made by the applicant as aforesaid."

The motion was agreed to.

Section 6 and the preamble and title were agreed to.

The Council was adjourned to Saturday, the 6th June.

Agricultural Instruction in Normal Schools.

From W. S. Atkinson, Esq., Director of Public Instruction, to the Secretary to the Government of Bengal,—(No. 1726, dated the 18th April 1867.)

I have the honor to forward herewith, for the orders of Government, a letter dated 26th February, from Hurrymohun Mookerjee, submitting a plan for the introduction of agricultural instruction in Normal Schools, together with a copy of letter on the subject (No. 143, dated 15th April,) from the Inspector of Schools, Central Division. At present I have only to remark that I know of no one in the least degree competent to undertake the duty of organizing and carrying on a system of agricultural instruction such as is proposed by the Baboo, or any similar scheme. I shall not, however, lose sight of the subject, which is one of undoubted importance, and shall be prepared to take it up whenever a practicable plan can be devised which promises successful results.

From H. Woodrow, Esq., M. A., Inspector of Schools, Central Division, to the Director of Public Instruction,—(No. 143, dated the 15th April 1867.)

In forwarding my opinion on the accompanying proposal, it is proposed that there should be one Professor of Botany, and at each of these Normal Schools one teacher of the same subject, and that for the teacherships Normal School pupils should be appointed. I gather from this that the present teacher assumes that he will himself be the Professor, and he modestly leaves the Professor's salary undetermined. See letter of the 26th February.

The estimate of Rupees 392, as the expenditure arises from the omission of the Professor's salary, and from the assumption that the Calcutta Normal School can be taught without any expense whatever at the Botanical Gardens, which will not be possible. My objection to the plan is, that I know no one who would do for the post of Professor. Baboo Hurrymohun Mookerjee evidently expects the post, but he is disliked in his class, and in a recent case I would be obliged to say that I was much dissatisfied at his conduct. I am not myself sufficiently versed in Agricultural Science and Botany to give him an examination. I should, however, be much obliged if you would ask Mr. Clarke, when it suits his other arrangements, to come to Calcutta on duty and to give the Baboo a viva voce examination; or, if Mr. Clarke cannot come for several months, that he would send a set of questions to be answered in writing. The questions should be such as could be answered without hesitation, and without lately consulting books by a man who thinks himself fit to be the Professor of agricultural instruction, and who for three years has been set apart for the sole duty of teaching Botany and Agriculture at the Calcutta Normal School, and who for several years was a teacher of young mallies in the Botanical Gardens.

From Baboo Hurry Mohun Mookerjee, Seebpore, to the Hon'ble A. Eden, Secretary to the Government of Bengal,—(dated the 26th February 1867.)

Adverting to your letter No. 298 of date the 16th January 1866, I have the honor to submit herewith a plan for the introduction of agricultural instruction in the Normal Schools of Bengal for the consideration of His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal. The outlay necessary for the experiment is so small,* that I entertain a hope that His Honor will see fit to sanction its trial for a time to test the advantages likely to be derived from it.

A plan for agricultural Instruction in the Normal Schools of Bengal.

As there is no particular body among the natives to receive agricultural instruction, it is not necessary to establish a separate college or school for that purpose exclusively; it is desirable, however, to organize classes in certain schools.

2. At first it would be necessary to introduce agricultural instruction in the Normal Schools of Calcutta, Hoogbly, and Dacca to prepare a body of teachers.

3. For this purpose a Professor of agricultural instruction will be required, who will have to attend the three Normal Schools, and inspect the classes that are to be subsequently formed in other schools.

4. Under the Professor there should be three Assistants to act as teachers in the three Normal Schools. Successful students from the present agricultural class in the Calcutta Normal School may be employed on this work.

5. The lectures should be open to all and delivered in Bengal.

6. The subjects of study should be Botany, Agricultural Chemistry, Agriculture, and Horticulture.

7. It is desirable that at least ten students in each Normal School should be encouraged with an additional scholarship of 4 Rupees each. Such scholarships are to be awarded to the most proficient, and those who are naturally inclined to learn Agriculture. The cost on this account will amount to Rupees 120 monthly.

8. When these students become teachers, they should be entitled to an allowance of Rupees 20 monthly, in addition to the ordinary pay of a teacher. Their duty should be not only to teach their classes in Village Schools, but also to assist the native agriculturists with their advice whenever required.

9. There should be a piece of land attached to each school where an experimental garden may be laid out for the practice of the students, but since it is difficult to procure such a place in Calcutta, I suggest that the students of the Calcutta Normal School may be allowed to attend the Royal Botanical Garden for practical instruction. The amount required for their conveyance to the Botanic Garden will be about Rupees 20 monthly.

10. An experienced mallie acquainted with the Botanical names of plants should be appointed at the other two places, viz., Hooghly and Dacca, for teaching the ordinary routine of agricultural operation in the schools, and laying out gardens according to the plan to be suggested by the Professor of agricultural instruction.

11. Such mallies cannot be had under Rupees 20 each per month.

12. Two bullocks, one plough, some implements, and two labourers will have to be kept in each school-garden, and extra coolies may be required occasionally for agricultural purposes. The price of the two bullocks will be Rupees 50, a plough Rupees 12. The cost of keeping them 24 Rupees a month, and the pay of the two labourers Rupees 12 monthly.

13. The sale proceeds of the gardens will be deposited in the School Fund.

14. The necessary supplies of seeds and plants should be furnished to these gardens from the Royal Botanical Garden.

15. One important desideratum for these schools is a series of class books in Bengalee, containing the elementary principles and practice of Agriculture and Horticulture, Agricultural Chemistry and Botany, in separate volumes, the first of such series was published under the title of Krishi Durpan some time ago; measures should be adopted to bring out its continuation.

From T. Jones, Esq., Assistant Secretary to the Government of Bengal, to the Director of Public Instruction,—(No. 2423, dated Fort William, the 29th May 1867.)

I am directed to acknowledge the receipt of your letter, forwarding a proposal from Baboo Hurrymohun Mookerjee for the introduction of agricultural instruction in Normal Schools, and to state that it has been laid before the Lieutenant-Governor.

From H. L. Harrison, Esq., Junior Secretary to the Government of Bengal, to the Director of Public Instruction,—(No. 2593, dated Fort William, the 7th June 1867.)

In continuation of my letter No. 2423, dated 29th ultimo, I am directed to request that you will be so good as to submit a full report on the present system of teaching Agriculture in the Calcutta Normal School, and the result of the experiment. Information on these points is required to assist the Lieutenant-Governor in arriving at a conclusion as to the propriety of extending such agricultural classes.

From W. S. Atkinson, Esq., Director of Public Instruction, to the Secretary to the Government of Bengal,—(No. 1657, dated Fort William, the 7th April 1868.)

With reference to your No. 2593, dated 7th June 1867, calling for a report on the present system of teaching Agriculture in the Calcutta Normal School, I have the honor to submit, for the Lieutenant-Governor's information, a communication from Mr. Woodrow (with enclosure), dated 8th October 1867, No. A, which gives a full account of the so-called agricultural instruction imparted to our pupil teachers in Calcutta.

2. The whole subject of scientific Agriculture is so obscure and uncertain, and so foreign to the ordinary branches of education with which this department has to deal, that, though I feel the strongest personal interest in the questions connected with it, and in the natural sciences on which it relies, I find myself quite unable to offer any advise of a practical kind for the extension or improvement of what is now attempted. The simple fact is that we are in almost utter ignorance of the facts and principles which we are called upon to teach, and while this ignorance remains to demand that we shall supply such teaching in our schools, is only to insist that the blind shall lead the blind. I do not mean to say that what is now taught in the Normal School is altogether valueless; on the contrary I believe it is, or may be, extremely useful, as tending to awaken and interest the faculties of observation, which are far too much neglected in ordinary school instruction. In this respect, and to this extent, I consider the time devoted to Botany and Vegetable Physiology is well and usefully employed; but in respect to Agriculture proper, the lessons that are given are little likely to bring about any practical results.

3. The only officer of this department who has any practical knowledge of the art and science of Agriculture as pursued at the present day in England is Mr. Clarke, the Inspector of Schools for the South-East Division. He is also an accomplished Botanist, and when he was recently in Calcutta he was consulted on this question, and was requested to examine Baboo Hari Mahan Mukhopadhyáy of the Normal School, and test the extent and accuracy of his knowledge on the special subjects which he undertakes to teach. He complied with this request, and reported demi-officially as follows:—

"I examined Baboo Hurry Mohun Mookerjee at considerable length yesterday morning, and am happy to be able to report very favorably of his botanical attainments. I think he is as far advanced as you can fairly expect a Bengali to be, and in some respects he both surprised and pleased me. To proceed to details.

"He said at once that he could name every plant, both cultivated and wild, in this compound. And on trial I found he could name correctly all those which have prominent flowers. I could not name in that way one length of the cultivated plants myself. It is true that to name plants in this way is only an effort of memory and is not the slightest proof of any real botanical knowledge, but it is a most useful accomplishment in a botanist to know by sight a large number of plants; and it proves at all events that the Baboo has paid much attention to the subject for many years.

"The Baboo also, with a plant in his hand, explained, in answer to my enquiries, the differences between Convolvulaceæ and Acanthaceæ and gave his reasons for considering the plant in his hand, an Acanthad. This was genuine botanical knowledge. He also gave correctly the diagnosis of one or two prominent natural orders; but I should add that he appeared to say it off in rather a set way as though he was repeating the book and was calling to mind plants he had examined.

"The Baboo is very fairly up in the physiological part of the subject and has ground up the book-work carefully. His book, which is well thumbed, is Balfour's Text-book of 1849. There has taken place almost a revolution in the physiological part of the science since that date, so that the Baboo is not well up to the latest discoveries; this I think cannot be expected.

"In order to make my report not all rosy, and to put you as far as I can in the same position as myself for judging the Baboo's attainments, I record his worst blunder. He considered Cyperas rotundus (a sedge which I picked) to be a grass, and of the grasses themselves he appeared to know very little. Perhaps this was to be expected, as the Baboo has never possessed a microscope, nor even a pocket lens, (which he ought to have, and which would cost Rupees 2 or 3,) and consequently he has never been able to examine grasses and sedges which have minute flowers. But, contra, for a Professor of Agriculture, a knowledge of grasses and sedges is more important than all the rest of Botany put together. Also it is perfectly easy to distinguish a grass from a sedge without examining any minute characters. Also the particular sedge given the Baboo, viz., Cyperas rotundus is the pest of Bengal: it grows in every field and in every pasture in the whole kingdom; it is to pull up this that you see in April, May and June, the cultivators squatted each under his umbrella and patiently hand weeding his rice. And if the Baboo could find any way of exterminating, or even largely checking Cyperas rotundus, he would do more for Bengal Agriculture than all the lecturers and professors will do for the next century. Nevertheless, the Baboo knew nothing about this plant, but thought it was some grass.

"In conclusion I only repeat my first paragraph. I was on the whole much pleased with the Baboo: he knew far more than I had anticipated of him, and I think the gap between him and a good European botanist is not so great as that between the best Bengalee physician or mathematician, and a good English physician or mathematician. I had considerable conversation with the Baboo on Agriculture, concerning which I merely report that he has read the English books, which inculcate certain generally received theories.

"The reason I report no further is, that being myself a farmer and a florist, I am a total heretic with regard to Agriculture as taught by the scientific men. And it is my opinion, for instance, that in the art of growing rice we have very little indeed to teach the Bengalees. We may bring our engineering knowledge to bear in extending irrigation, &c., but this has nothing to do with Agriculture: and as to our agricultural shows with improved implements, &c., helping them, I am an utter sceptic: I therefore do not consider myself a fair examiner in Agriculture. The Baboo, for instance, was eloquent about manuring for rice. A thoroughly English notion. You can get corn much too strong (it is very easily and very commonly done in England, where the land is good) and spoil the yield, and I am sure that when there is a fair allowance of rain in Bengal, the rice stands as thick as it should, and that a very little manure would greatly diminish the yield. In England, on a piece of real sound land, I have known barley grown eighteen years in succession, without any manure, except in four or five years, when the barley looked not quite strong enough in the beginning of May; it had a bushel and a half of guano for the acre sown broadcast in showery weather. And this top dressing according to the scientific agriculturists is utterly good for nothing. There was an enormous crop in this field, every one of the eighteen years (never less than six quarters an acre), and a sample always above the average of the year. I believe in corn growing everything depends on having land really sound for corn. Then your crop never fails, and you can grow as many corn crops in succession as you please. There cannot be better proof of this than the way rice is grown without any rotation in Bengal,—a fact which always confuses the scientific agriculturists, and which he can only evade, never explain, for it completely disproves his three or four leading axioms. So in Scotland, with an abominable climate, the land in the Lothians and in part of Perth is so thoroughly sound for corn (or potatoes) that the Scotch farmers pay £4 and even £5 an acre rent, and their out-goings are nearly exactly the same as those of the British farmer (viz., labor, rates, taxes), who hardly ever pays more than 30*s.* an acre for arable.

4. With very much less knowledge of the subject, I have always entertained the same general opinions as those expressed by Mr. Clarke regarding the application of science to Agriculture; and in this country, at any rate, in which the conditions of soil and climate are utterly remote from those which obtain in the northern latitudes, where the subject has alone been studied, I believe an attempt to teach it would now be premature. If and whenever good books are written, inculcating principles and plans of operation, which stand the test of experience and prove of economic value, the Education Department will gladly do its part in making them known to the people through its schools and colleges. At the present time I believe our knowledge is in too crude a state to allow us to venture further than we have done already.

From H. WOODROW, Esq., Inspector of Schools, Central Division, to the Director of Public Instruction,—(No. A., dated Calcutta, the 8th October 1867.)

I REGRET that in forwarding a report on the present system of teaching Agriculture in the Calcutta Normal School, and the results of the experiment, my own knowledge of the subject is too scanty to enable me to do justice to it. I am therefore obliged to depend greatly on the opinion of others.

The class was examined in December 1865, by Baboo Digumber Mitter and Baboo Rajendra Lal Mitter, but these gentlemen did not send in any report. In December 1866, it was examined by the Reverend J. Long. His report is as follows :—"I have gone carefully over the 79 papers sent me on Vegetable Physiology, viz. :—

Hooghly	Normal School	....	....	....	34
Komilla	ditto	....	....	....	20
Calcutta	ditto	....	....	....	25

"While some of the papers were very meagre, and others were diffuse in their answers, not keeping to the direct line of the questions and insisting platitudes, yet I was much pleased with them as a whole, and some entered very fully into the questions of examination. My questions were framed more with the object of drawing at their interest in the subject than in testing each man's special acquaintance. In reading their answers, I have been so much impressed with the utility of the subject brought before those teachers, so important for rural schools, that I should like to see their answers next year made to tell on their standing in the Normal Schools. I shall, if you allow me, be happy to give next year a prize of Rupees 12 to the best paper on Vegetable Physiology, and Rupees 8 to the second best.

"The study must be of future use to the teachers in calling out their powers of observation on common things, and in teaching them to study such questions as manures in a scientific light."

(2.) I may remark that if Mr. Long had sent the marks, they would have been included in the marks of their respective schools. Though his remarks are general, yet they are on the whole satisfactory, and give a more favorable opinion of the knowledge of the students than I should myself have expressed. There is no stipend allowed in the Normal School for a teacher of Agriculture, but as the Bengali Patshalas, the practising school for the pupil teachers, and the two institutions, are held in one house, and much of the teaching of the Patshalas done by the Normal School, it did not seem improper to allow a master of the Patshala to teach in the Normal School. Baboo Hurry Mohun Mookerjee, an assistant master of the Patshala, on a salary of Rupees 20 a month, has been directed to teach Agriculture in the Calcutta Normal School. He is the only man on such a salary who has any knowledge of the subject. He does not, however, give full satisfaction, for he is not able to preserve discipline in his class, and there was an emeute of his pupils a few months ago. He was, in my opinion, so much to blame that he would have been dismissed had he been a regular teacher of the Normal School, but as he was a teacher of one special subject only, he was allowed the consideration given to French Masters and Drawing Masters in English Schools. On the whole, I am far from thinking him a successful teacher. He has written in Bengali a book on Agriculture, called the Krishi Durpan. I have read and epitomized about half of it, but it does not seem to me a good class book.

(3.) In his letter he attributes the want of sufficient success to the following causes :—

1st.—Only two hours in the week given to the study of the subject.

2nd.—No proper class books.

3rd.—No drawings, microscopes, or other appliances to teach the subject.

4th.—No prizes.

6th.—Want of sufficient means to send the pupils to the Botanical Gardens.

I will briefly consider these objections in the order in which they stand.

(1st.)—Two hours in the week for three years is equivalent to an hour a day for a year. This though not enough to make a student a good botanist, is as large a portion of time as can be spared for an extra subject. If duly improved, it would be sufficient to give the pupil teachers a fair knowledge of theoretical Agriculture and of the first principles of Botany.

(2nd.)—The want of proper class books is a real difficulty, and I strongly recommend that money be given liberally for the preparation of a graduated course of instruction in Agriculture.

(3rd.)—The want of drawings and microscopes was not brought to my notice before. They shall be supplied from the next library assignment, so far as the funds of the Normal School permit. There is already one microscope in the library available for the use of the masters and students.

(4th.)—Prizes are not given in the Normal School, their place being supplied by scholarships or competitive stipend.

(5th.)—The marks for Botany do not count in the general list, because this list contains the marks for subjects common to all the Normal Schools, and Botany is not common to all.

(6th.)—An assignment of 10 Rupees a month, or Rupees 120 a year, is allowed to take the students to the Botanical Gardens. Baboo Hurry Mohun Mookerjee says on this point "practical demonstrations in a public garden are of the utmost consequence, but owing to want of means only a small number of pupils can be sent to the Botanical Gardens at a time." Ten rupees a month, if properly expended on boats, ought to be enough. The teacher seems to think that a lavish expenditure is essential for efficiency; our students are all poor, and are accustomed to long walks at their native villages.

(4.) Of these six difficulties and hindrances the want of books is the greatest, and I trust that you will take measures to supply it. Drawings and microscopes I will purchase from time to time with the library allowance. Marks shall count in the different schools for Botany, but not in the general list as all schools do not and cannot study the subject. Prizes perhaps may be given, if liberal men like the Reverend J. Long can be found to provide them. I do not recommend in a school for general education that a longer time than two hours a week be given to Agriculture, or that more than 10 Rupees a month be allowed for boats to visit the Botanical Gardens.

(5.) The greatest difficulty of all is omitted by the teacher, and this is the utter want of interest in the subject on the part of the managers of our aided schools. One fact will prove this assertion. Since the Agricultural Class has been opened not one Aided School Committee has asked for a student who knows agricultural Botany. They frequently ask for students with special acquirements. Such as a good knowledge of Sanskrit, or of Bengal Grammar, or of Arithmetic, or of Geometry, but never once has mention been made of a good knowledge of agricultural Botany. The agricultural portion of the people have no faith in new inventions, and till they see with their own eyes that good arises from improved cultivation, and that it does not cost much, they will not interest themselves in the matter.

(6.) They may see the good results of proper cultivation at the Botanical Gardens, but they never think of resorting there for information, as they assume that the means employed are too expensive for them. Again, the market gardeners, who supply the Dhurrumtollah Bazar, sell excellent vegetables, and grow a series of good crops in never ending succession. Examples of first-rate cultivation, with lucrative results, may be seen in numerous gardens within ten miles of Calcutta. Improvement in Horticulture does not seem necessarily to cause improvement in Agriculture. It would, however, be worth while to enquire what these successful gardeners do with their rice fields, if they have any: and if it should appear that they get more from them than is got elsewhere, their improvements should be carefully set forth for general information.

7. Much good might be done, if some one able to handle the subject well could make a tour among these market gardens, and write a small book shewing what was originally the state of the land now cultivated as garden ground, how it was improved, and in what time and at what cost; what crops are now raised on it, in what succession and at what profit; what manures are employed, and how they are obtained or prepared.

(8.) On this information a tale might be written after the plan of the Book on Agriculture, published by the Commissioners of National Instruction in Ireland. The graduated course on Agriculture should contain three Manuals in order of difficulty. The first might be read in the village schools. I again urgently recommend that measures be taken to get such works prepared. The Reverend Mr. Ferminger of Gowhatty has the practical knowledge necessary for the preparation of such a work, and might for a sufficient inducement be willing to write it.

From BABOO HURRY MOHUN MOOKERJEE, to BABOO GOPAL CHUNDER BANERJEE, Head Master, Calcutta Normal School,—(dated Calcutta, the 9th July 1867.)

WITH reference to Mr. Junior Secretary Harrison's letter No. 2593, dated the 7th ultimo, communicated to me under cover of your endorsement No. 25 of the 22nd idem, I have the honor to report that the Agricultural Class of the Calcutta Normal School was opened in the month of June 1863. The pupils of all the three classes of the Normal School are admitted to this class, and are taught through the medium of lectures for an hour twice a week.

The subject of study in this class comprises Elementary Botany, Agriculture and Horticulture. The first is taught by lectures only, there being no class book available in Bengalee. The lectures, however, are so framed, and the points discussed are so illustrated by the exhibition of specimen, that the want of a class book is to some extent obviated. Opportunity is also availed of every Saturday to take the more advanced pupils to the Royal Botanical Gardens for practical instruction, both instructural and systematic Botany and Agriculture. The lectures on Horticulture and Agriculture are devoted to the study of soils, the modes of improving them, the manures best suited to this country, the system of propagating and multiplying plants, the effect of climate on vegetation, and such other subjects as are generally included under those two heads. In learning these subjects the boys have the aid of a small treatise published by me, and that of certain manuscript notes which are intended for publication, whenever sufficient encouragement shall offer. These notes treat of the whole subject of Agriculture.

The progress made by the boys in this branch of their study is on the whole satisfactory. Most of them have acquired a fair knowledge of the first principles of Agriculture, and enough of Botany to be able to carry on their study of it without further tutorial aid. The Examiners at the annual examinations have always expressed themselves satisfied with the knowledge acquired by the boys in these subjects.

The time has not yet come when the result of the experiment now being tried can be proved to be thoroughly satisfactory. The time allowed for the study of the three subjects taught by me is limited to only two hours a week, and owing to want of class works that cannot be aided by private study. The lectures themselves are necessarily imperfect, owing to the want of illustrative drawings, microscopes and other appliances, and the boys have no incentive to learn beyond a mere love of the subject. No prizes are given for proficiency, and the marks attained by the boys in Botany and Agriculture are not allowed to be counted as a part of the marks attained for general proficiency. Further, in such a practical science as Botany, practical demonstrations in a public garden are of the utmost consequence; but owing to want of means only a small number of pupils can be sent to the Botanical Garden at a time. These causes in a great measure interfere with the efficiency of the Agricultural Class, and in judging of its success, I beg that sufficient allowance may be made for these serious drawbacks.

From E. C. Bayley, Esq., Secretary to the Government of India, Home Department, to the Chief Commissioner, Central Provinces,—(No. 2197, dated Fort William, the 30th April 1868.)

I am directed to acknowledge the receipt of your Assistant Secretary's letter No. 1107-116, dated the 10th instant, and in reply to state that His Excellency the Governor General in Council requests you to convey his commendation to the Officers who have succeeded in establishing the School of Artizans at Raepore, and approves of the instructions issued by you to all Commissioners and Deputy Commissioners in the Central Provinces, with a view to the organization of similar Institutions in the other districts of the Central Provinces, and the instruction of prisoners in arts, such as those taught at the Raepore School.

From Lieutenant A. Bloomfield, Assistant Secretary to the Chief Commissioner of the Central Provinces, to E. C. Bayley, Esq., Secretary to the Government of India, Home Department,—(Nos. 1107-116, dated Nagpore, the 10th April 1868.)

I am directed to forward, for the favorable consideration of his Excellency the Viceroy and Governor General in Council, copies of the papers marginally noted, on the subject of the establishment and working of a School for artizans at Raepore, and the orders which have been issued by the Chief Commissioner, with a view to encourage the organization of similar Institutions in the other Districts of these Provinces and the instructions of prisoners in similar arts.

Letter from Secretary to the Chief Commissioner, Central Provinces, to Commissioner, Chutteesghur Division, Nos. 2895-259, dated 17th July 1867.
Half-yearly Report on the Raepore School for Artizans, dated 30th June 1867.
Circular No. 32, dated 10th April 1868, addressed to all Commissioners and Deputy Commissioners.

2. I am to express Mr. Campbell's hope that the Supreme Government may be pleased to confer special commendation on the Officers who have succeeded in establishing the Raepore School, and that the remarks and orders which have been issued by the Chief Commissioner on the subject may meet with approval.

3. I am to add that Mr. Campbell has a very strong feeling as regards trades most frequently taught in Jails. The present practice is to instruct the prisoners in fine trades, such as weaving, &c., which require machinery, and which are never practised for a day after release; whereas, if a man is made a good bricklayer or carpenter, he can easily earn handsome wages and has little temptation to relapse into crime.

From the Secretary to the Chief Commissioner of the Central Provinces, to the Commissioner of the Chutteesghur Division,—(Nos. 2895-259, dated Nagpore, the 7th July 1867.)

I am directed to acknowledge the receipt of your letter No. 2482, dated 11th July, forwarding Captain Lugard's report upon the working of the Artizans' School at Raepore.

The Officiating Chief Commissioner has perused the report with much interest. He fully concurs in your estimate of the usefulness of the Institution; and he considers that much credit is due to Captain Lugard, who founded the School, and to whose tact and care its success is undoubtedly due.

Mr. Morris trusts that Captain Lugard will endeavor to establish a similar School at Belaspore, whither he has now gone. He is sure that no efforts will be wanting on the part of Captain Twyford to further the interests of the School, which has now, the Officiating Chief Commissioner hopes, been firmly established at Raepore.

As the subject of Captain Lugard's report is of much general interest, its publication as a supplement to the local Gazette has been ordered.

From Captain H. I. Lugard, Assistant Commissioner, to the Deputy Commissioner, Raepore.

Agreeably to your suggestion I have the honor to submit the following report on the working of the Raepore School for Artizans for the half-year ending 30th June 1867; and this being the first report on the School, I would premise it with a few remarks showing how the School came to be established, and the means taken for its establishment.

Want of skilled labor.

The Nagpore Exhibition first opened my eyes to the lamentable want of manufactures in the District, and the census showed me that in the whole District there were only about 200 carpenters, and a proportionate number of other skilled artizans; while in the Nagpore, Jubbulpore, and Nerbudda Divisions, they were numbered by thousands; and again, when wells were begun to be dug all over the District the want of means was severely felt. It was evident that the subject required to be taken in hand, and accordingly a scheme was submitted to the Chief Commissioner for the opening of a Central School for the instruction of artizans in carpentery, pottery, masonry, and iron work. The scheme was approved of by Mr. Temple, and a grant allowed from Local Funds of the Raepore and Belaspore Districts, and premises were placed at the disposal of the Committee.

Means taken to remedy evils.

The scheme, as it originally stood, was that malgoozars should be induced to send in their carpenters, lohars, potters for six months' instructions, supplying them with food the while, and that we should provide tools, materials, and instructors, and reap the benefit of any work they might turn out.

Details of original scheme.

But in carrying this scheme on to a practical issue, it was found that the following difficulties arose:—

Obstructions.

1*st.*—Malgoozars could not spare their existing carpenters and lohars and potters for six months.

2*nd.*—The men themselves had received their annual supply of grain, and could not afford to bring it in, and had no place to store it, and could not afford house rent.

3*rd.*—The premises placed at our disposal was the old Jail, and the men did not care to come to it.

4*th.*—The few who did come were so old and decrepid as to admit of no hope of their improving to any material extent.

To obviate these difficulties, we were obliged to alter the scheme as follows:—

Remedial measures.

1*st.*—Instead of getting in the village artizans, we sent for young ordinary laborers and taught them de novo.

2*nd.*—We paid them two annas a day subsistence allowance.

3*rd.*—We white-washed the walls of the old Jail and wrote on them in large letters in Hindee—"Schools for Artizans."

4*th.*—We quietly dismissed the decrepid old artizans and kept none but lusty and young men.

The effect of this change in our plans was soon apparent, pupils have flocked in; and now that they find their subsistence allowance regular, and that their wants are all cared for, they are only too ready to stay, and we could get any number.

Having thus briefly sketched the origin and establishment of the Institution, I will now proceed to treat of its present state, and in doing so I would divide the subject into the following heads:—

Present state of the Institution.

1*st.*—Popularity of the scheme.
2*nd.*—Financial condition.
3*rd.*—Administration.
4*th.*—Stock, &c.
5*th.*—Market for sale, &c.
6*th.*—Details of School.
7*th.*—Conclusion.

From the first the malgoozars of the District have warmly supported the scheme. They had but one artizan to about 20 villages, and they wanted one at least to every ordinary village. They were slightly lukewarm when told to send in their artizans; but when the original plan was modified and laborers only were called for they were delighted. They wanted to increase the number, not to improve the efficiency, of their artizans, and they saw that by the present arrangement their object would be attained. They all subscribed willingly; and when they came into the Sudder, to attend the sale of waste lands, they came in large numbers with the Deputy Commissioner to visit the School, and professed great interest in it. The European community also exhibit considerable interest to the institution, especially in the pottery branch.

1*st.*—Popularity of the scheme.

The financial condition of the School is very prosperous. Subscriptions have flowed in freely, and with the assistance of the authorized aid grants from Local Funds a sum of Rupees 2,448-6-6 has been collected as shown below. A large portion of this has been judiciously laid out in the purchase of timber during the last six months, when timber was cheap and plentiful. Already the value of this timber has increased two-fold, and there is every probability that ere six months more have elapsed it will increase four-fold; a large sum has of course been expended in tools and also in the establishment and commencement of work in the pottery branch. The following statement shows the present condition of cash account:—

leaving a balance of cash in hand amounting to Rupees 276-7-11: and this balance is continually increasing as the stock gets used up and charged off at the market rates, and thus a surplus fund is formed for the purchase of fresh stock when timber becomes cheap again in January or February next. In this manner it is proposed gradually to make the Institution self-supporting. The stock which in our accounts represents a sum of Rupees 1,200 is in reality worth at the present moment at market rates upwards of Rupees 3,500. The teak timber, which was bought at less than 8 annas a cubic foot, is worth a Rupee a foot; the bamboos which were bought at Rupees 3 a 100, are now not to be had for Rupees 12 a 100, and so on. The apprentices are now engaged on all kinds of work, and their pay is charged against the work on which they are employed. The labor of the 1st and 2nd classes is very cheap at two annas a day; that of the 3rd class is fair; and that of the 4th class, who are only beginning to handle the bussola, is rather dear; but on the whole, the labor of the apprentices is fairly remunerative. It does not form an item in the debit and credit account, because, as I stated above, their labor is charged against the work on which they are employed.

3rd.—Administration.

A sketch of the original scheme, and of the modifications since introduced, has been given in the 2nd and 3rd paragraphs of this report, it only remains to notice the minor details of administration. The premises were placed at my disposal on the 20th February 1867, and I secured the services of Mr. Parker, the late Jailor of Raepore, as Superintendent, on Rupees 50 per mensem. Mr. Parker is a first-rate mechanic, both in the carpentering and smith's line, but he was discontented with the pay, and I found he neglected the pupils, to make up fancy-work of his own for private sale. I therefore got rid of him and kept the immediate supervision in my own hands. A Native maistry on Rupees 15, and eight experienced Native carpenters, constitute my present staff of instructors, and their pay is charged against the work turned out. The pupils learning carpentry are divided into four classes, and each class occupies a separate compartment of the long barrack. The 1st class is taught by the maistry himself and one carpenter, the 2nd class is instructed by two old carpenters; the 3rd class by two old carpenters; and the 4th class, which is by far the most numerous by three old carpenters. A tool chest is provided for each class except the 4th, the pupils of which are all furnished with the bussola or adze. A daily register of attendance and of work done is kept up, and the pupils are encouraged to compete with each other for advancement into the higher classes.

On the first establishment of the School I wrote to Dr. Hunter at Madras to send me an instructor in pottery, but unfortunately he had proceeded on a tour towards Lahore, and consequently I did not get the pottery instructor till the end of May. A class of eight pupils was at once started; a pit for the mixing and tempering of the clay was built, and the men were taught first of all to choose and mix their own clay; a number of Native potters were also employed and taught improved methods of manufacture of tiles, bricks, &c. Letters were written to the Tehsildars and the Native gentlemen of the District, requesting their assistance in the search for good clays, porcelain earths, and granite, quartz, felspar, flint for mixing with the clay;—and some degree of success has already crowned our efforts in the space of only one month; we have found quartz, flint, colored earths, kaolin, and clays in abundance, and are now turning out rather superior ware. The young pupils are beginning to be taught to use the wheel, and to work on the bench in a proper manner, and as they progress fresh classes will be formed.

Mr. Jones, the pottery instructor, has brought up a number of useful books with him, and with the aid of these some degree of supervision and control is kept over the work.

The smiths are taught to make up tools in the country fashion, so that hereafter when the young carpenters go out to their villages they may have men who can make up fresh tools for them or mend old ones without their being put to the trouble and expense of coming into head-quarters.

All the building work required within the premises, such as construction of pits, furnaces, alterations of building, &c., are done with the assistance of the apprentices, so that they may learn to build; and the tiles of all the barracks were turned to teach them that art, and thus every occasion is taken to make them eventually handy and able artizans.

Stock, &c.

Appended is a statement of the receipts and issues of stock during June, which shows also the balances in hand at the close of the month, and which may be roughly valued at Rupees 3,500. Column 3 of the statement shows the purchases made of timber, &c., and also the work-turned out in the pottery department; column 5 the amount of materials expended and charged off. Almost all the thatching grass and kakurs have been expended in making huts for the apprentices, as we found that unless we took care of them and made them comfortable they invariably absconded after a few days. For the keeping of the accounts of this stock a Store-keeper is employed, who keeps a daily register of receipts and issues, besides keeping muster rolls of attendance of pupils and record of work done.

Market for sale

It was argued by many at the time our School was started that we should never find a market for the goods we manufactured, but experience has proved the contrary,—we cannot meet the demand for produce. Raepore such a rising town, and the District is emerging so rapidly from a condition of poverty to comparative affluence that the demand for skilled labor is unlimited. Hitherto we have only worked for Local Committee and the Government Departments, such as Police, Educational, &c. There are still 16 Village Schools to be built, the whole of the wood-work of which will have to be made up in our School, and the tiles will be made by potters sent from the School. There is a new Zillah School-house to be built, and many other jobs are in prospective view; and besides this, ⅔ths of the town of Raepore is still in a primitive state of grass thatch, and it will be necessary to introduce tiles; and when that is done we can still advertize for private orders, and I believe the orders we may fairly except will be as much, or more than we can meet. The general opinion of the European community is now completely changed on this point, and all agreed in acknowledging that the demand is apparently far above our means of supply.

Details of School, capabilities of pupils, &c.

Some pupils show a great deal more aptitude than others, and seem intuitively to learn how to handle their tools correctly. The 1st class, consisting of 10 pupils, has now been under instruction for four months. They can use the bussola, plane, saw, chisel, and gimlet, freely. They can join boards together for a panel door. They can make ordinary boxes, and all such work. They are now to be shown how to make up agricultural implements and carts and wheels, and then their education will be complete as far as this School is designed to supply it; they will then have the option either of becoming Pupil Teachers for another six months on an increased rate of pay and be taught turning, &c., or be established in some village by a written covenant of agreement with a malgoozar; in the latter case, or whenever they leave the Institution with credit, it is proposed to supply them with a set of tools gratis to start them in life, and for this purpose 30 sets of tools have been written for from England as a commencement. The 2nd class of 15 pupils are but little behind the 1st, several who are not quite so sharp have fallen back into the 2nd class; they can use the bussola well, and are still learning to use the plane and saw. The 3rd class of 15 pupils are only beginning to be taught the use of the plane; they can dress a board along a marked line with the bussola. The 4th class of 55 pupils are still learning to handle the bussola. In the pottery department the pupils, 8 in number, have only been under instruction during June; they know how to mix the earth and prepare it for the wheel, and one or two of them are being gradually taught to use the wheel. Several Native potters are also in employ in making tiles, for which there is a great demand. The apprentices are their assistants, and are also occasionally put to work at the wheel for a few minutes to bring their hands into it. The iron smith's apprentices are acting as assistants to three smiths in regular employ; they can do little yet, except weld small pieces of iron for the tools, which the smiths afterwards finish off.

The School hours are 6 to 11 A. M. and from 2 to 5 P. M.; no work is allowed on Sundays, but the apprentices get their subsistence allowance all the same. Pay is disbursed to them every eighth day, at Rupee one per pupil. I have had a line of huts constructed along the outer face of the west wall of the enclosure for the pupils; and have given them Native vegetable seeds to sow in the vicinity of their huts, and they seem to appreciate it.

Conclusion

In conclusion I have but little to add. I can offer no opinion on the utility or otherwise of my own work; but the general idea of the Zemidars and Malgoozars who visited the School appeared to be that it would be a source of immense benefit to the District in general; and the scheme is capable of great extension. As funds will allow, distinct branches of manufacture, such as paper-making, engraving, book-binding, &c., might be introduced; and, as proposed by Captain Twyford, a lithographic press might be set up, and a vernacular newspaper for circulation in the district might be started with great advantage.

Very much good was done to the cause of the Institution by the visits paid by Captain Twyford with the Zemindars and Malgoozars, when he took the trouble to explain the object and aim of the School to them, and invited their co-operation. In fact, from that date the Institution may be said to have become fairly established on its professed principles, viz., "the good-will and hearty co-operation of the landed proprietors."

From LIEUTENANT A. BLOOMFIELD, Assistant Secretary to the Chief Commissioner of the Central Provinces, to all Commissioners and Deputy Commissioners, Central Provinces, —(Circular No. 32, dated Nagpore, the 10th April 1868.)

Letter from Secretary to the Chief Commissioner, Central Provinces, to Commissioner, Chuttesghur Division, Nos. 2895-259, dated 11th July 1867.

Half-yearly report on the Raepore School for artizans, 30th June 1867.

Published in supplement to Central Provinces Gazette of 3rd August 1867, copies attached for facility of reference.

I am directed to draw your attention to the papers marginally noted on the subject of the establishment and working of the School of Artizans at Raepore, and, with with reference thereto, to communicate the following orders and observations.

2. Since the above account of the Raepore School was published, the Chief Commissioner has made enquiries as to the progress and present state of the Institution, and has had great satisfaction in finding that the School has been productive of much good in the neighbourhood, and is in a state very creditable to the Officers who have supervised it. Of persons ignorant of the arts, 147 carpenters, 30 blacksmiths, and 156 potters, chiefly residents of villages more or less distant from Raepore, have been instructed sufficiently to enable them to earn their living by their respective trades. The artizans of Raepore itself have been benefitted by the Institution, a great number of them having been employed and instructed in their respective arts.

3. The manner in which these results have been obtained commends itself to the Chief Commissioner. First of all, youths were invited in from the villages and instructed in the most simple parts of the trades; the rough work thus done by the apprentices, as they are called, was finished up, and put into a saleable form by hired skilled workmen from the town, aided by the advice of the supervising Officer. For the articles thus made, there soon sprung up a demand which increased to such an extent that it became necessary to entertain a large number of skilled workmen from the town itself. But in the course of a few months after admission, many of the apprentices became fairly expert at their work; and while some took the place of skilled workmen, others left the Institution to earn their livelihood in their native villages.

4. The demand for work turned out by the carpenter's department of the School has been very great, and the blacksmith's department has been chiefly employed in making fittings for the wood-work. The apprentices generally prefer working in the carpenter's department; but the labor of those employed on iron work has been found to be more remunerative, owing, it is said, to the fact that it requires but little practice to make a man fairly efficient at the bellows or the hammer.

5. The pottery department of the School was designed for the production of superior wares to those made in the country, and for this purpose specimens of clay, stones, and minerals were collected from all parts of the district. Many of the materials thus obtained have been found to be far superior to that formerly in use, and already an improved description of ware has been manufactured. Glazing has also been introduced. In nothing is there so much room for improvement by simple means as in native pottery. Masonry work is, perhaps the easiest of all to teach, but it may be difficult to teach it in a School if building is not going on in the neighbourhood. At Stations, however, where (as is generally the case) there is much public building, boys might easily be apprenticed and taught in connection with the School,—School workmen being sent out with these boys to do work for the Public Works Department or other employers of labor.

6. Mr. Campbell thinks that practical Schools for artizans, carpenters, blacksmiths, masons, and potters, of the kind now so successfully established at Raepore, are likely to be of more use, and are certainly better adapted to the present wants of the Province than more advanced Schools devoted exclusively to art instruction.

7. In many parts of the country there is still a great want of artizans of every description, the demand for this class of labour is daily out-stripping the supply. As a necessary consequence, its price has risen in a degree which only a few years ago would have been considered out of all proportion. Moreover, there is a great difficulty in breaking through caste monopolies, which prevent men desirous of improving themselves and advancing their families from embarking in fresh trades or in apprenticing their children to occupations which were not followed by their fathers.

8. These wants would probably, to some extent, be supplied by the establishment of Schools similar to that under notice, and Mr. Campbell would strongly commend the example set by Raepore to other districts, especially to Nagpore and Jubbulpore, in the former of which furniture for instance is much wanted, while at the latter there is very superior clay for pottery. Both at Jubbulpore and Saugor there is a demand for artizans far exceeding the supply. Indeed, it has been found necessary to import men from great distances to carry on the Military works now under construction at Saugor and elsewhere.

9. I am here to repeat what Mr. Campbell has already remarked, that the handicrafts alluded to above are those which it is most useful to teach in Jails, with a view to rendering the released prisoners useful members of society; and I am to express the Chief Commissioner's hope that this matter will have the attention of all Deputy Commissioners and Jail Officers. If Schools for artizans, such as that at Raepore, can be got up outside (and Mr. Campbell hopes they will), instructed prisoners might then, after release, be for a time employed with every great benefit in artizan Schools. In some cases, possibly towards the end of their terms, partial tickets of leave might be given to meritorious prisoners, and they might be employed in the Schools as a kind of intermediate stage before going out quite independent into the world.

Southern portion of Hastings to be subject to Calcutta Municipal Acts.

I. From and after the commencement of this Act all that portion of Hastings, formerly called Cooley Bazar, which is situate to the Southward of Clyde Row, shall be, and shall be deemed to be, a portion of the Town of Calcutta, and all the provisions in the several Acts and portions of Acts in the Schedule hereto set forth, shall apply thereto so far as the the same respectively may for the time being be in force in the Town of Calcutta, anything contained in Section XXII of Act IX of 1867, passed by the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal in Council, to the contrary notwithstanding.

Commencement of Act.

II. This Act shall commence and take effect upon the first day of July 1868.

Construction.

III. This Act shall be read with and as part of Act VI of 1863, passed by the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal in Council, entitled an Act to vest the property of the Town of Calcutta and the management of its Municipal affairs in a Corporation, and to make better provision for the Conservancy and Improvement of the Town, and for the levying of rates and taxes therein.

Short Title.

IV. This Act shall be called "The Hastings Act, 1868."

SCHEDULE.

No. of Act.	Title of Act.	How far applicable.
Act VI of 1863, (B. C.)	An Act to vest the property of the Town of Calcutta and the management of its Municipal affairs in a Corporation, and to make better provision for the Conservancy and Improvement of the Town, and for the levying of rates and taxes therein	The whole Act save so far as modified by subsequent Acts.
Act VI of 1866, (B. C.)	An Act to amend Act VI of 1863, passed by the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal in Council
Act I of 1867, (B. C.)	An Act to explain and amend Act VI of 1863, of the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal in Council
Act IX of 1867, (B. C.)	An Act to amend Act VI of 1863, and Act VI of 1866 passed by the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal in Council	The whole Act except Section XXII.
Act XI of 1867, (B. C.)	An Act to provide from rates to be levied in the Town of Calcutta the expense of the Police of that Town, and to enable the Corporation of the Justices of the Peace for the Town of Calcutta to apply a portion of the Municipal Fund of the said Town for the support of a Pauper Hospital	The whole Act.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

The land included in Hastings, late Cooley Bazar, belongs to Government, and house-proprietors pay only a small rent for the land held by them.

Up to the present time the whole cost of the Police, as also all expenses connected with conservancy arrangements, repairs of roads, and lighting of the streets, have been borne by Government, and neither the house-owners or residents of Hastings have contributed towards such expenditure.

As the Government of India will not in future defray these charges from Imperial Funds, and as there does not appear to be any valid reason why Hastings should enjoy a special immunity from taxation for local purposes, it is proposed by this Bill to subject Hastings to the Municipal laws and taxes which now prevail in Calcutta.

The following Order issued by the Government of India, in the Foreign Department, is re-published for general information:—

Extract from the Proceedings of the Government of India, in the Foreign Department.

No. 578.—Notification.—Political—Simla, the 8th June 1868.—Read again the undermentioned papers regarding the levy of Nuzzerana on successions to Native States and Chieftships in India:—

Despatch from Secretary of State, dated 30th April 1867, No. 74.

Political Proceedings A., June 1867, No. 64.

Read reply from Secretary of State, dated 8th April No. 63.

OBSERVATIONS.—In reviewing certain correspondence between the Government of India and the Government of Bombay, regarding the jaghirs of the Vinchoorkur family, the Secretary of State in his Despatch No. 74, dated 30th April 1867, suggested that definite principles and rules should be laid down for the levy of Nuzzerana on successions to Native States, Chieftships, and Political Jaghirs.

2. After consulting subordinate Governments and Political Officers throughout India, a series of rules was framed by order of His Excellency the Viceroy and Governor General in Council, and forwarded for the consideration of Her Majesty's Government, who have now approved and sanctioned the principle of the rules, but have suggested some slight modifications in the expediency of which His Excellency in Council concurs. The rules have, therefore, been amended and now stand as follows:—

Rules for the levy of "Nuzzerana" on successions to Native States and Chieftships in India.

I.—Nuzzerana shall be levied on successions in all Native States and Chieftships in India at the rates specified, subject to the exceptions hereinafter mentioned.

II.—In successions in the direct line, that is to say, where the son succeeds his father, or the grandson his grandfather, and the like, Nuzzerana shall be levied to an amount equivalent to one-half of the year's revenue of the State or Chieftship.

III.—In successions by collaterals, that is to say, by brothers, nephews, cousins, and the like; and in successions by adopted heirs; Nuzzerana shall be levied to an amount equivalent to one year's revenue of the State or Chieftship.

Exceptions.

The above prescribed Nuzzerana on successions shall not be levied in the classes of cases hereinbelow stated:—

1st.—States and Chieftships between which and the British Government Treaties exist, or which are held under Treaty Engagements.

2nd.—States and Chieftships which already pay an annual Nuzzerana or tribute in any shape, save in cases where the said annual Nuzzerana shall be less than ten per cent. of the ordinary revenue, in which event, the Nuzzerana on succession shall be levied and calculated on the net revenue, less the annual Nuzzerana.

3rd.—States and Chiefships where a Nuzzerana on successions is already levied, and fixed by existing arrangements as to amount.

4th.—Cases where the succession shall have followed within one year after the last preceding succession, in which event no Nuzzerana shall be levied; and cases where the succession shall have followed within two years of the last preceding succession, in which event the Nuzzerana shall be remitted in part or in whole according to the discretion of the Local Government.

Resolution.—His Excellency the Viceroy and Governor General in Council is pleased to resolve that the above Rules, which apply to Political holdings, be now promulgated for general information and guidance. All Governments, Administrations, and Political Officers will submit a Return of Chiefs within their respective jurisdiction, showing their position to the Rules in the subjoined form:—

Name of Chief or State.	Subject to the Rules.	Subject to the Exceptions.			Remarks.
		Exception 1.	Exception 2.	Exception 3.
					Here state what the existing arrangements are.

4. With regard to estates situated within British territory, but not held by a Political tenure, and by whatsoever designation known, whether as Jaghires, Inams, Maafees, and the like, His Excellency in Council proposes to exempt these, save in cases where, under special or exceptional circumstances, the Local Governments should decide that Nuzzerana ought to be levied. In many parts of India these tenures have been strictly examined during British rule, and have been confirmed generally, at a lower rate of assessment than the holders enjoyed under the Native Government. In these cases, therefore, the levy of Nuzzerana as a general rule would be inexpedient. There may, however, be cases in some parts of India in which the assessments which the holders of these estates are permitted to realize, have never been reduced in amount, or in which the estates may be held under such conditions as would fairly justify the levy of Nuzzerana on successions. His Excellency in Council, therefore, proposes that the Local Governments should have the power to levy Nuzzerana in particular cases of classes of cases in which they may deem such a measure to be proper.

5. The Secretary of State has suggested that this question should be disposed of in the Revenue Department, and measures will now be taken accordingly to give effect to the wishes of Her Majesty's Government.

Order.—Ordered, that copy of the foregoing Resolution be forwarded to all Governments, Administrations, and Political Officers under this Department for information and guidance, with a request that, as regards the tenures specified in paragraph 4, they will report definitively the circumstances under which it may be considered expedient to employ Local Governments to levy Nuzzerana.

Ordered also, that copies of the Resolution, and of the reply from the Bombay Government which discusses to some extent the question as it bears on jaghires in British territory be transmitted to the Home Department for consideration and further orders as respects jaghires, &c., in those territories of which the revenue administration is controlled in the Home Department; and with the intimation that, in order to ensure the utmost attainable degree of uniformity, His Excellency in Council desires that the Home and Foreign Departments should freely communicate with each other before final rules are issued from either Department.

Ordered further, that a copy of the Resolution be sent to the Financial Department for information, together with extract of paragraph 14 from the Despatch of Her Majesty's Government, No. 74, dated 30th April 1861.

The following Orders issued by the Government of India, in the Military Department, are published for general information:—

No. 532.—Simla, the 4th June 1863.—Government having accepted the liabilities and assumed the assets of the Service Funds at the three Presidencies, as specified in the margin, the Right Hon'ble the Governor General in Council is pleased to direct that the business of these Funds shall, until further orders, be administered under the general supervision of the Military Account Department in the following manner:—

1. Military and Orphan Funds, Bombay.
2. Military and Orphan Funds, Madras.
3. Military Fund, Bengal.
4. Military Orphan Fund, Bengal.
5. Medical Retiring Fund, Bengal.

2. In Bengal, the present Secretaries to the Military Orphan Funds, who are in future to be respectively designated Treasurer and Assistant Treasurer of Fund Accounts, will carry on the duties connected with these Funds,—and with the Bengal Medical Retiring Fund,—comprising the individual accounts with members of the Funds, the payments to them under the rules, the recoveries from them, &c.,—subject to the supervision of the Controller of Military Accounts, through whom all orders of Government will be communicated and all accounts submitted.

3. In Madras, the Secretary to the Military and Orphan Funds will in like manner, conduct the duties as heretofore, subject to the orders of the Controller of Military Accounts, through whom all orders of the Madras Government will be communicated and all accounts submitted.

4. In Bombay, the present Secretary to the Military and Orphan Funds will similarly administer the Funds under the orders of the Bombay Government, communicated through the Controller of Military Accounts, through whom also all accounts should be submitted.

5. In pursuance of these arrangements the Boards of Directors or General Management, who hitherto presided over and controlled the affairs of these Institutions are now abolished, but the Directors of the Military Orphan Fund in Bengal are solicited to act for the present as a standing Committee, for the purpose of aiding Government with their opinions and recommendations on points connected with the Orphan Fund which may arise, until it can be finally determined what modification of the existing system and arrangement will be most expedient.

6. It will, however, be unnecessary to appoint any new members to this Committee, unless the number should fall below three, or unless the Government should see fit.

7. The charges for the Secretaries of the Funds and for the Office Establishments, which it may be found necessary to retain, will appear in the Military Estimates and Accounts; the remaining charges, including all payments from the Funds, as well as the receipts or subscriptions that may be realized, will appear in the Civil Estimates, and be adjusted in the Civil Accounts.

8. Funds for the payments will be provided by the Civil Department, but the responsibility for promptly realizing subscriptions and donations will rest with the Officers more directly charged with the conduct of the duties of the Military Funds Department, who will be required to submit annually to their respective Governments, through the Controllers of Military Accounts, a report on the outstandings, distinguishing such as may be unduly in arrear.

9. On an Officer' proceeding to England, the Last Pay Certificate granted to him by the Military Account Department will be required to exhibit the state of his account with the Funds to which he subscribes.

No. 546.—The 5th June 1868.—The undermentioned Sub-Assistant Surgeons are permitted to resign their appointments as Sub-Assistant Surgeons:—

No. 559.—With the sanction of Her Majesty's Government, His Excellency the Governor General in Council is pleased to authorize certain modifications in the organization of the Subordinate Medical Department in Her Majesty's Indian Service, and to lay down a revised and enhanced scale of pay and pensions for that Department.

2. The system heretofore existing in the Bengal and Bombay Presidencies, under which the purveying duties were performed by the Medical Subordinates, will cease; and these duties will be undertaken, as has heretofore been the practice in the Madras Presidency, by the Commissariat Department, through the agency of a body of Hospital Purveyors.

3. The grade of Hospital Steward, which was constituted for these purveying duties, will be abolished. All the existing members of that grade, who have passed or may be able within six months to pass the examination to qualify them for the grade of Apothecary, will be admitted into the latter grade if they desire it.

4. Those who are unable to qualify themselves by passing the prescribed examination within the given time, or who may not desire to enter the Apothecary grade, will be allowed the retiring pension of their grade, as Hospital Steward, without reference to their length of service; or if they have served fifteen years, the invalid pay of their grade, should they prefer remaining in India.

5. The body of Hospital Purveyors will be divided into three classes in the following proportions, and on the scale of pay specified:—

The 1st Class, one-eighth of the total number, at Rupees 45 per mensem.

Second Class, three-eighths of the total number, at Rupees 30 per mensem.

Third Class, one-half of the total number, at Rupees 20 per mensem.

6. The Subordinate Medical Establishments at the three Presidencies will be divided into two classes,—

The first to be designated the "Apothecary" class for general employment with European Troops, Hospitals, Depôts, &c., including the Subordinate Medical Department in Bengal, the corresponding portion of the medical establishment in Madras, and the Warrant Medical Officers and Apprentices in Bombay.

The second to be designated the "Hospital Assistant" class for general duty with Native Troops and Native Civil Hospitals, including present "Native Doctors" in Bengal, "Dressers" in Madras, and "Hospital Assistants" in Bombay.

7. The "Apothecary" class will consist of—

Senior Apothecaries (in the proportion of one-tenth of the effective establishment of Apothecaries.) But for the next ten years the number now allowed to each Presidency will not, under any circumstances, be reduced.

Apothecaries: 1st Class (after 5 years' service as Apothecary). 2nd Class (below 5 years' service as Apothecary).

Assistant Apothecaries: 1st Class (after 5 years' service as Assistant Apothecary). 2nd Class (below 5 years' service as Assistant Apothecary).

Passed Hospital Apprentices.

Hospital Apprentices.

8. All these grades, with the exception of the Hospital Apprentices, will hold the rank of Warrant Officers, and receive warrants which will give them a rank above all Non-Commissioned Officers.

9. Passed Hospital Apprentices, when in subordinate medical charge of a body of troops, will have temporary warrant rank as Assistant Apothecaries whilst so employed.

10. The grade of Honorary Assistant Surgeon will form no portion of the regular Medical Subordinate Establishment, but will continue to be given specially to those deemed worthy of the distinction as heretofore. When a Medical Warrant Officer attains this honorary rank, he will no longer be employed as a medical subordinate with a regiment, or corresponding body of European Troops, and will be supernumerary to the fixed establishment.

11. The strength of the "Apothecary" class of the general Presidencies will be fixed by the respective Governments, subject to the approval of the Government of India on the following basis.

12. The effective strength will comprise the members of the several grades actually necessary for the duties with European Troops regimentally and in station hospitals, with depôts, sanitaria, and medical store depôts, as also with the Indian Marine and Telegraph Departments, together with an additional margin of 15 per cent. in each grade to provide for detachments, and other temporary duties, and for absentees on general or sick leave.

13. All who may be employed in civil or miscellaneous duties, other than military or those above specified, will be extra to the regular establishment, and will be seconded, their names being borne in the Army Lists in italics. In the event of a senior Apothecary being so seconded, a promotion will be made in his room.

14. The regimental and other military establishments in the three Presidencies will be the same, viz.,—

For a European Regiment of Cavalry or Infantry, a Brigade of Artillery or a large Depôt or Sanitarium equal to a regiment,—

1 Apothecary.
1 Assistant Apothecary.
1 Passed Apprentice.
1 Hospital Apprentice at least, and more if available.

For a detached Battery of Artillery, or a small Depôt or Sanitarium,—

1 Assistant Apothecary.

For a Garrison or Cantonment Hospital, or Presidency Medical Store Depôt,—

1 Apothecary.
1 Assistant Apothecary.

For the Head-Quarters of the corps of Sappers and Miners,—

1 Apothecary or Assistant Apothecary.

For Provincial Medical Store Depôts,—

1 Apothecary.

15. The grade of second Apothecary at Madras will be abolished, the members being merged in that of Apothecary.

16. The practice obtaining at Bombay of maintaining a separate establishment for the Medical Store Depôts will also be discontinued, the members so employed joining the regular establishment according to their standing.

17. The future pay of the members of the "Apothecary" class will be a consolidated sum to cover all expenses, except those specially noted below.

18. When, on regimental or corresponding duty all subordinates will be supplied with free quarters, or, when marching, with camp equipage. Hospital Apprentices will also receive a ration allowance of Rupees 16 per mensem, when not attached to the Hospital to which they may be attached, or in the Medical College. This latter grade will further be provided with the necessary barrack furniture, the usual allowance of bedding, and three suits of uniform clothing annually,—one for cold weather, and two for summer wear, free of cost.

19. The consolidated monthly rates of pay will be,—

Senior Apothecary ...		175

	Under 5 ditto ditto	150

Ditto ditto 3rd ...		30

One-fourth of the above salaries to be forfeited during absence, whether on general leave or medical certificate.

20. In addition to the ordinary rates of pay a field allowance of Rupees 30 per mensem will be granted to all the Medical Warrant Grades, when marching or in the field.

21. A similar amount will be granted, as a staff or employed allowance, to those grades when senior with or in subordinate medical charge of the Hospital of a British Regiment or detachment of British Troops, or of a Battery of Artillery, or a Depôt or Sanitarium, or when attached to a General Hospital or Medical Store Depôt.

22. The furlough pay, retiring invalid and wound pensions of the several grades will be as follows:—

23. These retiring and invalid pensions are inclusive of any pension which as Warrant Officers, the recipients may be entitled to from Lord Clive's Fund.

24. Members of the "Apothecary" class, who have completed 25 years' service, exclusive of the period passed in the grade of Hospital Apprentice, will, on retirement, be granted the honorary rank of Assistant Surgeon, if specially recommended for that distinction.

25. Medical Warrant Officers will not be entitled to retire until they have served 30 years in the Department, exclusive of the period served as Hospital Apprentice, unless they are reported by a Medical Committee to be unfit for further effective duty.

26. If invalided in India they must have served 15 years, exclusive of the period passed as Hospital Apprentice, to entitle them to the benefits of the invalid pension, unless they are invalided in consequence of wounds or injuries received, or disorders contracted on service or in the execution of their duties, when their individual case will be specially considered.

"If invalided in England they will receive "invalid pensions in accordance with the G. G. O. "No. 649 of 5th June 1868 at the following rates, "should they have served 15 and less than 30 "years:—

28. Honorary Assistant Surgeons and other members of the "Apothecary" class, when employed in the independent medical charge of civil stations, will receive pay according to the scale laid down in Financial Department's Notification No. 2295, dated 25th April 1867, viz.:—

Under 5 years' service in independent civil charge,	Rupees 350	per mensem.

29. No Honorary Assistant Surgeon or member of the "Apothecary" class will hereafter be permanently appointed to the charge of a civil station, who has not gone through the regulated course of study in a Medical College.

30. In the event of an Honorary Assistant Surgeon or member of the "Apothecary" class being placed in temporary independent medical charge of a Native Regiment, or a detachment of European or Native Troops, constituting the ordinary charge of a Covenanted Medical Officer, he will, if he holds a diploma, be entitled to a salary of Rupees 450 per mensem, or, if he has no diploma, to an addition of Rupees 60 per mensem to his departmental pay, together with any additional staff or marching allowance to which he may be entitled.

31. Should an Honorary Assistant Surgeon or other member of the "Apothecary" class holding a diploma be allowed to retain independent medical charge of a Native corps for upwards of 5 years, his salary will be increased to Rupees 600.

"Hospital Assistant" Class.

32. This branch of the Subordinate Medical Department will consist of 1st, 2nd, and 3rd Class Hospital Assistant, the classes being regulated by length of service, and of medical pupils.

33. The regular establishment will comprise the number requisite for, and employed on military duties, or on those connected with the Indian Marine and Telegraph Departments, together with a margin of 15 per cent. to meet extra and temporary duties and absentees. All the members of this branch required for civil or miscellaneous duties, will be extra to the regular establishment, and will be seconded, their names being borne in italics on the list.

34. The grade of Sub-Assistant Surgeon will not be considered as forming a portion of the regular establishment of the "Hospital Assistant" class; but, when by their conduct and attainments they can prove themselves well qualified for advancement, a certain number of Hospital Assistants may, if specially recommended, be allowed—the exigencies of the service permitting—to attend to the Medical College of their Presidency for a period not extending two years, with a view to their qualifying for the grade of Sub-Assistant Surgeon.—See paragraph 17.

35. The establishments requisite for Military purposes will be as follows:—

For a Native Regiment of Infantry or Cavalry, or a Native Depôt or detachment of greater numerical strength than a wing,—

2 Hospital Assistants.

For a Native Battery of Artillery, a detached Company of Sappers, or a detachment of Native Infantry or Cavalry less than a wing,—

1 Hospital Assistant.

1 Hospital Assistant.

For a Regiment of British Cavalry, a Brigade or Division of Royal Artillery, or a detached Battery of Horse, Field, or Heavy Artillery,—

1 Hospital Assistant.

36. The monthly pay of this branch will also be consolidated, and on the following scale:—

	For those qualified in the English language.	For those not qualified in the English language.
	Rs.	Rs.
1st Class Hospital Assistants of above 14 years' service ...	60	40
2nd Class Hospital Assistants of above 7 years' service ...	40	30
3rd Class Hospital Assistants under 7 years' service ...	25	20
Native Medical pupil, 1st year.	7	5
Native Medical pupil, 2nd year.	8	6
Native Medical pupil in College or Medical School, 1st year.	9	7
Native Medical pupil in College or Medical School, 2nd year.	10	8
Passed Medical pupil ...	16	12

The foregoing allowance to medical pupils includes ration money.

Hospital Assistants will draw as field batta—those of the 1st class Rupees 10, and the rest Rupees 5 per mensem, when marching in the field or on foreign service. When on general or sick leave, they will forfeit one-fourth of their salaries.

37. Accommodation will be furnished for medical pupils in Hospital and also in College, if required. One suit of uniform clothing will likewise be supplied to them annually.

35. The scale of pension for the Hospital Assistants will be,—

One-third of the average pay of preceding 5 years after 15 years' service, and one-half after 25 years' service as Hospital Assistants if invalided by a competent Medical Committee, counting from the date of their passing for the grade of Hospital Assistant.

After 30 years' service one-half of the average pay of preceding 5 years, without the necessity of producing a medical certificate.

If invalided on account of wounds or injuries received on service, they will be allowed,—

One-third of the average pay of preceding 5 years, if under 15 years' service; one-half, if above 15 years' service as Hospital Assistants; and the full amount after 25 years' service.

36. Hospital Assistants who have been advanced to the grade of Sub-Assistant Surgeon will be entitled to retire after completing the requisite service under the Uncovenanted Service Rules, counting their service from the date of passing their examination as Hospital Assistants.

40. Hospital Assistants will hold rank below all Native Commissioned and above all Native Non-Commissioned Officers.

Training and Education.

41. With a view to ensure a certain amount of professional training, independent of hospital practice, all Hospital Apprentices and Native medical pupils will, subject to the exigencies of the service, be required to pass a given period at one of the Medical Colleges of their respective Presidencies, and attend a regular course of lectures. They will, moreover, be required to pass a standard examination in such College before they can obtain promotion to the grade of Assistant Apothecary, or Hospital Assistant, respectively.

42. Both classes will, as heretofore, be required to pass a preliminary examination prior to entrance into the service under the existing rules. Hospital Apprentices will then join a European Regimental Hospital, and Native medical pupils a Native Regimental Hospital or Civil Dispensary. After 2 years' employment in these capacities, if favorably reported on, they will be allowed to join the Medical College, where Hospital Apprentices will be required to serve 3, and medical pupils 2, years.

43. Hospital Apprentices, after passing the requisite examination, will receive the designation and pay of "passed Hospital Apprentice" and will revert to regimental employ or join General or Station Hospitals, until promoted to the grade of Assistant Apothecary.

44. In like manner, Native medical pupils will, on completing their College career, and passing the prescribed examination, receive the designation and pay of "passed Medical Pupils," unless or until they are promoted to the grade of 3rd Class Hospital Assistant. In such case they also will join a military or civil hospital, as subordinates, until they receive promotion.

45. On proceeding to and from the Medical College, both classes will receive free passages or a travelling allowance.

46. In order to afford junior members of the "Apothecary" class of undoubted ability and good character, an opening to further advancement, a limited number of Assistant Apothecaries after having served 5 years in that grade may, if they are specially recommended as likely to profit by the measure, and if the exigencies of the service permit, be allowed to attend the Medical College for a further period not exceeding 2 years, to qualify themselves for the grade of Sub-Assistant Surgeon. On appointment to that grade, they will be struck off the establishment of the hospital class, and join the civil body of Sub-Assistant Surgeons under the usual conditions.

47. A limited number of Hospital Assistants will also be allowed to return to the Medical College for a like purpose. A previous service of 7 years in the grade of Hospital Assistant is indispensable, as likewise is a competent practical knowledge of the English language. This opportunity of advancement will only be extended to such members of the service as are reported specially deserving by their general conduct and qualifications, and who have kept up their professional knowledge by the study of English works on Medicine and Surgery, and who are likely to be able to pass the requisite examination within the prescribed period of 2 years.

No. 6.

(CIVIL SIDE.)

To all Subordinate Civil Courts.—(dated Calcutta, the 22nd May 1868.)

THE High Court have observed that Subordinate Civil Courts, with few exceptions, omit to enter costs in their orders in miscellaneous cases, stating sometimes as a reason for the omission that the pleaders' fees have not been awarded for want of any specification of the value of the claim; and that in the few exceptional cases in which the pleaders' fees are entered in the order, the computation appears to have been made by a mohurir or other ministerial officer with reference to the value of the case, while the officer presiding in the Court is required specifically to fix the fees at the hearing.

The Court therefore request the attention of all Subordinate Courts to the injunction contained in Circular Order No 22 of the 13th of June 1866, that "Civil Officers will invariably act up to the letter and spirit of the Rule," therewith circulated, for regulating and fixing the fees payable in Subordinate Courts, and more particularly to Section 8 of those Rules, which enjoins that "the amount of the fee of an adversary's pleader, when allowed in any miscellaneous proceeding, or for any other matter than that of appearing, acting, or pleading in a suit prior to decree, shall be fixed by the Court," &c.

By Order of the High Court,

(Sd.) C. D. FIRIN,
Registrar.

THE HON'BLE F. B. KEMP, in the Chair.

1. The Secretary read the notice calling the Meeting, and the memorandum of the Managers referred to in that notice.

2. The Secretary also read communications from the following Mofussil Committees and from individual Members bearing upon the subject of the Managers' proposals and on a pamphlet circulated by Mr. M. H. Court and laid on the table, suggesting a different set of proposals for consideration:—

From the Civilians of the Punjab.
Ditto ditto Ghazeepore.
Ditto ditto Bhaugulpore.
Ditto ditto Agra.
Ditto ditto Cawnpore.
Ditto ditto Banda.
Ditto ditto Gorukpore.
Ditto ditto Dhurmsala.
Ditto ditto Rajshahye.
Ditto ditto Mussoorie.
Ditto ditto Fyzabad.
Ditto ditto Azimghur.
Ditto ditto Baraitch.
Ditto ditto Berhampore, &c.

3. Mr. E. E. Harrison moved and Mr. C. D. Field seconded the following Resolution:—

"That the scheme proposed by the Managers as the basis of the memorial for increased pensions be adopted."

Mr. S. Hogg moved and Mr. H. Bell seconded a motion that—"In the Managers' proposals as given on page 1 of their memorandum the words "but that a Fund be also formed . . . down to . . . "sums individually contributed," be omitted, and the remaining part of the proposition form the basis of the memorial."

Considerable discussion ensued in which many Members took part. Some were in favor of abolishing the Fund entirely, but the majority wished to leave this an open question. The Managers' proposal contemplated the continuance or formation of a Fund in some shape or other. It was urged that on this question the sense of the Service ought to be distinctly taken.

It was pointed out on behalf of the Managers that the connection at present subsisting between Government and the Fund was so intimate that it was impossible and absurd to go up to the Secretary of State with a memorial praying for increased pensions but making no mention of, or reference to the Fund or any proposals for its disposal. The first thing to do was to settle the question of the Fund.

The Managers had made a definite proposal for its continuance on an independent basis.

The Chairman read Rule 22nd to the Meeting and said that in his opinion Mr. Hogg's proposal was a substantive resolution diametrically opposed to an essential part of the proposition before the Meeting. As such it should have been duly advertised for discussion. The proper course for Mr. Hogg and his supporters to adopt was to negative directly the Managers' proposal and then to give due notice of the counter proposition and get a Special General Meeting convened to discuss it.

Much discussion hereupon followed, in the course of which numerous tentative amendments were put forward and withdrawn; the general tendency of the whole being to accept the Managers' proposals in regard to the mode of increase of pension to be applied for, but to reserve for consideration the question of the abolition of the Fund and the formation of a new Fund as suggested by the Managers. Mr. Hogg ultimately moved "that this Meeting do adjourn until the sense of the service on the question of the continuance of the Fund in its present or in a modified form be taken."

This on being put to the vote was lost, there being 9 votes for it, and 18 against it.

Further indeterminate discussion ensued, in which it was questioned whether the Mofussil Members who had given proxies in favor of the Managers' scheme could be said to have given their voice decidedly in favor of the continuance or abolition of the Fund in some shape, that issue in its simple form not having been laid before them.

Ultimately Mr. Harrison's motion was pro formâ put to the vote, when there appeared 6 votes in favor of it. Under the Rules the votes of proxies were thus excluded. On proceeding to tell the votes against the resolution, many Members objected that this was unnecessary. They did not wish to oppose the Managers' proposals as a whole. The effect of the voting was to negative the scheme of the Managers, and so the question was left open for further consideration.

4. The Secretary read a letter from the Government of India suggesting an amendment of Article 10 of the rules in regard to invalid Annuities. The following was what the Managers proposed to substitute for the present Rule, viz.:—

"10. Invalid pensions will be granted by the Managers whenever the fact that the Secretary of State has permitted a Subscriber to retire upon an annuity of that description has been formally intimated to them by the Government of India."

Carried nem. con.

5. The Meeting then separated.

POLICE AND CONSERVANCY OF HASTINGS.

MR. HOGG moved for leave to bring in a Bill for subjecting the southern portion of Hastings to the provisions of the Municipal Acts of Calcutta. He said, the land on which the town of Hastings was built, belonged to the Government, and the house-holders and residents had hitherto simply paid a low rate of rent for the occupation of the land, and had never been subjected to any local tax for conservancy, lighting, police, and other charges for the advantage and improvement of the place. The object of the present Bill was to impose on the residents of Hastings the same Municipal laws, regulations, and taxes which now prevailed in Calcutta. When Act VI of 1863, which was the first Municipal Act for Calcutta enacted by this Council, was passed, it included all the places within the local limits of the ordinary original civil jurisdiction of the High Court. Consequently Hastings, then called Cooley Bazar, Fort William, and the Esplanade, were included within the Town and subject to all the provisions of Act VI of 1863. But by Section 56 of that Act, houses, buildings, and lands situate in Fort William, on the Esplanade of the Fort, and in Cooley Bazar, were exempted from the house-rate. Notwithstanding the passing of that Act, which evidently intended that the conservancy arrangements for the places mentioned should be made over to the Corporation of Calcutta, Government continued the direct management, through the Commissioner of Police, of those places, and up to the present time had always borne all the expenses.

When last year the Municipal Act was undergoing some amendments, it was suggested that as the Government had not thought proper to make over the municipal administration of Hastings to the Town, it would be wise to recognize the state of affairs which actually existed; and by Section 22 of Act IX of 1867, Fort William, the Esplanade and Cooley Bazar were declared not to be within the meaning of the word "Town," as defined in Act VI of 1863, and used in all the Municipal Acts for Calcutta. Now, however, Hastings was gradually increasing in size, and demanded a more costly system of conservancy arrangements than had hitherto existed, and the Government not being prepared to incur the increased expenditure, and considering that the people who resided in the place should be subjected to the same local taxation as existed in other parts of India, it was proposed to impose on the people taxes sufficient to cover all the expenses incurred on account of them.

That might be done by forming Hastings into a separate Municipality, or by extending to that place the provisions of the Calcutta Municipal Acts; but, although extending in size, Hastings was not yet sufficiently large to warrant a Municipal constitution being given to it alone. It was therefore suggested to bring Hastings under the provisions of the Municipal Acts of Calcutta. It would be observed that the Bill proposed to extend the Acts simply to the southern portion of Hastings. That would require some explanation. When the Government of India intimated that they were prepared to make over Hastings to the Civil Authorities, they stated that that portion north of Clyde Row would remain under the direct control of the Military Authorities, because the only buildings in that portion of Hastings were the Conductors' Barracks and Commissariat godowns, which were under the control of the Military Authorities, and therefore could not conveniently be subjected to the Municipal Acts in force in Calcutta. The expense for the repairs of roads and lighting in that portion of Hastings were now, and would still be, borne by the imperial treasury. It was therefore proposed to extend the provisions of the Calcutta Municipal Acts only to the portion of Hastings lying south of Clyde Row.

The motion was agreed to.

Mr. Hogg applied to the President to suspend the rules for the conduct of business.

The President having declared the rules suspended—

Mr. Hogg moved that the Bill be read in Council.

The motion was agreed to, and the Bill read accordingly.

Mr. Hogg applied that the further consideration of the Bill be postponed until the next meeting of the Council.

The application was agreed to.

POSSESSION OF CHURS AND ISLAND.

Mr. Thompson moved that the Bill "to amend the provisions of Act IX of 1847 (an Act regarding the assessment of lands gained from the sea or from rivers by alluvion or dereliction within the Provinces of Bengal, Behar, and Orissa)" be passed.

The motion was agreed to, and the Bill passed.

POLICE AND CONSERVANCY OF TOWNS.

Mr. Dampier moved that the Report of the Select Committee on the Bill "to amend and consolidate the law for the regulation of Police in Towns under the control of the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal, and for the conservancy and improvement thereof," be further considered in order to the settlement of the clauses of the Bill.

The motion was agreed to.

The postponed Section 49 provided the nature of the tax to be levied.

Mr. Dampier moved that the word "occupation" be substituted for the word "house" in the 11th and 13th lines.

Baboo Peary Chand Mittra stated that the principle of assessing houses, and not individuals, had already been disposed of by the Council; and if the present motion were carried to, it would lead to complications, inasmuch as the inmates of a house, instead of the house itself, would be assessed. He therefore thought the word "house" should be retained.

Mr. Dampier said, he did not intend to use the word "occupation" in the sense suggested by the hon'ble member. He meant it to include barns, store-houses, stables, gardens, tanks, &c., as enumerated in Section 8. If there was any ambiguity in the word "occupation," which was suggested by the learned Advocate-General, he would have no objection to substitute any other term which would better express the intention.

After some conversation, the word "holding" was substituted for the word "house."

Baboo Ramanath Tagore said, he should bring to the notice of the Council that a petition from the inhabitants of Moorshedabad, Berhampore, and Sydabad, had been received, complaining of the increase of the maximum of taxation from Rupees 5 to Rupees 10. The petitioners thought the increase would prove very burdensome to the inhabitants of those and other places to which the Bill might be applied. The Council must be aware that originally the maximum amount stood in the Bill at the pay of a chowkeydar of the lowest grade, but after consideration the Select Committee fixed the sum at Rupees 5, because less than that amount would not be sufficient for a chowkeydar, and the maximum of taxation would remain very uncertain if no definite amount was fixed. The Committee hardly thought that the question would be a matter of discussion in the Council. Unfortunately, however, the hon'ble member on his left (Baboo Peary Chand Mittra), in order to prevent one evil, fell into another; that was to say, he moved to increase the maximum assessment from Rupees 5 to Rupees 10, to avoid the evil and uncertainty of there being no limit whatever, as was proposed by another hon'ble member. He (Baboo Ramanath Tagore) thought that, taking into consideration all the circumstances detailed in the petition received by the Council, the maximum of Rupees 5 should be restored, and by doing so the Council would not be conferring any favor on the tax-payers, because the Select Committee had, after due consideration, fixed that sum as the maximum. Thinking, therefore, that Rupees 5 was an adequate maximum, and that the maximum of Rupees 10 would prove a hardship to many, he would move that Rupees 5 be substituted for Rupees 10 in the Section.

The President said, he would suggest that the hon'ble member should modify his amendment. The present discussion was in continuation of the previous one. The amendment proposed was simply a negative of the amendment moved and carried at the last meeting, and could not therefore be put.

Baboo Ramanath Tagore then moved that Rupees 7 be substituted for Rupees 10.

Baboo Peary Chand Mittra said, he had proposed Rupees 10 as the maximum, because he was anxious that the rate should not be left uncertain, as it would have been if the motion of the hon'ble member on his right (Mr. Hogg) had been carried. But as it now appeared that it was likely not to work well, and to prove a hardship, he (Baboo Peary Chand Mittra) would gladly support the amendment.

The President.

The motion was therefore carried, and the Section as amended passed.

On the motion of Mr. Dampier, the following Section was introduced after Section 59, instead of Section 55, which had been previously transposed to that place :—

"Whenever the period for which any assessment is valid, as provided in Section 59 of this Act, shall be about to expire, notwithstanding anything hereinbefore contained, it shall be lawful for the Magistrate, instead of requiring any Town Committee or Ward Committee to make a new assessment or to revise and amend the assessments then in force, to adopt the said assessment as the assessment for the year next following."

The postponed Section 60 having been read—

Mr. Dampier said, by the Bill as printed the assessment was good for one year, and until another was made. Then Section 60 provided that if for three months, either through the laches of the Town Committee or the Magistrate, or for any other reason, no new assessment had been made, then the old assessment should hold good. But at the last meeting of the Council an amendment was carried, to the effect that an assessment once made, should ordinarily hold good for three years. It was therefore necessary to make a change in the wording of the present Section to provide for the old assessment holding good after the expiration of the third month of the fourth year, instead of after the expiration of the third month of the second year.

On the motion of Mr. Dampier, amendments were then made, which made the Section stand thus :—

"If no new assessment be made and published before the expiration of the first three months of any year for which no assessment valid under the provisions of Section 59 shall be in force, the assessment which was in force at the close of the preceding year shall be deemed to be the assessment for the current year."

The following Section was, on the motion of Mr. Dampier, introduced after the above :—

"As soon as possible after an assessment shall have been adopted under Section 59a, or shall have taken effect for the current year under the last preceding Section, Magistrate shall, in the manner provided in Section 58 for giving public notice that the copies of the list of assessment have been hung up and deposited, give public notice that the assessment in force at the close of the preceding year will continue to have effect during the current year, but it shall not be necessary to hang up fresh copies of such list, and every person whose assessment may be so continued shall be at liberty to appeal against such assessment as if it were a new assessment made upon him."

The postponed Section 61 provided for appeals from assessments, and commenced thus :—

"Any person assessed, who shall be dissatisfied with his assessment * * * * may appeal" &c.

Mr. Dampier moved the substitution of the words "who shall have been assessed by a Town Committee, and" for the word "assessed" in the first line. He said, the object of the alteration and of the new Section which he proposed to introduce after the present Section, was that an assessee should have no right of appeal to the Magistrate where the assessment was made by a Ward Committee. Where the assessment was made by a Town Committee without the intervention of a Ward Committee, the appeal was, as in the present law, to the Magistrate, whose decision was final. He proposed to provide for that in this Section. But in the following Section, where the Ward Committee would make the assessment in the first instance, the right of appeal would lie to the Town Committee at a Meeting, and in that case the final decision would rest with them, and there would be no appeal to the Magistrate.

The motion was agreed to.

On the motion of Mr. Dampier, the proviso at the end of the Section was left out, and the Section as amended agreed to.

The following Section was then inserted on the motion of Mr. Dampier :—

"Any person who shall have been assessed by a Ward Committee, and who shall be dissatisfied with his assessment, or who shall dispute his occupation of any property or his liability to be assessed, may appeal on unstamped paper to the Town Committee. And with regard to such appeals the Town Committee, at a Meeting, shall proceed as the Magistrate is directed to proceed in the last preceding Section, and the orders passed by the Town Committee at a Meeting on such appeals shall have the same effect and finality as orders passed by the Magistrate under the last preceding Section. Appeals to the Town Committee at a Meeting shall be subject to the same limitation of time as appeals to the Magistrate under the last preceding Section."

The postponed Sections 62 and 63 were passed with verbal amendments.

The postponed Sections 64 to 66 were agreed to.

The postponed Section 5, providing for the formation of unions, having been read—

Mr. Dampier said, when the question of omitting this Section was first mentioned, he had said that he would agree to it if the rest of the Bill was passed as it stood ; that was, to say, if no alteration was made that would affect the Bill as regards the extent of the places or towns to which the provisions of the Bill might be extended. He should therefore be glad if the President would allow the consideration of this Section, as well as of Section 6, to stand over till all the other Sections had been passed.

The consideration of the Section and of Section 6 was then postponed.

The postponed Section 10 was agreed to, and Section 11, was passed with a verbal amendment.

The postponed Section 16 provided for the preparation of estimates.

Mr. Dampier moved the substitution of the words "after consulting" for the words "in consultation with." The object of the amendment, he said, was to meet the objection of the learned Advocate-General that otherwise some definition would be necessary as to how it was to be decided if the members of the Town Committee differed from the Magistrate. As he (Mr. Dampier) had already explained, in the body of the Bill the Town Committee were a consultative body only ; the Magistrate was to have the benefit of their advice, but the responsibility would rest with him. If the wording was altered as now proposed, there would be no longer any doubt as to the meaning.

The motion was agreed to, and the Section as amended passed.

The postponed Section 17 was passed after a verbal amendment.

Mr. Dampier said, he would now move two amendments in Section 46, with the view of simplifying the Section. The principle asserted in that Section was that the Government would have power to vest the Town Committee, or the Town Committee at a Meeting, with the powers of the Magistrate as defined in certain Sections of the Bill. Instead of cumbering this Section with a long list of numbers, he proposed to substitute for them the words "as enumerated in Schedules J and K to this Act annexed." It was impossible to draw up the Schedules until the Bill had been finally settled; but the principle being affirmed, the Schedules alone would remain to be passed.

The motion was agreed to, and the Section as amended passed.

The interpretation Section, the consideration of which was postponed, was then passed with a few verbal amendments, and the omission of the Clause defining "arable lands."

Section 5, regarding the formation of unions was then, on the motion of Mr. Dampier, omitted, and Section 6 was passed with verbal amendments.

The postponed Section 92 was passed with the change of the short title from "The Mofussil Towns Act" to "The District Towns Act."

RECOVERY OF ARREARS OF REVENUE AND PUBLIC DEMANDS.

The Advocate-General moved that the Report of the Select Committee on the Bill "to make further provision for the recovery of arrears of land revenue and public demands recoverable as arrears of land revenue" be taken into consideration in order to the settlement of the Clauses of the Bill, and that the Clauses be considered for settlement in the form recommended by the Select Committee. He said, although the Report of the Committee had been for some days in the hands of hon'ble members, he thought it desirable to make a few observations by way of further explanation of the reasons which had operated on the Committee in making the principal alterations that they had made on the Bill as committed to them.

As the Bill stood, the effect of a sale in respect of arrears not accruing, or in respect of demands not accruing, on the estate, would have been that the purchaser at such sale would have been in the same position as the purchaser at the sale of an estate (in the ordinary sense of the word) for arrears of revenue accruing on the estate itself. It appeared to the Committee that it was not desirable nor necessary that the same effect should be given to sales in cases for which the Bill provided, inasmuch as by the law, even as it at present stood under Act XI of 1859, he apprehended that the effect of a sale for arrears even from estates where the arrear was due from the proprietor, was limited to the case of the arrear being due from the particular estate which was put up and sold, and therefore it would not be necessary, or even proper, that more extended application should be given to the effect of sales of the nature referred to in the first portion of the Committee's Report, than was given under Act XI of 1859 to the sales there contemplated. The theory of the Bill as first brought before the Council, before it went into Committee, was that the effect of a certificate should be final as regards all questions of irregularity and omission to give notice as against proprietors, and that by way of providing against any hardships that might result from that effect given to certificates, provision should be made for personal service, in all possible cases, of notice. But in the discussions in Committee the conclusion was come to on the facts that it would be impracticable to effect the service of the notices which the Bill originally contemplated, by reason that the Collector, who was to serve the notices, was in the great majority of instances not in the possession of, and had no means of obtaining, information as to who were all the proprietors who in the particular case would be entitled to notice, and therefore it had been thought better, instead of providing for what would be practically inoperative, to extend the principle of Act XI of 1859 with regard to the posting of notices, by providing that the notices required by that Act and the present Bill should be posted, in addition to the notices mentioned in Act XI of 1859, at the sub-divisional Cutchery. It was believed that, with that rule, and with the provision of the existing law with regard to notices on the ryots not to pay rent to the defaulting proprietors, all possible security would be attained.

In Committee certain provisions were introduced with regard to the registration of under-tenures or farms. There was some reason to suppose that a little misunderstanding had prevailed with regard to these provisions. Under the existing law the holder of any tenure or farm who held immediately under the proprietor of an estate, might protect himself from the effects of a sale for arrears of revenue by special registration; but as the law stood, no holder of a tenure, other than the holder of the first tenure immediately from the proprietor, could so protect himself. Then the present Bill proposed to make these under-tenures saleable as well for arrears of Government revenue as of Government demands, and therefore a Section was introduced giving the same power to the holders of such under-tenures to protect themselves by registration, as under the present law was possessed by the holders of tenures held immediately under the actual proprietors. The effect of such registration would be that tenures so registered would stand, whether or not the estate out of which the tenure was carved had been sold, or whether any intermediate tenure was sold. When the Council came to the Section to which he was now referring, he should propose, to avoid all ambiguity, to provide in express terms that that should be the effect of the registration. It was also proposed in this registration Section, and following the principle laid down with regard to registration in Act XI of 1859, that in the application for registration the applicant should state the name or names of all the intermediate tenure-holders between himself and the proprietor of the estate, and also that of the proprietor of the estate. Under Act XI of 1859, the immediate holder of an under-tenure, who was the only person who could register, had in his application to insert the name of the proprietor of the estate. In the case under the Bill following that principle the applicant, however distant from the original proprietor, would be required to name all those who were intermediate. It was suggested to him (the Advocate-General) that there were estates in which there were so many successive under-tenures carved out of the estate, that in many cases the under-tenant might not be able to ascertain the names of all the holders between himself and the immediate recorded proprietor of the estate. That was a difficulty which could not be remedied, and certainly it was not putting the holders of such tenures in a worse but in a better position than they were, because at present they were absolutely without any remedy to protect themselves by registration against the sale of the estate; and as the making such tenures saleable for Government revenue or demands was only one portion of the general object and principle of the Bill, he (the Advocate-General) did not see that it was possible to make any distinction in the case of such tenures or to do away with the provision that the application should contain the names of all the intermediate holders.

The Bill, as it went into Committee, gave a more extended effect to the certificate of the Collector than it now did, and possibly the Council would agree that, instead of the certificate operating, as it would have done, on all the property moveable or immoveable, and whersoever situate, of the defaulter, it should only operate as a lien on immoveable property, and on such property as was situated within the jurisdiction in which the certificate was filed, or where execution was sought and, in either district, against the property situate in that district until execution was actually issued. It had been thought proper, with regard to the recovery of demands other than revenue, that in all cases, inasmuch as the property to be proceeded against would in most cases be immoveable property, to make what was substantially a slight alteration in the existing law. He was now assuming that the Section which related to the recovery of public demands should stand. With regard to one class of cases a large one—of public demands leviable from the sureties of accountants and others, under Act XII of 1850 execution was, levied against the immoveable property of the defaulter or his sureties by the officer under whom the defaulter was employed. It seemed, however, to the Committee very undesirable that such power should be given to any one except the peson best qualified to deal with the matter, namely, the Collector of the District within which the property was situated, and accordingly the Committee had provided in all cases, as well as regards the recovery of demands of Government revenue, that the jurisdiction as regards the Bill should be confined to the Collector.

As already intimated in the Report of the Select Committee, they had not been able to agree as to the principle of applying the provisions of the Bill to the recovery of demands other than revenue; he said other than revenue, because he was happy to say that the contention of a distinction between Government rent and revenue had been abandoned. The Committee has been unanimous that the farmer should stand in the same position as a Zemindar. But with regard to the question of other public demands, he should wait to hear the arguments advanced by those who disapproved of the Bill in that respect, before submitting his own views. He had before generally expressed his views on the subject, and therefore merely adverted in that brief way to the fact that there had been a difference of opinion between himself and the Committee.

The motion was agreed to.

The consideration of Section 1 was reserved.

Section 2 was passed with a verbal amendment.

Sections 3, 4, and 5 were agreed to.

Section 6 provided that a certificate of title should be conclusive evidence of regularity.

Baboo Ramanath Tagore said, he thought this Section would operate with great hardship on the ex-proprietors of the estate to be sold, because it gave an absolute title to the purchaser, notwithstanding that there might have been many irregularities in conducting the sale. He thought the certificate of title to be given under this Bill ought to be on the same footing as that laid down in Section 28 of Act XI of 1859; and he did not see any reason why the Council should depart from that provision. If this Section of the present Bill remained, an ex-proprietor would have no right to go to a Court of Law—a power which was given to him by Act XI of 1859, and it would be a great hardship to him, not only to lose his property, but to have no chance of redress. He therefore thought that the Section ought be so amended that it should be made consistent with the provisions of Section 28 of Act XI of 1859, or, if necessary, be omitted altogether. He would therefore move, if the Council should so wish it, that the Section be omitted.

Baboo Peary Chand Mittra said, he thought that, instead of being omitted altogether, the Section should be made to correspond with Section 28 of Act XI of 1859. Instead of precluding the ex-proprietor from contesting his claim in the Civil Court, the Section ought simply to provide for the grant to the purchaser of a certificate of the interest of the ex-proprietor conveyed to him.

The Advocate-General said, he would oppose the amendment. He was not in a position to know whether or not it was the intention of the hon'ble member to substitute anything for this Section. He (the Advocate-General) thought there was every possible difference between the effect of a certificate under the Act as regards tenures other than estates, and as regards sales, in the way this Bill contemplated, not for arrears of revenue accruing on the estate sold. The effect of Section 28 of Act XI of 1859, to which the hon'ble member had referred, was that the certificate was to be deemed in any Court of Justice "sufficient evidence of the title to the estate or share of an estate sold being vested in the person or persons named from the date specified." The present Bill did not propose to give to a sale under it in any way the effect that the certificate under that Act gave, as under Act VIII of 1859, the right, title, and interest of the defaulter could alone be sold. Therefore, as far as regards sales under Act XI of 1859, the certificate of title was a totally different thing. But as regards sales under Act XI of 1859, it was considered by the majority of the Committee more for the general public interest, that the effect of a sale should not in any case, or under any circumstances, be subject to be afterwards disputed in the Civil Court, on the principle that in the long run it had been found that the rise in the general value of property, and the security of title had been greater or less as greater or less effect and strictness had been given to the law with regard to sales. He made these observations as expressive of his objection to the amendment, but he did not think it fair or satisfactory that a matter of this kind, involving a point of principle, should be brought forward without any previous notice, when the Report of the Committee had been so long in the hands of hon'ble members, who had full opportunity of studying the provisions of the Bill as amended by the Committee, and therefore, with the permission of the President, he would wish that the consideration of this Section should stand over.

The further consideration of the Section was postponed.

Section 7 was agreed to.

Section 8 provided for the registry of tenures.

THE ADVOCATE-GENERAL moved the insertion of the words "Sections 39, 40, 41, 42, 43, and 44" before the words "Act XI. of 1859."

MR. DAMPIER said, he really thought that when important amendments of this sort were brought forward, due notice of them should be given. There was one hon'ble member at least, who had not considered the question whether or not special registration was applicable to the tenures dealt with by this Bill. He should be glad if the consideration of the Bill was postponed, with the object that members who had important amendments to propose should print and circulate them.

THE ADVOCATE-GENERAL said, he had no objection. Possibly the Council would be able to make more real progress if notice was given of the amendments to be proposed: and he hoped that hon'ble members who had amendments to propose would cause them to be circulated early in the week.

The further consideration of the Bill was then postponed.

The Council adjourned to Saturday, the 13th instant.

selected, and the Kupas (seed Cotton) picked from those plants, should be set apart, and the seed obtained from this Kupas after cleaning should be reserved for the next season's sowings. A little care in selecting Cotton seed would, I am convinced, do much to improve our Cotton cultivation, and if some of the landholders could be induced (as I hope hereafter to be able to induce them to do) to raise Cotton for seed on carefully tended garden lands, a still greater improvement might be secured. Perhaps District Officers might be able to assist by planting carefully selected seed in rich fields which are sometimes attached to the public "Gardens."

5. I would be very glad if His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor should be pleased to encourage this system of the selection of seed, and if its importance could be impressed upon the gentlemen who have undertaken the experiments. I am particularly anxious that the plan recommended by Major Trevor Clarke should be followed in Bengal, because much of the seed now supplied is, I fear, not as pure and healthy as I could wish it to be, and by this I mean that it is not seed that has been grown in seed gardens, and selected on the pedigree system, for the demands for seed have been so large that they could not be supplied from the small stock of selected seed at my disposal. The seed sent is the seed of the Hinguughat District, purchased in the best villages celebrated for their Cotton, but, as I have already explained, even this seed is susceptible of improvement.

6. Intimation of the despatch of the seed has been sent to all gentlemen concerned, and I have taken the liberty to request them to keep me informed of the results of their experiments.

7. I need, perhaps, hardly mention that it will give me very great pleasure, if I can give any further assistance in the improvement of the Cotton cultivation in Bengal, and that I am at all times ready to answer any references, and, to the best of my power, to give any further information that may be required on this subject.

Memorandum from HARRY RIVETT-CARNAC ESQ., Cotton Commissioner for the Central Provinces and the Berars,—(dated the 18th March 1868.)

As several gentlemen, who are desirous of making experiments in Bengal this season with Hinguughat cotton seed, have requested me to give them information on certain points regarding the locality and soil in which the cotton thrives, and the manner of its cultivation, I have drawn up the following brief note which, I hope, may be of some use to those who are inclined to assist in extending the cultivation of this superior class of indigenous cotton.

Hinguughat cotton is grown in the Wurdah district of the Central Provinces in the neighbourhood of the town of Hinguughat—an important cotton market—from which place the cotton takes its name.

The cotton is celebrated for its cleanness (freedom from leaf and dirt), brightness of colour, length, strength, evenness, and silkiness of staple. In all these points—all of which are regarded as of great importance by the spinner—the Hinguughat variety is superior to most of the Indian cottons. As compared with the cotton of Bengal, that grown in the Hinguughat country, besides being superior in all the respects noticed above, is particularly glossy and soft, whilst Bengal cotton is wooly and dull in appearance, and rough and harsh to the touch.

There can be little doubt that the superior quality of this cotton is to be attributed to the physical advantages of the tract in which it is grown. The Wurdah district is situated on the northern extremity of the great Deccan sheet of trap, which extends from Mudnoor—far south in the territory of H. H. the Nizam—to the low hills which form the northern boundary of the Wurdah district. The height of the cultivated plateau is not more than 900 feet above the sea level. The soil is of the well known "regur" or black cotton soil composed of the debris of the trap rock, the basis of the geological formation of the district. The following description and scientific analysis of this soil is extracted from Ansted's Geology p. 348:—

"Its colour is bluish black, greenish or dark grey. It forms into a paste with water, and gives a clayey odour. It absorbs moisture rapidly, and parts with it in dry and hot weather. Its thickness varies from 3 to about 20 feet. It is cultivated very easily, yielding a rotation of crops, consisting of cotton and two kinds of corn. It rarely requires to be left fallow, and demands but little husbandry, although for the last 2,000 years this soil has continued in cultivation without manure, retaining the utmost fertility."

Silica ...	48·20
Alumina ...	20·30
Carbonate of Lime ...	16·00
Carbonate of Magnesia ...	10·20
Oxide of Iron ...	1·00
Water and Organic matter ...	4·30

In the Hinguughat country this soil varies in depth from 2 to 15 feet, but the average depth of the best cotton-growing lands does not exceed 6 or 8 feet. Beneath this rich coating, kunker, a sort of hard gravel is found, and below this again is the trap rock already noticed.

The country slopes gradually southward towards the river Wurdah, which forms the southern boundary of the tract, and as the village lands, following the upheavings of the volcanic crust beneath, lie in huge waves of soil, the direction of which is at right angles to the course of the river, the drainage is excellent, the rainwater being carried off by streams flowing down between the troughs of these waves, and discharging themselves into the Wurdah. The rainfall in the tract is moderate, not exceeding on an average 39 inches. Last season the monsoon was unusually heavy, and very much harm was in consequence caused to the cotton crops.

It will be seen from the above that the tract in which the cotton is grown possesses two great physical advantages—a good soil, and excellent drainage. And of the two the drainage is if anything of even greater importance than the soil. For although due provision must be made for the tap root of the plant, which strikes straight down into the ground, it is not necessary that the soil should be more than from 4 to 5 feet deep. Cotton is of course often sown in soil the depth of which is not one quarter of the above, but the poorness of the soil tells upon the plant and its produce. On the other hand, cotton is apt to be clogged and smothered in the very deep rich soil, and this is one of the reasons, I believe, for the plant not being very extensively cultivated in the Nurbudda valley, the lands of which are much better adapted for wheat, which is grown in, and exported in large quantities from the Nurbudda districts. In the Wurdah district the deepest soil is to be found in the Mandgaon pergunnah, and here too wheat takes the place of cotton, which the people say thrives better in a lighter soil.

In selecting the fields for the experimental culture of Hingunghat cotton, I would recommend then that particular attention be paid to the drainage of the ground. At the same time a fair average soil should be allotted to the crop.

As regards the cultivation, I hardly know the seasons in which cotton is planted in the Bengal province, or the manner in which the crop is now treated. I am unable, therefore, to offer any suggestions regarding improvements to be made in the present mode of cultivation there. I will, however, mention briefly the method in force in the Hingunghat country, and as that system is sufficiently successful, it would perhaps be well if the gentlemen, who are good enough to make experiments with the Hingunghat seed, were to follow that system, unless their experience suggests that it is not adapted to the circumstances of the country. Where opportunity offers it would be well to cultivate one field according to the Hingunghat plan, and to treat another in the manner peculiar to the District in which the experiment is made.

In the Hingunghat country the cotton is sown during the first break in the weather following the setting in of the rains.* The field selected is generally one that has borne a grain crop the previous year, for of course, cotton should never be sown two seasons running in the same ground. Previous to the commencement of the mousoon the ground is prepared for the crop by being ploughed or rather scraped by the "bukhur," a rough instrument which is peculiar to this part of the country, and which takes the place of the plough of Eastern India. The bukhur is passed over the field five or six times according to circumstances, and has the effect of scraping up and loosening the soil, and preparing it to drink in the rain, which, instead of running off the surface, as on the hard untilled ground, sinks through the loose earth moistening and softening it so as to admit of the working of the drill-plough, and the commencement of sowing operations. In this part of India cotton is never sown broadcast, but always in rows, sometimes with the drill-plough, or, when the soil is light, with the aid of the bukhur and a bamboo tube down which the seed is poured, and which serves the part of the feeder in the drill-plough. The seed, from the circumstance of much of the cotton fibre adhering to it, often clogs the feeder, and, to obviate this, the cultivators in this part of the country generally roll the seed in cow-dung or dry earth, which process helps it to run more freely down the tube. I mention this, as the Hingunghat seed may perhaps, without the use of this precaution, give some trouble to the sowers in Bengal. In this part of the country the seed is sown very close, too close together, and the rows are, as a rule, not far enough apart. As, however, the plant is small, and does not branch out, it admits of being more closely packed than many other varieties, but I would recommend that the rows be not less than 2½ to 3 feet apart. Soon after the plant appears above ground, the soil between the rows, which the action of the rain has hardened and caked, is loosened with a sort of hoe, a small edition of the bukhur which fits in between the lines. The young plant is thus helped to push its way above ground, and is now left pretty well to itself until the weeds begin to appear. The weeds should then be carefully removed, the weeding being done by hand, and this process should be repeated sufficiently often to keep the field perfectly free from grass.

As the plants progress, care should be taken to thin the field in places where the plants are found to have been sown too close together. In foreign soil the Hingunghat plant has sometimes been found to shoot up very rapidly, and to show a tendency to run to wood. In its own country it is a short, sturdy little plant, small, seldom more than 3 feet in height, but yielding a good quantity of cotton, (the great point), and when it appears to be outgrowing its strength it would be well to "top it," by cutting off a few inches from the top of the plant. And too much care cannot be bestowed in following the plan of "rogueing" the crop, as advocated by Major Trevor Clarke, and thereby ensuring the purity and high quality of the plant. In the Hingunghat country this valuable process has only recently been introduced, and although the seed sent to Bengal and other parts of India has been selected from the best lands and with considerable care, I cannot too strongly urge the importance of rogueing the crop and selecting the seed as recommended in Major Trevor Clarke's pamphlet. Spare copies of the pamphlet will be forwarded, but for facility of reference an extract from this valuable paper is here annexed.

"But I must now turn your attention to a fresh subject, already, however, alluded to in my former letters, namely, the use of pure seed, to be effected by the rigid isolation of sorts. Next to a constant supply from any indicated source, the manufacturer requires a constant quality of staple. From accounts I have received from credible eye-witnesses, the mixture of sorts in a cotton field, especially in the West Indies, is inconceivable, the crop in some instances looking like a flower garden with different sorts, sizes, and colours. In one case my informant described the not unfrequent appearance of a red blossomed sort, evidently the Indian G. Arboreum in his fields.

"This is the work of the native labourer, who is either incapable or unwilling to see the difference between right and wrong, at any rate where his own interests are not concerned. His delight seems to be in reversing, confusing, or nullyfying especial orders the moment the master's eye is off, and the mixture of seed is generally his preliminary operation. In my own experience I rarely receive unmixed samples, and wrongly named sorts are continually sent home, although probably in good faith as far as concerns the sender.

"The one and only remedy for this will be found in English skill, science, and energy, strongly exerted in this one direction. Experimental farms, at the expense of, or encouraged by Government, are nothing new; for a century or two these have been carried on in spite of the perversity of man as well as that of the elements, and have borne their fruit. My modification, however, of the system would be this:—Let such establishments be entirely devoted to seed farming, the sole effort being restricted to the production of pure seed in the country where it is destined to be grown in future. In this country no grower of seed, either for agricultural or gardening purposes, would now obtain a sale for his produce were he to supply his customers with mixed or inferior seeds. In the establishments of such persons the master himself goes through his crops several times a year for the purpose of destroying every plant which proves inferior or untrue to sort. This weeding process is technically and expressively called "rogueing" the crop, and is absolutely necessary to ensure purity and high quality. At the same time improvement by special selection is carried on; single plants showing high qualities are picked out for propagation, and the produce of these submitted even more rigidly to the same treatment*."

* In some parts of the Chandah district, and on the Godavery a small crop is raised by sowing the cotton after the rains, it ripens in April.

If these instructions be carefully followed, and the produce of the best plants be carefully selected on the pedigree system, and seed-gardens be established and sown with the selected produce, I have little doubt that the introduction of the Hinguughat cotton seed into Bengal will do much good.

The cotton plant begins to flower in September, during the following month the pods form, and in November the capsules burst and the cotton is ready to be picked. Care should be taken to pick the cotton whilst the plant is yet young and fresh, and before the leaves wither and die and become mixed up with the cotton. Much of the cotton in this part of India is damaged, and suffers in price from the careless manner in which this process is performed.

The ginning, or the separation of the cotton from the seed, is performed here by the common native "Churka," or "Recha" as it is more properly called. Where Platt's Macarthy Gins are at hand, I would recommend that they be used.

It will be noticed that I have not recommended the use of manure. Its use should depend on the circumstances of the soil and the experience of the cultivators in that part of India where the experiment is made. What suits Hinguughat land may not be found to answer in Lower Bengal, but I may mention that here the cultivators do not generally manure their cotton-fields. They hold that if the rainfall is unusually heavy, manure may be found to answer; but that in their country, where the fall does not exceed 39 inches, manure is apt to excite the plant and drive it to wood, resulting in very fine cotton plants with hardly any cotton! Experiments are being made to test the correctness of this theory. In a new country I should be glad to see as many experiments as possible tried, and it would be well not only to sow the seed in every sort of soil available, but also to try the effect of the cultivation with and without manure.

I would, however, advise all who undertake experiments with this seed to sow not less than 5 or 6 acres at a time. Any experiment conducted on a smaller scale than this will hardly be satisfactory. On an average from 8 to 10 lbs. of cotton seed are required for an acre, and thus from 50 to 60 lbs. of the seed will suffice for each trial.

Where convenient I should be glad if not less than 12 lbs. of Kupas (uncleaned cotton) from each field could be forwarded to my address at Nagpore, with a statement in the accompanying form shewing the result of the experiment.

I need hardly say that I shall be at all times exceedingly glad to answer any questions, and to render any assistance in my power to all who take an interest in the subject.

Reports on the nature and history of Fever in the Districts of Lower Bengal.

From W. A. GREEN, ESQ., M. D., Inspector-General of Hospitals, Indian Medical Service, Lower Provinces, to the Secretary to the Government of Bengal,—(No. 40, dated Fort William, the 15th April 1868.)

WITH reference to resolution of the Government of Bengal of 3rd February 1868, paragarph 15, I have the honor to submit the reports on the nature and history of the fever so fatally and generally prevalent of late years in the Districts of Lower Bengal.

Its striking features are its very fatal character, and the protracted deterioration of health that it entails. It takes its origin, it would seem, from endemic malarious and highly insanitary conditions of the soil, and of the surface of the country, from defective drainage, want of tillage, crowded habitations, foul drinking water: all these being heightened by poverty and its attendant depressing influences.

It is believed by Dr. Elliot to be contagious in its worst form, as this is the only way in which he can account for its rapid spread in a locality that it propagates itself by the emanations proceeding from the bodies of the sick. There would seem to be two forms or aspects of the fever described, viz., first, the virulent congestive fever, remittent at first, with extreme prostration, with typhoid adynamic symptoms, contagious, and very fatal; second, the intense malarious intermittent with enlarged spleen and liver, and protracted blood contamination, the one form relapsing, contagious and very fatal, and not amenable to quinine, the other an intensified intermittent with extreme depression of the vital powers during the cold stage of collapse, not contagious and curable by quinine.

The causes of the two forms appear to be identical, they spring up side by side, and pass, as Dr. Elliot is understood to say, the one into the other. Visceral enlargements are the results in both. As pointed out by the authors of the reports, improved sanitary arrangements at and about the dwellings of the people, drainage and cultivation of the land, are the grand points to be attended to with a view to avert the fever.

From J. SUTHERLAND, ESQ., M. D., Deputy Inspector-General of Hospitals, Presidency Circle, to H. M. MACPHERSON, ESQ., M. D., Secretary, Inspector-General of Hospitals, Lower Provinces,—(No. 51, dated Fort William, the 15th April 1868.)

WITH reference to Resolution of Government of Bengal dated 3rd February 1868, relative to the epidemic fever in the Burdwan District, and Inspector-General's Office Memorandum No. 1074 of the 15th of February last, calling for reports on the characters of the disease from the Civil Surgeon of Hooghly, Burdwan, Kishnaghur and Jessore, I have now the honor to forward the annexed reports from the following Medical Officers.

DR. THOMPSON	...	...	...	Hooghly.
,, ELLIOT	...	...	...	Kishnaghur.
,, MANTELL	...	...	...	Burdwan.
,, MCLEOD	...	...	...	Jessore.

An opinion appears to exist that epidemic fevers are of modern origin, and have only become remarkably prevalent and fatal in very recent times, but I think there is reason to believe that fevers of a malignant and fatal character prevailed at a very early period in the history of this country and assumed the same epidemic character as they do at the present day.

The destruction of the ancient city of Gour is a case in point; that city was subjugated in 1574 by Monaim Khan, a Lieutenant of Achar, but in a few months he perished with nearly all his troops by the effect of the pestilential climate, and from that time commenced the ruin of the city, which is now over run with jungle,—the habitation of wild beasts. The exact nature of the epidemic outbreak is not known, but there is little doubt that fever was the cause of the frightful mortality, and that it had assumed an infectious character among the vast body of men forming the invading army.

Dynatic causes and a change in the channel of the Ganges doubtless contributed their share to the destruction of Gour.

It is usual to regard the fever at present epidemic in the Burdwan District as having originated in Jessore in 1824-25, and from thence spread as a slowly advancing wave to Nuddea in 1832, and from thence to the Hooghly and Burdwan Districts, or from East to West, but facts which I shall afterwards detail have led me somewhat to modify this opinion, and to refer the epidemic at least in some cases to separate and independent manifestations of malarious influence, and to the conclusion that there is no positive evidence of a continuou move of epidemic fever.

There can be no doubt that when the disease appeared in a village it spread from house to house till the great majority of the residents became affected. The only safety was in flight, but it was observed that after a time the disease lost, its virulence, and the place where the fever had been ripe and fatal, became comparatively healthy; I saw a very marked instance of this during my inspection tours. Baroiparah, a suburb of Kishnaghur, was attacked with fever in a severe form early in 1864; few of the residents escaped, and when I visited the place in January 1866 I found the population which had numbered 8,000 reduced to 2,000; it was said that upwards of 1,000 had died of fever, 5,000 had left the place. Many of those who remained were weak and attenuated and showed signs of malarious poisoning. At the epidemic dispensary at this place I saw a large number of persons in a deplorable condition suffering from the sequelæ of fever.

On a subsequent visit to Baroiparah in November of the same year I found a complete change had taken place; the sickness had nearly disappeared; the inhabitants were becoming comparatively healthy, and people were returning to their old houses in the suburb.

In justice to the Civil Surgeon, Dr. Earle, and the Municipality, I should mention that much had been done in the interval between my visits to improve the sanitary condition of the locality.

A question has arisen as to what is the nature of the epidemic fever, and I presume it is on this point that the Bengal Government seek further information.

With regard to the reports herewith sent, it should be recollected that Dr. Elliot is the only Medical Officer who had seen much of the disease; he visited the infected villages, and saw the sick in their own houses, prescribed for them there, and furnished the Bengal Government in 1863 with a report on the nature of the disease: for these reasons, his opinion regarding the type of the fever, and its character as regards communicability by infection, is of more value than that of other Medical Officers who had neither seen nor studied the disease as he had done. Dr. Elliot describes the fever as follows in his published report: "The greater number of the cases are those in which the ordinary symptoms of severe remittent fever are succeeded after the stage of shivering has passed by heat and dryness of skin, headache, flushing of the face, pain on the back loins and lower extremities, with a foul tongue and secretions altered or suppressed.

These symptoms abate and return without any actual cessation, the periods of exacerbation and remission varying in different cases. If the crisis does not occur from the 5th to the 7th or 9th day, the fever continues from seventeen to twenty-eight days, or more, after which, if the patient does not recover, a low type of fever is established and he perishes with all the symptoms of typhoid fever. Quinine in the early stage of the disease was of no use, and only increased the tendency to local congestions. Dr. Elliot further states that in unventilated and crowded dwellings the exhalations and discharges from the bodies of the sick act as poisons, and in such localities the disease is communicated from one person to another and possessed contagious properties. Its rapid dissemination through a village is hardly to be accounted for in any other way.

Drs. Mantell and Thompson state that the epidemic fever was not infectious, but I think I shall be able to show that this opinion is founded on a partial and limited view of the question. It will be evident from facts which I shall mention that we have fevers prevalent in these districts of very different types and characters.

No one will assert that the ordinary endemic remittent or intermitted fevers of Lower Bengal are infectious diseases, but intercurrent with these is a form of relapsing fever, which is decidedly infectious. In the close of the year 1856 the Patna District suffered from a severe epidemic out-break of fever chiefly affecting the rural population. The disease was described by me in my Annual Report of the Civil Station of Patna as follows:—"The type of the fever was remittent rather than continued, but the remissions during the first few days were very indistinct. The invasion of the fever was frequently rapid; without any decided premonitory symptoms the patient appeared to be struck down and become quickly reduced to a state of extreme debility; there was a marked uniformity in the symptoms; great heat of skin, much oppression, headache, eyes suffused with bile; conjunctivæ injected, pulse generally rapid but weak, tongue coated with a white fur, its tip and edges very red; but as the fever advanced, the tongue become dry and brown with sordes on the teeth; there was generally present a feeling of heat, or pain or tenderness in the epigastrium, and the bowels were either relaxed at the commencement or during the early stage of the fever; there were urgent thirst, irritability of stomach, with tenderness in the line of the colon present in some of the cases made over to me by my predecessor.

In nearly all the cases treated by me, the fever abated on the 5th or 6th day, but a relapse almost invariably took place after an interval of apyrexia of two or three days' duration, the return of the fever being nearly as severe as the original attack.

This severe epidemic differed remarkably from any of the ordinary endemic fevers I had ever seen in this country; first, in the suddenness of the invasion, and the severity of the head symptoms; second, by the rapidity with which extreme prostration and decided typhoid symptoms ensued; and third, by its appearing to be infectious. Several of the most robust and apparently healthy attendants on the sick were seized with fever in a far greater proportion than any other class of persons not exposed to infection; the frequency of these seizures left no doubt in my mind of the fever spreading by contagion. This epidemic out-break of fever followed an unusually heavy fall of rain in the months of October and November 1856, and it committed frightful ravages throughout the Patna District.

It appears, therefore, that a fever of a highly infectious character may originate and spread from intensified malarious influences aided probably by bad ventilation and the emanations from the bodies of the sick. That the fever described by Dr. Elliot did assume an infectious character I do not doubt, and that the excessive mortality in some localities, depended on this, is, I think, rendered highly probable; but it is only in certain favorable conditions that such a result would occur, and if the ordinary endemic fever of the place exists at the same time the fact of there being an intercurrent wave of infectious fever may be easily overlooked: In the long period that has elapsed since the first appearance of epidemic fever in Jessore in 1824 up to the present date, it is probable that fevers of very different characters prevailed; this is rendered more than probable by what will be stated hereafter. In the Patna District, in the year 1859 following an extremely heavy fall of rain in the first six days of October 1859, which flooded the whole country, there was an epidemic out-break of fever, the mortality from which was most appalling, according to a return furnished me by the Magistrate of Patna. In thirteen Thannahs, with an estimated population of 7,44,262, there were 52,653 attacked with fever and 11,870 died.

The fever was described by me in a report which was sent to the Bengal Government as a low congestive fever obscurely remittent: there was little febrile heat at any time, and the pulse was rapid and weak even during the remissions. The tongue was thickly coated with bilious fur and indented on the edges, but it never became dry and red as in the epidemic of 1856, when typhoid symptoms set in early; the bowels in this epidemic were generally loose, the motions dark and offensive; at the close of the paroxysm the patients sank into a state of great exhaustion, and it was then necessary to administer stimulants. The fever described was very amenable to treatment; very few patients treated, by any of the European Medical Officers in the province, died, and yet the disease was most fatal among the rural population who had receive no skillful treatment. This again was a fever differing remarkably from the usual endemic fever of the place and season. It did not seem to be infectious like the relapsing fever of 1856 and 1857 above mentioned, and this was not to be expected, as the persons who died sank early in the disease in the cold stage or at the close of the paroxysm; it was a fever of a pure malarious character in which quinine had its usual antiperiodic curative effect.

The above facts show that fevers of various characters, requiring different modes of treatment, prevail in the same districts at no very distant intervals, and that although they seem to owe their origin to malaria, that there are some conditions of climate season, or states of the weather that cause them to assume different characters at different times, and the assumption that we are now treating exactly the same type of fever in the Burdwan District that Dr. Elliot treated in Nudden in 1862-63 is by no means borne out by the facts. From the reports of the Civil Surgeons of Hooghly and Burdwan, it would appear that an ordinary type of epidemic fever is at present prevalent in these districts; neither of these Officers appear to have seen any cases similar to the fever described by Dr. Elliot, hence the apparent difference of opinion regarding the character of the disease.

It is also certain that the fever at present epidemic in the Hooghly and Burdwan Districts bears no resemblance to the fatal form of contagious fevers which has prevailed in the Jails in the Nort-Western Provinces since 1860.

Various causes have been assigned for the origin and spread of the Bengal epidemic fever.

It has been ascribed to bad food.

1. Bad food.

2. Bad and defective drainage, railway and other embankments having interrupted the natural drainage of the country. It is contended that this has produced an excess of moisture in the soil; a statement by no means borne out by facts.

In a late inspection visit to Kishnaghur, I reported that "it appeared from enquiries made on the spot that the district is becoming more and more arid, tanks and other reservoirs of water dry up even before the hot season; some tanks were shown me that had been full to overflowing in the rainy season they are now, (31st January) becoming rapidly dried up.

3. Foul tanks and coss pools containing putrid organic matter.

4. The presence of thick clumps of bamboos or jungle which prevent the free perflation of air.

5. Defilement of the surface soil from human excreta, from the habits of the people, and by the burying of their dead close to their villages; heavy rain carrying impurities derived from such sources into tank containing water used for drinking and culinary purposes.

6. Unusual and unseasonable falls of rain at the commencement of the cold season, more especially if this is succeeded by a period of dry close, sultry weather as occurred before the epidemic out-break in the Behar Province in 1859.

7. The overflowing of rivers by which large tracts of country have been inundated. This took place before the epidemic out-break of fever in Patna District in 1856 and 1859.

That a combination of these unsanitary conditions would have a very unfavorable effect on the general health of people living within their influence cannot be doubted, and yet we may hesitate to conclude that no other agencies are necessary to cause an out-break of epidemic fever.

Many villages where fever has never made its appearance in an epidemic form are in an extremely bad sanitary condition as regards drainage, ventilation, conservancy &c.

It will be observed from what I have stated above that on two separate occasions heavy rain in the early part of the cold season preceded severe out-breaks of epidemic fever. These are facts of much interest and importance, as they show that the state of the atmosphere following heavy fall of rain at that season is one of the chief conditions necessary for lighting up fever of a severe and fatal character, and that on the occurrence of heavy falls of rain at that time of the year we should be prepared for an out-break of epidemic disease.

From a consideration of all the facts detailed, I think we may regard the following conclusions as at least highly probable.

1*st*.—That when we have epidemic fever spreading over a large tract of country and recurring every rainy and cold season for several years, that the fever is not always of the same type or character.

2*nd*.—That the epidemic influence, or the unhealthy epidemic constitution of the season, is not a continuous manifestation for a lengthened period the same morbific agent, it would rather seem that we have separate and independent manifestations of malarious influence using distinct types of fever.

3*rd*.—That although it cannot be maintained that the ordinary endemic fevers of the country are infectious, yet it is in the highest degree probable that fevers of an infectious character may be generated from conditions in which malaria seems to be the chief agent, and that fevers of an infectious and non-infectious character may prevail at the same time in the same locality.

4*th*.—That the unsanitary state of villages and rural districts as regards ventilation, bad water and drainage, are the chief causes which give origin to and aid in the spread of epidemic disease.

5*th*.—That the means for arresting the spread of such epidemics are to be found in improving the sanitary condition of the localities where the disease appears. The chief of these are: filling up pits, holes, cess-pools, &c., where decomposing organic matter has accumulated, clearing out old tanks containing impure water, converting shallow excavations into deep tanks.

If a marsh or swamp exists close to and to windward of a village, it is often practicable by digging deep tanks in convenient spots to convert the swamp into a healthy locality, using the earth procured by digging the tank for raising the general level of the adjacent swamp. This was done at Baralparah at Kishnaghur with excellent effect in the instance already referred to.

6*th*:—There is nothing injurious per se in a sheet of water, provided it is not rendered impure by organic decomposing matter passing into it, and good not harm results from increasing the number of tanks in a swampy locality.

7*th*.—Cutting down trees should only be undertaken with the greatest case and circumspection; even clumps of bamboos may afford protection from the noxious emanations of an adjacent swamp, but in all cases care should be taken to prevent the leaves of trees and other decaying vegetation from falling into a tank.

8*th*.—Care should also be taken that the water of a tank used for drinking or cooking purposes is not rendered impure by receiving the drainage of a foul and polluted surface.

9*th*.—Efforts should be made to establish public latrines in every village. Unless this is done the atmosphere around will be tainted by the emanations from foul excreta, and my own experience leads me to the conclusion that this is one of the most patent of all agents in the production of cholera, and that it probably plays no inconsiderable part in the causation of fever also.

From H. T. Thompson, Esq., M. D., Civil Assistant Surgeon of Hooghly, to Dr. J. Sutherland, Deputy Inpector-General of Hospitals, Presidency Circle,—(No. 34, dated Hooghly, the 17th March 1868.)

I have the honor to submit the following report on the fevers which prevailed in this district during the past years. I personal y visited most of the localities where it was said to be raging and invariably despatched medical aid without delay where ever assistance was urgently required in anticipation of orders, since to wait for instructions or till a Native Doctor and Compounder should be sent from Calcutta would be unsatisfactory, as they could not possibly arrive in time to be of any use in distant localities.

2. For many years past this district has suffered from a peculiar form of fever, which has been variously described by different writers. In Jessore this disease has been known according to Dr. Elliot under the name of Jar Beegar, since 1824 or 1825, when it first made it appearance at a place called Mahomedpore, some 20 miles east of the Station of Jessore; since then it has gradually spread over the Jessore District, and since 1832 over the contiguous Districts of Nuddea, reaching Chodah on the Hooghly during the rains of 1867. Two years later it invaded Baraest, from which place it gradually extended southwards into the 24-Pergunnahs, were the events of the last 3 years have tended to give it a permament home. In 1860 it appears to have crossed the Hooghly, when it attacked Tribeny and the villages in neighbourhood, opposite the village of Halleeshuhur. In July 1862 it reached Pandooah, and in six months swept off 1,200 victims. In the cold weather of 1863 Dr. Elliot was appointed to investigate the causes which had given rise to so fatal a type of disease, and to ascertain the extent of country subject to its influence. It appears from old records that the fever is by no means a Notungeer; it has the same character and nature as those epidemics which used to visit Calcutta and its neighbourhood more than a hundred years ago, with cold and hot stages, carrying off 50 or 60,000 inhabitants at a time.

The Tar Beegar is also mentioned in the Shastras from a very early period; old Indian Medical writers and others name it the Febris Intermittens algido in which the power of producing heat was so impaired that the patient died in the cold stage at the end of a few accessions; this fever is still found in its malignant form in the surrounding villages, and more or less severe in different years, some times after a lapse of several years, and if not in Calcutta now in so severe a type as formerly it is because it has given way to measures of municipal improvements, and it will be to sanitation alone that the advancement of the public health in this district also will be indebted.

3. From the description given by the people and from my own personal observation, I am of opinion that this fever in its ordinary form differs but little from the usual intermittent fevers, but if neglected, it runs into the remittent type, and in its worst phases, assumes a congestive form; almost all those seen by me had abdominal complications of a congestive nature which would seem to be the cause of the apparent great prostration with tendency to collapse, at which stage the utmost caution is needed in its treatment, because what might have been a saving remedy at the commencement of the paroxysm would be sure destruction at the end of it, but the numerous Cobrages follow only one course, starving and physicking at random, at a time when stimulance and nourishment are most needed. I have instructed my subordinates from time to time how to act in the different stages of the disease I found this fever prevailing in some portions of the district with greater severity than in others, particularly those situated inland and far away from the line of Railway, but it has not been so virulent in its attacks in this as in former years.

4. Reports have been constantly promulgated regarding the very severe epidemics prevailing in this district, but on personally investigating the matter they have proved to be greatly exaggerated, while in some instances they were found to be trust worthy.

5. It was stated that at Bansberiah so severe an epidemic was raging that the people were flying from their homes. I at once proceeded in that direction and inspected the villages of Bansberiah, Shahagunge, Ameerpore and part of Tribeny and found them almost entirely free from sickness. The respectable inhabitants said that little or no sicknees was prevailing, and indeed that it had been less in this than in former years.

6. I next proceeded to the villages of Pandooah, Ilsoba, Mondlye in the Burdwan direction, and towards Dwarbassiny, where it was also said that a very severe epidemic was raging, but on inspection I found that the fever was not of an epidemic nature, but of an intermittent type prostrating the patients for the time only, and fatal only where the patients were very old or very young and in chronic anœmic cases of former years.

7. At Dhunniakally, as well as Shahabazar, distant some 20 to 25 miles to the west of the Station of Hooghly, the fever was found to assume a much severer form, but of the same type, i. e., a smart intermittent with its well marked three stages, regular, though varying with different patients in its period of recurrence, returning sometimes after an interval of several days' duration, with nearly the same symptoms and almost as severe as the original attack, weakening the patient more and more, accompanied with its usual abdominal complications.

8. I also visited the villages of Taldangah, Tollaphattock, Chandernagore, and Seinparah not far from the Sudder Station, where it was said that sickness was raging with great severity, but on personal inspection and enquiry it proved to be only of a mild intermittent type, as is common at this season of the year.

9. I am satisfied from the most careful and repeated enquires that the disease is not contagious and that it is a very severe form of intermittent fever, entirely attributable to local causes and malarious influences. It is endemic and not of an epidemic character; the villages that suffered most are situated in the centre or lying along the borders of vast rice swamps, for which all the districts in lower Bengal are famous, fields which at certain seasons are little better than immense shallow fœtid marshes and in which the ryots work under conditions the most hostile to health.

10. The inhabitants of the villages so situated are, as a matter of course, more subject to diseases engendered by working in the marshy and slowly drying fields than those on elevated spots.

11. Sanitary measures have by no means been neglected, but on the contrary have occupied much of the Magistrate's attention. The Towns of Hooghly and Chinsurah are kept remarkably clean, but there are no pucca drains out of these towns, and the kutcha ones that have come under my observations, wherever I have been in the interior, appear to be well kept and prevented from being choked up or closed. The jungle which is almost irrepressible at certain seasons has been well kept down, the roads of the districts are in good order, and wherever new ones have been opened out, the health of that locality has greatly improved, patches of water can be seen in large excavations on the sides of the Railway embankments; but this cannot be attributed to any obstructions in the drainage of the district, and is not, in my opinion, the cause of unhealthiness. Sickness of a severe type, as I observed before, is found chiefly to exist inland, and far away from the line of Railway. There is no doubt that great improvements can be made in the drainage of different localities in the district but at an enormous cost.

12. The zemindars and ryots all seem to complain and attribute the excess of sickness and loss of life to damp during and after the rains. I have myself seen houses, the floors of which have become damp to such an extent as to enable a stick to be pushed easily through the wall, sleeping on such a floor more or less saturated with moisture, with nothing but a thin straw mat, which, if allowed to remain on the floor for two or three days would be destroyed by damp rot. This evil might in a great measure be prevented by the people themselves erecting bamboo machans for sleeping purposes, as is the custom in all rice producing countries like Burmah, China and other malarious localities. By this cheap and simple arrangement, the people are protected from the damp floors and influence of malaria during the night, when the system is relaxed, and more predisposed to receive it after the toil, fatigue, hunger, and anxiety of the day; but nothing under compulsion at first could effect this change. To a Bengalee, a foul tank, a damp floor, or a mass of rotting vegetation in the immediate vicinity of his houses carries no warning and conveys no fear; if his home be attacked by diseases generated by the malaria which has its source at his very door, his first impulse is to flee away with those who may have survived rather than to remove or assist the authorities in removing the cause of his misfortune; such anapathetic race can only be preserved from the consequences of their own ignorance and folly by constant supervision so as to teach them the danger they encounter by not observing cleanliness and the simplest rules of sanitation. In addition to the sanitary measures which have already been most energetically carried out by the Magistrate, I should strongly recommend that the most careful attention be paid to all drinking water by the people, being publicly advised to dip into it a red hot iron and allow the sediment to settle before using it, as those who adopt this plan have suffered less in proportion. The drinking water tanks should be placed under the entire care of the heads of villages, and the mud at the bottom should not be disturbed; all rank vegetation and underwood in their immediate vicinity should be periodically uprooted and burnt; the lower branches of trees over hanging them should be cut away in such a manner as to prevent the leaves from falling into them, the sides should be annually turfed; and the tank itself ought to be pumped out dry and the bottom redug every septennial year; but above all the surface drainage overflowing from spots covered with human ordure should be prevented from running into them; the existence of sewage and the contents of all drains and cesspools near drinking water tanks should be absolutely prohibited; the effects of impure drinking water, containing organic matter of the foulest description, must unquestionably produce serious and fatal diseases. Cholera is now well known to be caused by organic contamination of water, chiefly by human ordure, and this, too, is proved by sickness annually appearing in villages about the time the tanks receive the surface drainage from foul spots in addition to other malarious influences.

13. Aquatic plants should not be removed indiscriminately, as the water containing them is purer and more wholesome for drinking purposes than those without them.

14. The lotas or lotee (Nymphia Lutia) কমলক কুমুদ the lenium or pudma (Lumphia Alba and odorata) পদ্ম the sewlar or gauze (Fucus Vesculosious) শৈবাল should not be destroyed, as the oxygen given out by them purifies the water and keeps it from becoming fœtid; the pana-weed (Fucus Amylacious Cryptogamia) পানা ought always to be carefully removed, as it rapidly decomposes as soon as the weather gets hot.

15. Not until a separate portion of land is allotted to each village for burial grounds and also for trenches to be daily dug in order to receive excreta and filth of the villages will it be free from fevers and other zymotic diseases produced by local causes.

In conclusion I beg to recommend that the trees of the district be strictly preserved, only the lower branches over hanging tanks should be cut away and those interrupting ventilation, as the destruction of trees is well known to make a healthy locality a notoriously unhealthy one. I should further recommend the planting of trees in double belts between marshy grounds and villages. I am of opinion that the planting of many trees or avenues round drinking water tanks should be discouraged, the leaves falling into them assist in making the wate impure.

From J. Elliot, Esq., M. D., Officiating Civil Surgeon of Nuddea, to the Deputy Inspector-General of Hospitals, Her Majesty's Indian Army, Presidency Division, Calcutta,—(Dated Kishnaghur, the 17th March 1868.)

In compliance with your circular memorandum No. 1074, dated 15th ultimo, calling for a report on the nature of the fever lately occurring in the Nuddea and Hooghly Districts and now prevalent in some parts of Burdwan, I have the honor to state that in 1862-3, when I visited many of the villages in which it was then prevalent in its worst form, the fever, as described by me at the time, was of a peculiar character and may be said to have been of a congestive remittent type with a tendency in some cases to sudden and great depression of all the vital energies, and to excessive reaction in others, followed by rapid congestion of some vital organ, very frequently of the brain or lungs.

The congestive symptoms were concomitant with the first attack of fever, and the mortality from both the above mentioned complications was quite unusual and very great indeed.

In some instances there are said to have been discharges from the bowels resembling hemorrhagic dysentery, but I did not see any such cases.

The chief peculiarity in the disease was its tendency to relapse or to a succession of relapses after it had apparently run its course of seven, eleven, fourteen, or twenty-one days in the first instance, and to recur afterwards at irregular periods, varying from three to thirty days when the disease had become chronic and had assumed a periodic character.

In by far the greater number of persons, after the first and most fatal onbreak had passed, the congestive determination of blood was to the liver or spleen, and after temporary recovery from the first attack, the sub acute inflammatory action which had been established in one or other of these organs seemed to me to act as a fresh exciting cause of fever and greatly assisted in reproducing it.

Either from this case, or more probably owing to only partial elimination of the poison from the system a relapse took place from five to ten days after recovery, the febrile symptoms remaining for perhaps a week without any perceptible remission, and then, as if the poison recurred at intervals for months, accompained by all the symptoms and sequelæ of what is usually termed malarious poisoning.

Intercurrent with this type of disease were many cases of the ordinary endemic fever in an intensified form, more or less amenable to treatment by quinine, &c., but certain to recur at some period within the month and as certainly followed by enlargement of liver and spleen.

The symptoms characterising the fever were detailed in a previous report.

It is usually ushered in with a rigor, followed by a strong reaction: a dry, hot or rather burning skin, full pulse, headache and intolerance of light, a foul white furred tongue, pain in the back and muscles generally.

The first signs of a remission are cleaning of the tip and sides of the tongue, which from being dry becomes moist: moisture appears on the skin also with a general feeling of relief. There is no apparent crisis; recovery is slow, the body is much emaciated, the blood deteriorated, the spleen and liver enlarged, the skin is dry, cracks and changes in color, jaundice is sometimes present.

The appetite is capricious for a long time afterwards, and after the person bathes and takes the first full meal, a relapse occurs and the disease runs its course as before.

The fever is not amenable to the usual treatment by quinine either as a preventive or as an antiperiodic. The symptoms are aggravated by its use and the tendency to local congestions increased.

The same kind of fever was known in former years in Rungpore, Dinagpore and Jessore, and from a description by Dr. Wise of a type of fever lately prevalent near Dacca, I conclude that it is of the same nature as that now under report.

It can be traced from the District of Jessore, where it prevailed in 1832 to Nuddea, Hooghley, 24-Pergunnahs and Burdwan, travelling slowly from east to west, attacking all classes of people and all kinds of villages.

It is most virulent in large and densely populated places where the land has not been cultivated or exposed to the sun's rays for years, but it has prevailed in others very differently circumstanced. In its worst type, it does not appear to remain for more than a few months in a place, but few of those attacked entirely recover so long as they remain in the locality where the disease was contracted. The mortality attending it exceeds, I believe, that of any other known disease in the same space of time.

It has been attributed by natives to obstruction of the drainage of a certain tract of country by the throwing up of the embankments for the purpose of constructing Railway, and roads. This belief was very general in 1862-63 when the fever was prevalent in villages near the Railway on either side of the Hooghley River, but it was equally prevalent in villages remote from the rail as it was in those near to it. At Majgram and Barasat, for instances on this side of the river, at Dwurbassiny, Culna, &c., on the other.

It was known in Jessore, moreover, long before the Eastern Bengal Railway was constructed.

Others have attributed it to undue moisture in the soil at certain periods of the year and to the want of good water for drinking purposes.

All places suffer nearly alike from damp during the rains, because of the want of any system of drainage; and the water is alike bad in all villages which depend upon tanks for their supply.

It would seem probable, however, that during the last 30 years some change has taken place in the general supply of water to these Districts, owing either to the silting up of the beds of the large rivers and their branches, or to other circumstances by which their course has from time to time changed. In places where the supply of water was formerly plentiful, there is now a great scarcity, tanks and wells have almost dried up and the little water that remains in them during the hot season deteriorates and becomes unfit for use.

It is possible therefore that as the regular supply of water has been withdrawn, the natural drainage also of that tract of country has been intercepted and changed, while the soil under such circumstances, saturated as it is in most villages with animal excreta and the decaying vegetation of successives seasons, disengages malaria in an intensified form, thereby causing a change in the type of disease generally, and under certain unfavorable circumstances such as are to be found in every village, originates fever of an exaggerated type accompanied by rapid deterioration and poisoning of the blood, with all the other symptoms of endemic fevers in their most malignant and adynamic type.

Under these circumstance, it may be supposed that in unventilated and crowded dwellings the exhalations and discharges from the bodies of the sick act as poisons, and that in such localities the disease is communicated from one person to another, and possesses contagious properties. Its rapid dissemination through a village is hardly to be accounted for in any other way.

Memorandum from K. McLeod, Esq., M. D., Civil Assistant Surgeon of Jessore, to the Deputy Inspector-General of Hospitals, Presidency Circle,—(No. 120, dated, Jessore, the 26th December 1868.)

Referring to Circular Memorandum No.

The undersigned has the honor to state that no form of disease, corresponding to what he conceives the epidemic alluded to, has prevailed in this district since 1865. In that year a very fatal form of malarious fever was prevalent of which the writer had no personal experience, having joined the station just after its decline. The the late Assistant Surgeon in charge and Sub-Assistant Surgeon both considered the disease to be simply a more malignant manifestation of the malarious fever always prevailing here after the rains.

Native Doctors have got into the way of calling all out-breaks intermittent and remittent fevers epidemic, and I suspect that intelligent Natives and Civil Officers have fallen in the same practice.

As far as the writer's experience has gone no fever has appeared in Jessore during 1866 and 1867 other than a strictly endemic manifestation of fever of malarious type.

Report on the Epidemic Fever which was prevalent in the Burdwan District, forwarded for the information of the Deputy Inspector-General of Hospitals, by the Civil Surgeon of Burdwan.

I have the honor to report that my experience of the epidemic fever which has devastated the lower part of the Burdwan District dates from the 6th May 1867, on which day, by order of the Magistrate, I visited the village of Ghose, situated about five miles from the Mymaree Railway Station.

The inhabitants stated that the fever had been prevalent in the village since the cyclone of 1864, and they attributed it to the tank water which had been corrupted by that visitation, and to the air, which they said had continued bad from that period.

During my visit I saw about forty persons of all ages suffering from fever. Their description of its character led me to believe that it was chiefly an intermittent fever of an unusally violent type and complicated with enlargement of the spleen in nearly every case. The water of Ghose I reported at the time to be very bad indeed. The village was filled with small cesspools, and the water in these was dark in color, putrid, and abounding in insect life. Many of them were nearly dry, and through the little water which still remained bubbles of gas were constantly escaping; the mud at the bottom of these cesspools was black and offensive, and from its depth would take several days to dry up, during which period it can be easily imagined what an enormous quantity of impure gases and malarious exhalations would escape and poison the surrounding atmosphere.

A Native Doctor was sent to attend the sick at this village; during his stay, from the 3rd April to the 23rd May, 198 cases were treated, of which only one died; all the recent cases appeared to be easily cured by large doses of quinine and apperients administered early in the disease.

At the end of the rainy season of 1866 this village and also the villages of Odera, Echapore, Gungariah, Sargatchia, and Moheeb Dungah were visited by the epidemic, the result being that all who survived suffered more or less from enlargement of the spleen anæmia and emaciation.

From the date on which the Native Doctor left Ghose up to the present time there has not been any further out-break of fever in that village, but a large number of its inhabitants are in a very bad state of health and will, in the event of an unhealthy season this year (1868), fall victims to their long standing diseased condition.

It was during the months of Bhadro, Assin, and Kartick that the epidemic fever again made its appearance in the Mymarree District. The village reported to be stricken with it were Mymarree, Echapore, and Bancoupra. Native Doctors were sent to these places, but being Mahomedans they were not popular amongst the Hindoos, and consequently the amount of relief afforded by them was not so great as it would have been had they been Hindoos.

From the 10th of September to the 4th of December, 791 persons were treated by the Native Doctors, and of these 15 died, the average number of deaths to treated being 1·89.

During my periodical visits to the different villages which have suffered, I have endeavoured to ascertain if any true cause can be assigned for this fever. I cannot, however, give any satisfactory opinion on the subject; that it solely arises from the condition of the water I cannot believe, as many villages which have not suffered at all have water just impure as those that have suffered. The natives are almost unanimous in saying that the cyclone of 1864 has poisoned both air and water and they give this as the cause; others attribute it to certain embankments having stopped, or interfered with the drainage of the country, but this seems to be an unsatisfactory explanation.

From the character of the disease when first seen by me at the village of Ghose I concluded that it was essentially an intermittent fever; further experience, however, has shown that remittent fever is equally prevalent in the stricken villages, and that it is these two diseases which, being of unusually severe types, have devastated the district. The fever is often of so violent a nature that some victims have died in three and four days after seizure.

I saw several lying in the hot stage, extremely weak, with enlarged spleens, some listless, others delirious; my most careful enquires have failed to discover that there was any fear of contagion amongst the inhabitants of any of the fever villages. Dr. Cayley recorded his opinion that the fever was not contagious; during his tenure of office in this station cases of it were admitted in to the Police Hospital and Jail, but in no instance was it communicated to any one else. I had a case in the Police Hospital about three months ago. The constable was brought in from the epidemic district and died in Hospital; no other patient was attacked by it.

The Sub-Assistant Surgeon of Chuckdiggee and the one attached to the Moha Rajah's Dispensary in Burdwan, are both of opinion that it is not contagious, and they have each had much experience in the disease.

I am of opinion that it is nothing more than a very concentrated form of fever, resulting entirely from malarious influences and intensified by the famine from which all in those districts have more or less suffered. Severe malarious fever was very prevalent in Burdwan and its Suburbs at the end of last rains; fortunately it did not become epidemic, but it was found that the quantity of quinine required to check the disease was much more than in former years.

This epidemic has gradually spread in a north-west direction. It has appeared in a village called Gangpore, about five miles from Burdwan; this is its nearest approach to the station.

The following are the villages inspected by me during the past season.

Ghose, Mymarree (four times) Echapore (twice) Bamoonpara, Ahmedpore (twice) Gungooriah (twice) Nishanpore, Betaraghur (twice) Selimabad, Gowreepore (twice) Chatkund (twice) Elamdanga, Ahboojahattee, Jowgran (twice) Dhecheepore, Poongran, Andear, Bijaree, Kejah, Gungpore, Korbugean.

I examined the water of the tanks of all these villages as well as other matters connected with the epidemic and reported the same for the information of the Government. I also appended suggestions as to the measures which should be taken to endeavour to prevent any further outbreaks of this calamitous disease.

The mean Temperature and the mean Wet Bulb are derived from the twenty-four hourly Observations made during the day.

The Dew-point is computed with the Greenwich constants. The figures in column ten represent the humidity of the air, the complete saturation of which being taken at unity. The receiver of the lower rain gauge is 1 foot 2 inches, and that of the Anemometer 70 feet 10 inches, above the level of the ground. The velocity of wind, as indicated by Robinson's Anemometer, is registered from noon to noon.

WEDNESDAY, JUNE 24, 1868.

Government of Bengal.

LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

Act No. I of 1868.

An Act to make further provision for the Survey of Steam Vessels plying within the Provinces subject to the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal.

Preamble.

WHEREAS it is expedient to make further provision for the survey by competent Surveyors, and the management by competent Engineers, of Steam Vessels plying on the rivers or waters within the Provinces subject to the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal; It is enacted as follows:—

Steam vessels to be liable to survey.

I. For Section I of Act V of 1862 passed by the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal in Council, entitled an Act to provide for the periodical survey of Steam Vessels in the Port of Calcutta, shall be substituted the words following:—

"All Steam Vessels plying on any of the rivers or waters within the Provinces subject to the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal, except Steam Vessels which may ply between some port within the said Provinces and some port not in British India, shall be liable to be surveyed twice in every year in the manner prescribed in the said Act V of 1862."

Power to appoint ports of survey.

II. It shall be lawful for the Lieutenant-Governor, by an order to be published in the Calcutta Gazette, to appoint any ports or places in the Provinces subject to his government, to be Ports of Survey for the purposes of the said Act V of 1862, and of this Act.

Other ports of survey added to Calcutta in former Act.

III. In Sections III, V, VI, and VII of the said Act V of 1862, the words "or any other port of survey" shall be deemed and taken to be inserted therein after the word "Calcutta" wherever the said word may occur in the said Sections, and from and after the passing of this Act the said Sections shall be read and construed as if the said words had been so inserted.

Absence from that sole vulgar Port of Survey to be substituted for "absent from and return to Calcutta."

IV. In Section XII of the said Act V of 1862 the words "shall not be in any port of survey" shall be substituted for the words "is absent from the port of Calcutta;" and the words "arrival at some port of survey" shall be substituted for the words "return to the port of Calcutta;" and the said Section shall, from and after the passing of this Act, be read and construed as if the said words so to be substituted had been originally inserted in the said Act, instead of the said words for which they are so to be substituted.

Power to impose additional fees.

V. It shall be lawful for the Lieutenant-Governor, from time to time by an order to be published in the Calcutta Gazette, to direct that in any Port of Survey other than Calcutta, in addition to the fees imposed by the said Act V of 1862, there shall be paid, for every survey of a steam vessel in such port by the owner or Master of such steam vessel such further fee, for or towards the expense of the journey of a Surveyor to such port, as in such order shall be set forth; and from time to time in like manner to alter, vary, or revoke any such order; and every fee so to be payable shall be recoverable by the ways and means in the said Act provided for the recovery of the fees thereby imposed.

Power to investigate causes of explosions.

VI. Whenever any explosion shall occur on board of any steam vessel subject to this Act, it shall be lawful for the Lieutenant-Governor, if he shall think fit, to direct that an investigation of the cause of such explosion be made by such person or persons as he shall think fit. The person or persons authorized by the Lieutenant-Governor, to make such investigation may enter into and upon such steam vessel with all necessary workmen and laborers, and remove any portion of such steam vessel, or of the machinery thereof, for the purpose of such investigation, and shall report the cause of such explosion.

Examinations to be instituted for Engineers.

VII. Examinations shall be instituted for persons who intend to become Engineers of Steamers, or who wish to procure Certificates of Competency hereinafter mentioned.

The Examiners and Rules of Examination to be provided.

VIII. The Lieutenant-Governor, or any Board or Officer duly authorized by him in that behalf, shall from time to time, nominate two or more competent persons for the purpose of examining the qualifications of the applicants for examination, and may make rules for the conduct of such examinations, and as to the qualifications to be required, and the fees to be paid by all applicants for examination.

Certificates of Competency to be given.

IX. The Lieutenant-Governor, or such Board or Officer as aforesaid, shall deliver to every applicant who is reported by the Examiners to have passed the examination satisfactorily, a certificate (hereinafter called a "Certificate of Competency") to the effect that he is competent to act as Engineer.

Certificates of Service to be given.

X. Every person who, before the passing of this Act, has served for a period of not less than one year as first or only Engineer in any steam vessel, or who has attained or shall attain the rank of First Class Assistant Engineer in the Service of Her Majesty, shall be entitled to a Certificate of Service. Each of such Certificates of Service shall contain particulars of the name and of the length and nature of the previous service of the person to whom it is delivered, and the Lieutenant-Governor, or such other authority as aforesaid, shall deliver such Certificates of Service to the various persons so respectively entitled thereto, upon their proving themselves to have attained such rank, or to have served as aforesaid, and upon their giving a full and satisfactory account of the particulars aforesaid, and on payment of such fees as the Lieutenant-Governor shall, by an order published in the Calcutta Gazette, from time to time direct.

No Certificate of Survey if vessels have not a Certificated Engineer.

XI. No Certificate of Survey under the said Act V of 1862, or this Act, shall be granted for any steam vessel, unless it shall have as its Engineer an Engineer possessing a Certificate of Competency or a Certificate of Service.

Penalty for plying without a Certificated Engineer.

XII. The Owner, and also the Master, of any steam vessel subject to this Act, which shall ply on any of the rivers or waters in the Provinces subject to the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal, without having in charge of the engines thereof an Engineer possessing a Certificate of Service or a Certificate of Competency, shall be liable to a fine not exceeding five hundred Rupees.

Power to exempt private steam vessels.

XIII. It shall be competent to the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal to exempt from the operation of Sections XI and XII any Steamer which does not ply with passengers or goods, or as a Steam Tug for hire.

Withdrawal of Certificate.

XIV. It shall be lawful for the Lieutenant-Governor, or such Board or authority as aforesaid, in case of the misconduct, negligence, or incompetency of any Engineer possessing a Certificate of Competency or a Certificate of Service, to cancel such Certificate, or to suspend the same for such time as to him or them shall seem fit.

English Certificates to be available.

XV. Every Engineer's Certificate of Competency or Service, which may be granted by any competent authority in the United Kingdom, shall have, in all respects, the same validity and effect as if the same had been granted under the provisions of this Act.

Certificates to be made in duplicate.

XVI. All Certificates, whether of Competency or Service, shall be made in duplicate, and one part shall be delivered to the person entitled to the Certificate, and the other shall be kept and recorded as the Lieutenant-Governor shall direct. A note of all orders made for cancelling, suspending, altering, or otherwise affecting any Certificate in pursuance of the powers herein contained, shall be entered in the record of Certificates.

Copy of Certificate to be delivered.

MR. HOGG said, as a memorial from the householders and residents at Hastings had just been received, drawing attention to the several provisions of the Bill "for subjecting the Southern portion of Hastings to the provisions of the Municipal Acts of Calcutta," he would ask that the consideration of the Bill be postponed to the next meeting, to enable the Council to consider the memorial received.

BABOO PEARY CHAND MITTRA said, he had not the least objection to the postponement of the consideration of the Bill, but he thought it would be well if the hon'ble mover were to lay before the Council an estimate of the probable amount of the income and expenditure of Hastings; and should there be any deficit, if he would show how it was proposed that the deficit should be met. This information was absolutely necessary before the Bill could be properly considered. It would be well if it was understood that all necessary information would be submitted to the Council before they were asked to pass the Bill.

MR. HOGG said, he would at the next meeting be prepared to answer any questions, and to give any information the hon'ble member might require.

The consideration of the Bill was postponed.

RECOVERY OF ARREARS OF REVENUE AND PUBLIC DEMANDS.

THE ADVOCATE-GENERAL said, the Council were aware that for some days several amendments which he had proposed had been in circulation, and also two important amendments proposed by the hon'ble member opposite (Baboo Ramanath Tagore). Since then, he (the Advocate-General) had come to the conclusion that before the Bill could be finally reduced into what might be considered a desirable form, some other modifications, and not unimportant modifications, would be necessary; and he might also mention that since the last meeting a communication had been brought to his notice from the Commissioner of Cuttack (in which district the practical operation of the proposed measure would be more tested than in any other part of Bengal) which contained many points requiring consideration. No doubt the Council might now proceed, to a certain extent, to the further consideration of the Clauses of the Bill; but he thought that, on the whole, perhaps the better course would be that whatever further modifications the Bill might require should be submitted all together as early as possible in the course of the next week, so that the Council should be in a position to consider the Bill as a whole, and determine as to what its final shape ought to be. He would therefore propose that the further consideration of the Bill should be postponed to the next meeting of the Council.

SUITS BETWEEN LANDLORDS AND TENANTS.

Mr. Thompson moved for leave to bring in a Bill to amend the procedure in suits between landlords and tenants. He said, the object of the proposed measure was in the first place to transfer the adjudication of suits between landlords and tenants now triable by the Revenue Courts to the Courts of Civil Jurisdiction; and, secondly, to amend the procedure under which that class of suits was now tried. The Council was aware that the laws and regulations which governed the procedure and trial of what were formerly called summary suits for arrears of rent between landlord and tenant had undergone many changes. Previously to the passing of Act X. of 1859, the rules and practice in the conduct and institution of summary suits between landlords and tenants for the recovery of rent, and complaints of illegal distraint for rent, were scattered over the pages of many old Regulations, dating from the year 1793 to 1859, and the necessity for the revision and consolidation of the Distraint and Summary Suit Laws having been generally recognized, Act X. of 1859 was passed, after much deliberation and debate, with the object of providing one uniform procedure for all such suits. It would not, perhaps, be considered necessary for him to impose upon the Council an explanation in detail of all the stages through which the rent laws in the country had passed, the Courts before which they were cognizable, and the procedure under which they were tried. As he had before remarked, these changes had been frequent and numerous. It would be sufficient to say that originally the cognizance of this class of suits was vested in the Civil Courts. By a later Regulation (VII. of 1799), the Judges were empowered to refer to the Collector for preparation and report cases of that kind which came before them; and from that time all such suits were heard in the first instance by Collectors of land revenue. This system was, however, found not to be sufficiently expeditious for the adjudication of such cases, and by a later law Regulation XIV. of 1824, Collectors were authorized not only to report, but to hear, investigate, and determine such suits, but only when referred to them by the Civil Courts. The delay which arose through such references was, however, found to be objectionable, and by Regulation VIII. of 1831, the authority of the Civil Courts to entertain these suits was finally rescinded, and the Collectors were empowered to take up these cases and try them, and that power was recognized in Act X. of 1859.

It would be scarcely necessary to remind the Council that the question of jurisdiction as to the cognizance of suits of this nature was one which was seriously and long discussed in the deliberations of the Legislature at the time when the existing rent law was under the consideration; and though there were many influential voices against the exclusive jurisdiction of the Revenue Courts, the opinion prevailed, and was finally adopted, that all cases which could arise between landlord and tenant were best left to the primary cognizance of the Revenue authorities. For the last eight years that law had been in force.

Now, it would be necessary to bear in mind that the class of suits triable by Collectors before Act X. of 1859 was passed, were entirely of a summary nature; they were either for the realization of arrears of rent on the part of the zemindar, or complaints on account of illegal exactions on the part of the ryot—cases which went under the familiar names of huftum and punjum. But by Act X. of 1859, a great many suits that were formerly triable by the regular Courts were transferred to the cognizance of Revenue Officers; and it was not only that cases for the recovery of arrears of rent or complaints of improper exactions remained for adjudication by those officers; but cases involving very intricate questions of law, and important interests in landed property were, under Act X. of 1859, brought before the Collectors and their subordinates.

He (Mr. Thompson) would not go the length of saying that the experiment had been a total failure, and that the Revenue Courts had proved themselves wholly incompetent to adjudicate in all such cases; but this he could assert that the opinion now of all competent to give an opinion upon the subject, was that the work would be better done if transferred to the regular Civil Courts of the country. This was founded on the knowledge that the Civil Courts generally were now presided over by officers who had had special preparation for their duties; and that from their official habits and experience such officers would be better fitted to deal with the class of suits which the rent-law had given rise to, than executive officers who had had no such training, and who had to give their attention to many other duties.

Objection had been made to him that as the present system had been so long in force, it would be better not to change it now, as the Deputy Collectors had become familiar with the procedure in the trial of rents suits. He begged to oppose to that, that as in all branches of the rent-laws there was now a large body of judicial precedents laid down in the decisions of the High Court with which the Civil Courts were familiar, there would be no disadvantage in that respect by transferring the cognizance of such suits to those Courts.

He (Mr. Thompson) would advert to another important consideration as pointing to the advisability of the proposed transfer of jurisdiction. It had been advanced by those who desired that the primary cognizance of rent suits should remain in the hands of the Collectors, that, considering that large number of sub-divisions had been created throughout the country, and that generally Deputy Collectors had been placed in charge of them, the means of redress would be abundant, and facilities afforded to the poorer classes (for whose benefit Act X. of 1859 was principally intended) in the conduct of their cases. He did not know how far that expectation had been realized, but certainly in the remoter districts of Bengal there were many more Moonsiffees than Collectorates or sub-divisions, and all recent enquiries clearly showed the would be seen from the annexures to the Bill) that whereas sub-divisional officers were over burdened with work, the files of the Moonsiffs' Courts were comparatively light. The Courts of the Moonsiffs in all parts of the country had a local jurisdiction of limited extent, and therefore no objection could rightly be raised that facilities for redress would not be afforded if the proposed transfer was effected. He thought rather that there would be as great, if not greater, facilities under the proposed change; and if we took into account the training and experience of the Moonsiffs, supervised as they now were by the High Court, he fully anticipated, not only that the expedition in the disposal of suits would be greater, but that more satisfaction would be given to the parties by the better and more uniform administration of the law.

With this view, he had, with the assistance of the learned Assistant Secretary, brought in a Bill to transfer the adjudication of suits between landlords and tenants from the revenue to the Civil Courts; and he proposed in the institution and trial of such suits the adoption generally, with a few necessary modifications, of the procedure of Act VIII. of 1859. It was with some hesitation he had taken that course, because he had found it remarked by many who were conversant with the rent law, that the procedure under Act X. of 1859 was admirably suited for cases of a summary character; and unless very good grounds were shown, it was not advisable to change it. Still, the advice of those with whom he had consulted favoured the view that it would be better, on the whole, to adopt the procedure of Act VIII. of 1859, and the Acts amending it, with such modifications as might be necessary for the speedy determination of rent cases. And while it was certain that under that Code even regular civil suits were disposed of now with a despatch which gave no cause for complaint, the advantage would be very great in having one code of procedure for all cases in the Civil Courts.

The Bill was only to have effect in those parts where the permanent settlement prevailed, and so far Act X. of 1859 would not be repealed, but would remain in force in the places to which the new law did not extend. But there would be a Clause empowering the Government to extend the provisions of the Act to any other places which it might think fit.

With those remarks, he begged to move for leave to bring in the Bill.

The motion was agreed to.

POLICE AND CONSERVANCY OF TOWNS.

Mr. Dampier said, the next motion was in his name; but before making the motion formally, he would ask leave to refer once more to the doubts which had existed, and he was afraid existed still, as to the possibility of working the Bill, and as to the objects of it being appreciated by the people in towns. Here was an extract from a general report on the affairs of his District from a Magistrate on whom he was sure great reliance could be placed. The report was not written in reference to this Bill, but the passage he would read occurred incidentally in one paragraph of the report. The Magistrate said:—

"In my tour I did my utmost to foster in the people a desire for Municipal Institutions. In most of the chowkeydaree unions the respectable inhabitants have generally held aloof, and the Punchayet has consisted of men of no local standing or position. At Chogdah and Jagooly we had great difficulty in getting any one to serve at all; but by treating the members of the Punchayet like Municipal Commissioners and by consulting them as to the disposal of the funds, the strength of the Police, and other questions I have found no difficulty in inducing the leading people to the management of their own towns. With a little tact and care, I am sure that Municipal Institutions can be very greatly and advantageously developed."

He (Mr. Dampier) thought that was a strong confirmation of the views he had expressed as to the Bill before the Council. He would now move that the Report of Select Committee on the Bill "to amend and consolidate the law for the regulation of Police in Towns under the control of the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal, and for the conservancy and improvement thereof," be further considered in order to the settlement of the Clauses of the Bill.

On the motion of Mr. Dampier, a verbal amendment was made at the beginning of Section III, and the following words were substituted for the first proviso in the Section:—

"Provided always that any assessment, rate or tax which may be in force under the said Acts, or any of them, in any town at the time when this Act may come into operation in such town, shall continue to be levied under the procedure in those Acts until an assessment, under the provisions hereinafter contained, shall be in force in such town, and that all the powers and provisions in and by those Acts, or any of them, conferred for the recovery of arrears of assessments, rates, or taxes under those Acts or any of them, shall continue to be in force for the recovery of such arrears until all such arrears shall have been recovered, or shall have ceased to be recoverable, and all arrears so collected shall become part of the Town Fund of such town, and may be expended for any of the purposes of this Act."

The object of these amendments, Mr. Dampier said, was to allow outstanding arrears, under the old chowkeydaree tax, to be collected after the assessments, under the new Act, came into force. When the new assessment came into force there would be certain arrears under the old Act still due, and the object was to allow those arrears being collected simultaneously with the current demands.

The Advocate-General said, he understood the object of the amendment to apply to arrears of rates or taxes which would continue to be enforced according to the provisions of the old Act. But he wished to know whether it was intended that the procedure of the old law should be applicable to such arrears, although the new Act was in operation. As the amendment stood, the provisions of the old Act were made to continue if they were in force at the time when this Act came into operation, and they were to continue until the new assessment was made. He thought that it would make the provision quite clear, if, at the end of the amendment, with reference to the recovery of these arrears, the words "notwithstanding that this Act may have come into operation in such town" were inserted.

Mr. Dampier intimated that the Advocate-General's suggestion would exactly meet his intention, and he would therefore adopt it.

The amendment, with the addition proposed, was then agreed to.

Verbal amendments were then made, on the motion of Mr. Dampier, in Sections 4, 6, 7, 12, 17, 24, 28, 29, 38 and 40.

Section 43, which was on the subject of appeals was omitted, most of the matters contained in the Section being provided for in the subsequent provisions of the Bill.

Verbal amendments were made in Sections 49, 51, 52, and 54.

Section 56 provided that appeals from assessments made by the Town Committee should be made on unstamped paper to the Magistrate.

Mr. Dampier moved verbal amendments to the effect that the appeals should be made to the Town Committee, who if they should not grant the prayer of the appeal, should submit the decision of the matter to the Magistrate.

The Advocate-General said that as the Section stood, the appeal would be on unstamped paper, but that appeared to conflict with the provisions of Act XXVII. of 1867 of the Imperial Legislature, in the Schedule to which certain stamps were imposed on certain specified classes of petitions; and inasmuch as the Schedule, in so far as it related to petitions, was limited in its terms to petitions of appeal to Municipal Commissioners in the Presidency Towns, the appeals which Section 59 provided from the decisions of Ward to Town Committees might properly be made on unstamped paper. But with regard to appeals to the Magistrate which this Section provided, the Schedule to the Stamp Act did impose a stamp on any petition to a Magistrate in his executive capacity. The effect, however, of requiring an eight anna stamp on appeals under this clause would be such as would practically render the clause inoperative. It was therefore proposed that instead of the petition being presented to the Magistrate, it should be presented to the Town Committee, who would then either determine the matter in favor of the applicant, or, if they could not do so, would refer the matter to the Magistrate; but that reference would not be in the way of petition, and would not therefore require a stamp.

Mr. Dampier said, he would wish it to be understood that there was nothing in the present amendment which conflicted with or which evaded the real intention of the Stamp Law. Its object was to get over a difficulty in the wording of the Stamp Law, which under the circumstances which had now arisen was opposed to the spirit of that law. The Stamp Law deliberately and specifically exempted petitions of appeal from the "Chowkeydarce assessment," but the assessment under this Bill could no longer be called a Chowkeydarce assessment; so that petitions of appeal presented directly to a Magistrate regarding it would no longer come under the exemption, but by the letter of the law would be subject to a stamp of eight annas. By the device contained in the Section as amended, the petition of appeal would be actually presented to the Town Committee, and would, therefore, not require to be written on stamped paper, while the final decision of the appeal would lie with the Magistrate. The course was strictly in accordance with the intention of the framers of the Stamp Law.

The amendment was then agreed to.

Mr. Dampier moved the introduction of the following Section after Section 58:—

"Any person who shall have been assessed by a Town Committee of which the Magistrate has been appointed a member, and who shall be dissatisfied with his assessment, or who shall dispute his occupation of any property or his liability to be assessed, may apply on unstamped paper to the Town Committee for a review of the assessment, so far as regards himself; and with regard to such applications the Town Committee at a Meeting shall proceed as the Magistrate is directed to proceed in Section LVIII. and the decision by the Town Committee on such application shall have the same effect and liability as orders passed by the Magistrate under Section LVIII. Applications under this Section to the Town Committee at a Meeting shall be subject to the same limitation of time as appeals to the Magistrate under Section LVIII."

He said, he need only repeat what he said at the last meeting. The object of Section 58 was to provide for an appeal from assessments made directly by Town Committees of which the Magistrate was not a member. Then this Section would provide for a review (not an appeal) of the assessment where the Magistrate was a member of the Town Committee. It would clearly be absurd to give an appeal against the assessment made by that body to the Magistrate. The Section provided that the decision of the Town Committee on their review would be final. The next Section (59) provided for an appeal to the Town Committee from assessments of Ward Committees.

The Section was agreed to.

Verbal amendments were made in Section 60.

Mr. Dampier moved the introduction of the following Section after Section 60:—

"It shall be lawful for any person upon whom any assessment shall have been made, who shall, during the period for which such assessment is valid, have ceased to occupy any property in respect of which he may have been assessed, or whose property to be protected, and circumstances, may have changed during the period aforesaid, to apply on unstamped paper to the Magistrate, and the Magistrate, after making such enquires as he may deem necessary, by examination of the applicant on oath or solemn affirmation, or otherwise, may amend the assessment of such applicant as to him shall appear just, or may confirm the same, and in case he shall confirm the said assessment, may order that the applicant shall pay such reasonable costs as may have been incurred by reason of such application. The decision of such Magistrate upon such application shall be final."

The object, he said, was to enable persons who had been assessed, but whose circumstances had changed, or property to be protected had deteriorated in value during the currency of the assessment, to obtain relief, and also to enable persons, who had ceased to occupy any property in respect of which he might have been assessed, to have their names struck off the list of tax-payers.

The Section was agreed to.

Verbal amendments were made in Sections 71, 74, 75, and 78.

Mr. Dampier moved the introduction of the following Section after after Section 82:—

"In any place to which this Act shall not have been extended, and to which the provisions of the said Act XX. of 1856 have been or shall be extended, it shall be lawful for the Magistrate, by the ways and means in and by the same Act provided for raising the amount of the expense of Chowkeydars appointed under the said Act, to cause to be levied such sum as to him shall seem meet, and apply the same in cleansing such place, or in lighting or otherwise improving the same. Provided that the aggregate amount so to be raised shall not, together with the amount to be raised under the provisions of the said Act XX. of 1856, exceed the average of five annas per mensem for each house and the amount assessed in respect of any one house shall not exceed five Rupees per mensem."

The object of the Section was to leave the Magistrate exactly as he was under Act XX. of 1856, with the same powers that he had under that Act in places to which the new Act did not extend, and to prevent those powers being altered in any way by any recent legislation that had taken place.

KOOMAR HARENDRA KRISHNA moved the omission of the words "tract of country" from the definition of the word "Place" in Section 1. The Council, he said, had omitted entirely the Section providing for the formation of unions: But if, by the definition of the word "Place," we included a tract of country, the result would be the same as if power was given to form unions. If this definition stood as it was, places at a considerable distance from each other might be included together, which, he believed, was not what the Bill now contemplated.

MR. DAMPIER said, he would ask the hon'ble member whether he thought (to go back to an example that had already been worn threadbare) that what were now called the Suburban Unions ought not to be treated as one town. He (Mr. Dampier) quite agreed in the opinion that the operation of the Act should be confined to one town in the ordinary acceptation of the word; that you ought not to skip over a large tract of land, and then pick out another town to form one municipality with the first. But he had found it perfectly impossible to get some definition that would exactly hit off what was intended. The proposed amendment would oblige the Executive Government to divide places for the operation of the Act, which were the same in every thing but name. He did not see how that difficulty was to be got over if the Council thought proper to start with the assumption that the object of the Executive Government would be to extend the Act to the whole of Lower Bengal and to bring under its operation places which were unfit for it. It would be seen that under Section 4 nothing in the Act would authorize the extension of the law to any place inhabited by persons more than one-half of whom might be employed in agriculture only. The Bill was not therefore open to the abuse which the hon'ble member pointed out. If the Government were to attempt anything in the shape of trying to make unions by including rural tracts, the Government would be transgressing the provisions of Section 4, and such an extension of the Act would be illegal.

MR. HOGG said, if the word "Place" stood in Section 4, the Magistrate, acting on behalf of Government, would be entitled to take into account the total population of the town, and all the villages included in any tract of country. By that means a great number of villages, exclusively inhabited by a rural and agricultural population, would be brought within the incidence of the tax. For instance, a town in which it would be right to introduce the Act, might consist of two or three thousand persons, and the villages in a surrounding tract of country might contain one or two thousand. Taking then the total population of the whole tract, and deducting the agricultural population, it would then be found that the agricultural population was not more than one-half. Any number of villages, the population of which was entirely rural, might thus be brought under the operation of the law, which was certainly not intended.

MR. DAMPIER said, he admitted the force of the objection taken, and if the hon'ble member could show how it could be remedied, he would be happy to adopt the amendment.

MR. THOMPSON said, he would support the amendment, because, by the change of the word "village" in Section 4, to "Place" the views adopted by the Select Committee were quite upset. He would put it to the Council generally whether the interpretation given to the word "Place" would not make it capable for the Government to extend the Act to places which were not contemplated. If it was impracticable to omit the words "tract of country" from the definition of the word "Place" in the Interpretation Clause, the word "village," he thought, ought to remain in Section 4.

The PRESIDENT said, he should prefer to see the interpretation of the word "Place" remain as it was, and the word "Place" in Section 4 again altered to "village," as it originally stood. He thought that would make it impossible to include two separate towns together as one town.

The Council then divided on the amendment that the words "or tract of country" be omitted from the Interpretation of the word "Place" in Section 1:

The numbers being equal, the President gave his casting vote with the Noes.

On the motion of Baboo Peary Chand Mittra, the following proviso was added to Section 3:—

"Provided further that no claim on account of arrears under any Act which may be superseded by this Act shall be enforced after three years from the period of such arrears becoming due."

He said, he thought, that the recovery of arrears of assessment should be limited as to time. A man should not be required to pay up the arrears of ten or twelve years' assessment. It would be more satisfactory to have a certain time fixed for the recovery of arrears of assessment, and also for confining claims to the real defaulters.

On the motion of Mr. Dampier, the word "village" was restored to Section 4 in substitution of the word "Place," as agreed above.

The preamble was agreed to, and the title was passed with a verbal amendment.

The Council was adjourned to Saturday, the 20th instant.

Report on the State of the Salt Market, during the fourth quarter of 1867-68.

A Money, Esq., c. s.

In continuation of my letter No. 2283 C., dated 18th ultimo, I am directed to submit the following report on the state of the Salt market, during the months of January, February and March last, or the fourth quarter of the year 1867-68.

2. The quantity of Government Salt sold at the Presidency under wholesale Rowanahs, amounted to maunds 4,94,913, as shewn in the margin, giving a monthly average of maunds 1,64,971, being maunds 40,319 in excess of the sales of the previous quarter. The sales of Government Salt at Pooree, amounted to maunds 5,407 of Pungah, and maunds 46,470 of Kurkutch, against maunds 5,320, and maunds 38,483 of Pungah and Kurkutch, respectively, in the previous quarter, and maunds 6,283 of Pungah, and maunds 38,814 of Kurkutch in the corresponding quarter of 1866-67.

	Maunds.
January 1868 ...	4[illegible]120
February " ...	1,21,093
March " ...	3,24,700
Total ...	4,94,913

3. The following are the details of the above-mentioned Presidency sales, viz., from the Hidgelee Depôt, maunds 29,168 of Pungah Salt, against maunds 1,09,795 in the previous quarter, and from the Sulkea Depôt, maunds 14,65,745 of Kurkutch, against maunds 2,64,161 in the quarter preceding.

4. The sales of Excise Salt from the Dhossa Golahs during the quarter, amounted to maunds 100, against maunds 150 in the previous quarter. The sales in Cuttack and Balasore from the Stocks of Excise Salt, manufactured during the past season (1866-67), were maunds 6,828 and maunds 8,008, respectively, leaving a balance of maunds 31,461 in Cuttack, and maunds 11,513 in the Balasore District. The manufacture under Licenses granted for the season 1867-68, during the quarter, amounted to maunds 31,461¼ in Cuttack, and maunds 89,032 in Balasore. The Board have reason to believe that the quantity of Salt which will be manufactured this season, together with that which is now in store, will be sufficient to meet all the requirements of the Province.

5. The total importations into the Port of Calcutta, and clearances of Sea-imported Salt, during the quarter, are shewn comparatively in the following Statement:—

Description of Salt.	January to March 1866.		January to March 1867.		January to March 1868.

Total ...	18,64,924	16,39,976	16,32,554	13,12,522	19,16,674	17,10,047

As compared with the previous quarter, there is an increase in the importations of maunds 70,727, and in the clearances of maunds 4,24,158: there is also an increase under both heads, as contrasted with the results of the corresponding quarter of the two proceding years.

6. The following are the details of the importations and clearances of Indian Kurkutch given above:—

Exporting Port.	1866.		1867.		1868.

It is to be noticed as a very rare occurrence, that both importations and clearances, during a whole quarter, were confined to the Salt of a single Port.

7. The quantities of Salt which have been despatched into the interior of the country, both East and West of the River Hooghly, viz., vid the border Chowkeys of Ballikhal and Sankrail and the three Railways, are shewn in the following Comparative Statement:—

Period.	Vid Ballikhal.	Vid Sankrail.	By the East Indian Railway.	By the Eastern Bengal Railway.	By the Calcutta and South-Eastern Railway.

Ditto Ditto 1867-68 ..	4,79,287	90,489	3,11,728	2,814	12

For the reasons stated in paragraph 7 of the last quarterly report, no information is available regarding the transport of Salt by the Eastern Bengal and Calcutta and South-Eastern Railways, during previous years. Of the quantity transported by the East Indian Railway, maunds 666 of Salt were despatched to stations beyond Buxar. This was in January last: during the remaining two months of the quarter, the despatches were limited to Stations within Bengal. By a clerical error the figures representing the despatches by the Eastern Bengal and Calcutta and South-Eastern Railways, during the third quarter of 1867-68, were omitted in the last quarterly report: the former amounted to maunds 12,870, and the latter to maunds 83.

8. The Shipments of Salt at Liverpool, per published market reports, were as follows:—

Reports on the Cyclone of November 1867

From F. B. SIMSON, Esq., Officiating Commissioner of the Dacca Division, to the Secretary to the Government of Bengal.—(No. 1583, dated Dacca, the 12th November 1867.)

1. I HAVE the honor to report the effects of the hurricane which occurred on the morning of the 2nd of November, according to reports received from the districts of this Division up to date.

2. In all the large open rivers about Backergunge and Fureedpore, and on the west of Dacca and Mymensing, the storm sunk the greater number of boats which met its fury, those which were in shallow khalls or which contrived to hold on to the windward shore escaped. The cargoes of the sunken boats were raised, and in many places the rivers were covered with floating bales; very many of the sunken boats were raised after the storm, and were found to have suffered but little damage.

3. The flood tide of the morning of Saturday rose to a great height at Backergunge, and must, I should think, have injured the rice crop, but it receded quickly in the neighbourhood of the Sudder Station.

4. Inundation was severely felt in the Sub-division of Perozepore and the storm blew down much of the kutcha office building there, and damaged the records and furniture, and the water rose sufficiently to injure the goods of the shop-keepers in the bazars. The Collector will visit the southern part of Backergunge, and report more in details as soon as he can obtain a boat.

5. No detailed account has been received from Fureedpore, but there were great numbers of native houses blown down in addition to the damage to the boats in the rivers. The Collector has been directed to visit the country on the banks of the Ganges above Goalundo, and to report on the destruction of property and crops referred to by Mr. W. F. Fergusson, in the Englishman of the 8th instant.

6. The Collector of Mymensing reports that except on the Jaboona River the storm was not unusually severe in his district.

7. No report has been received from Sylhet, but persons arriving from that direction, report that there was no heavy gale felt in those parts.

8. I have just returned from a trip some thirty-five miles to the east and north of Dacca District, and I found the rice crops apparently uninjured, and the same fact is reported from all quarters; no complaints whatever as to damage to crops have reached me.

9. Mr. MacWilliam wrote to me privately from Serajgunge, and merely said they have experienced a heavy gale, and thought it was worse towards Dacca.

10. The great destruction done in these parts has been among the boats in the large rivers, and this loss falls on a tolerably wealthy class. I have neither met with nor heard of any distress requiring immediate pecuniary assistance, and unless the Collector of Backergunge reports very badly of the condition of the south of Backergunge District, I do not think that any such aid will be required for this Division.

11. No loss of life has yet been reported.

From F. B. SIMSON, Esq., Officiating Commissioner of the Dacca Division, to the Secretary to the Government of Bengal.—(No. 1634, dated Dacca, the 20th November 1867.)

IN continuation of my letter No. 1583, dated 12th instant, I have the honor to state, for the information of His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor, that from the reports and private letters received from the districts of Backergunge, Furreedpore and Mymensing, I gather nothing fresh or contradictory to what I stated in my previous report.

2. The Collector of Backergunge has gone to the southern part of his district by boat. The Collector of Furreedpore is now visiting those parts of his district where the Newspapers, and Newspapers only, reported excess of damage beyond that to the boats on the large rivers.

From F. B. Simson, Esq., Officiating Commissioner of the Dacca Division, to the Secretary to the Government of Bengal,—(No. 5T., dated Burisaul, the 2nd December 1867.)

In continuation of my letter No. 1634 of 20th November, I have the honor to forward copies of letters No. 260 of 22nd November, from the Collector of Dacca, and of No. 374 of the 25th idem, from the Collector of Furreedpore, giving further details of the loss inflicted by the Cyclone of the 1st of November.

2. It is clear that the damage to boats and property in both was, as I before stated, enormous; the attempts to estimate this loss are vain, and I put very little reliance on the valuation where they are given; it would be useless and harassing to attempt to ascertain the exact loss. The losers make no complaint and do not claim relief.

3. The first general statements, as to damage done to crops were naturally exaggerated. Most of the rice which was blown flat has recovered itself, and the water which overflowed from rivers and water-courses, quickly retired, and in some places actually proved beneficial.

4. A few cases of loss of life are reported, but this loss seems to me exceedingly small when the extensive area over which it occurred is considered, and when it is recollected that the storm was at its worst an hour or more before day-light, when people were least prepared to expect it, and from the darkness least able to help themselves.

5. The Collector of Backergunge visited the southern part of his District. I have myself gone through the south of Dacca along the Padda river up to Koomar as far as Puttaboka factory, and from thence south to Madaripore and down the Arealkhan river to Burisaul. There is nothing at all approaching to distress; in most places the crops have not suffered at all; in the few places where damage has occurred it has scarcely reduced an exuberant crop to an ordinary one, and in the south of Backergunge a slight rise generally in the price of rice is looked for by the ryots as likely to do more good than will compensate for the injury caused by the Cyclone.

6. At a distance from the large rivers, the damage over the greater portion of this Division is not more than that usually inflicted by a severe "Nor-wester." There is no need whatever for Government or public aid in any part of the Division, and I do not propose to address you further on this subject unless some new facts come to light.

From A. Levien, Esq., Magistrate of Dacca, to the Commissioner of the Dacca Division,—(No. 260, dated Dacca, the 22nd November 1867.)

I have the honor to submit, for your information, the accompanying particulars of the late Cyclone of the 2nd November.

2. The Civil Surgeon reports that, on Thursday, the 31st October, it rained steadily from 8-30 A. M. till dark, the wind being chiefly from the N. E. and E. Between 9 and 11 P. M. the wind blew in gusts from the N. E. with heavy driving rain.

3. The morning of the 1st November was wet. Wind E. S. E. and S. E. By 8 A. M. it began to clear off. The clouds were broken, the rain ceased, and there was every probability of a fine afternoon. Heavy showers were seen passing to the S. W. and W. about 1 P. M. In the evening the wind, which at no time was strong, decreased. The clouds looked high, but they covered the whole sky; about 7-30 P. M. a heavy shower of rain, which lasted but a few minutes, came from the N. E.; at 8-30 and 10 P. M. other showers passed over the town. At 10-30 the wind was blowing in gusts from the N. E.; about 11-30 or 11-45 P. M., local time, it began to increase in strength, and by 2 A. M. it was blowing a strong gale from the E. S. E. and S. E. From that time until 5-30 A. M. it continued to blow from the same quarter. Between 8 A. M. and 10 A. M. the gale was at its height; still from the S. E. a bright border of cloud remained stationary over the E. and S. E. horizon all the morning. About 10 A. M. the wind began to veer towards the S. and S. S. W. By 11 A. M. it was stationary in that quarter. The rain which had ceased about 8 A. M. came on again in short drizzling showers. About 11-30 A. M. the wind lulled; the barometer was rising; and the sky looked less dun and stormy. At 2-15 P. M. the wind was S. W., and was stronger than two hours previously.

4. From this time the wind gradually abated, and by 6 P. M. there was only a gentle breeze from the S. S. W. The evening was clear, patches of cirro-cumuli passing over the moon. At 9 P. M. the wind was light from the S. S. W.; at day break on the 3rd the wind was still in the same quarter; atmosphere beautifully clear and cool.

5. The District Superintendent of Police, who on the 2nd instant was anchored off Shampore on the Boorigunga river, about ten miles N. W. of Dacca, states that the storm must have commenced about midnight. The gusts of wind increased in violence till about 7 A. M., when there was a short lull; but soon after it was again blowing as hard as ever, the wind having veered from S. E. to S. W. Boats were seen sinking on all sides, and the river rose several feet. The rise at Dacca was estimated to be 3 feet 6 inches. The District Superintendent says 4 or 5 feet; but this I should say was above the mark. He was driven out of his boat about 9 A. M., the waves beating in and fairly swamping it. From this to Foolbaria Factory, a distance of two or three miles, not a single boat was to be seen afloat; at the factory itself, two budgerows were swamped, and the roof of one blown off. By 10 A. M. the storm had somewhat abated, and at 4 P. M. there was merely a stiffish breeze blowing.

6. In the neighbourhood of the factory the dhan, most of which was ready for the sickle, had been beaten down by the force of the wind; but it is not anticipated that the crop will have been materially injured. The villages had escaped almost untouched, being protected by the surrounding trees and jungle.

7. In the north of the District the hurricane appears to have been scarcely felt. In Roypoora and Kapashia Thannahs a few huts have been blown down, but no loss of life or boats is reported. It is feared that the Thannahs situated on the Pudda river have not escaped so easily. The storm is known to have been violent in those parts; but detailed reports have not yet come to hand.

8. It is reported that in the city of Dacca 112 kutcha houses have been levelled. The number of boats sunk or swept away is stated to be 105; property lost to the amount of Rupees 4,300. There is, however, reason to believe that this estimate is very far below the mark. One or two large trees have been blown down, but pucka houses have suffered no material damages. No loss of life has been reported. Towards Tunghi Out-post the dhan does not appear to have suffered to any appreciable extent.

9. At Naraingunge the loss of property has been unfortunately considerable, some two hundred boats laden with jute, rice, salt, &c., have been sunk, and the cargoes either entirely lost or more or less damaged. The pariah sloops, from Chittagong and the S. E. coast, were mostly blown up on shore, but a change in the wind and unusual rise in the river enabled them to get off, almost without injury. It is impossible to give anything like an accurate estimate of the loss of property. It is rated by the Mahajuns at some Rupees 60,000. A woman was killed by the fall of a house; no other deaths are reported and no injury to the crops; a large number of kutcha houses have been destroyed.

10. From Roopgunge no loss of life is reported, but many huts have been blown. The crops of boro-dhan lying along the banks of Megna and Luckya rivers are said to have suffered material damage by the sudden rise of water. It is generally stated that the crops in the interior have also suffered.

11. At Sreenuggur the roof of a two-storied house belonging to a Zemindar fell in, fortunately without causing loss of life. Along the river Pudda the loss in country boats and property has been very large, but it is impossible, without more detailed information, to arrive at even an approximate estimate of the amount of damage done. No deaths are reported from this Thannah.

12. At Rajabaree a boat was swept away with a man on board. His body was cast ashore next day.

13. In Nowabgunge and Hutrampore the chow crops are stated to have suffered to the extent of one-eighth of the whole. One life has been lost, and many boats and houses destroyed.

14. No reports have as yet been submitted from Mankgunge and Jaffurgunge.

15. Further detailed information as to loss of life and property, and the state of the crops, has been called for from the subordinate local Police.

16. The current price of rice is so low that any trivial rise, which may have occurred from the destruction of boats laden with rice, in the price of food, is merely nominal and temporary, and it is certain that when fresh consignments arrive from Mymensingh, Sylhet, and Tipperah, which export largely to Dacca, and are said to have suffered even less than this District from the hurricane, that the prices will return to the former low average of about forty seers per Rupee.

17. The general feeling seems to be that, even where most damage has been done, the pressure will be only temporary; and that there will be no necessity for extraneous aid, either by private subscription or from the Government. Should such necessity hereafter arise, I shall not fail to bring it to your notice.

From A. W. Russell, Esq., Collector of Furreedpore, to the Commissioner of the Dacca Division,—(No. 374, dated Furreedpore, the 25th November 1867.)

I have the honor to report that, as directed in your order No. 1585, dated the 12th instant, I have visited the tract of country situated along the line of the Ganges river in this District. I have no hesitation whatever in stating my decided opinion, that measures of relief on behalf of the ryots are not required in consequence of any damage done by the Cyclone of the 2nd instant.

2. In the parts where the storm-wind was most furious, or at least the traces of disaster were most evident, the extent of loss of the standing Aman paddy did not exceed 5 annas—I think 4 annas is about the mark. Throughout the District the previous Aous crop had been remarkably good, according to the general report. I had heard some Natives, agriculturists, assert that it was a 20 annas harvest, or ¼ more than the average yield of produce; and some portion of the Aman was cut and stored before the 1st instant. The Aman like the Aous was a very fine crop this season. Thus, allowing a 5 annas loss of the standing rice fields on the morning of the 2nd instant, the harvest of the year remains quite equal to the average yearly produce.

3. The general testimony I have heard here of both Europeans and Natives, the force of the wind was great from the north-east, greater afterwards from the east, but was most violent after that from the south-east. Later still the gale from the southward was scarcely, if at all, less strong than from the south-east. Such were my own observations also; and this led me to examine carefully the north-west promontory of this District in particular.

4. From the latitude of Betka Police Station on the eastern side to that of Muttukhal Factory in the western, I traversed a great part of the country on foot, at varying distances of 100 yards to 4 miles, from the banks of the river Ganges and Chundna, on the 16th, 20th, 21st, and 23rd, instant. On the 13th instant I had visited the coasts to the south-east as far as Manakata khall, which is nearly the extreme point in that direction of this District. The District Superintendent of Police is engaged in enquiring in person in the southern Thannahs.

5. If any tract was more exposed than any other to the wind from north and east and south, it was undoubtedly the north-east promontory of Goalundo, called Kanjadhia. It happened that a field of Aman still in the ground, three feet in height, exists there. The ryots said 6 annas of it was gone. It might be so along the margin. Farther, in the middle of the crop, examining many of the blades of corn together and counting the ears, the loss seemed to me to be about one-fourth.

6. Elsewhere, but one or two persons estimated the loss generally to be 6 annas; some made it one-eighth. At Krishtonuggur, the largest mouzah to the northward, along the south bank of the Ganges, consisting of half a dozen villages or kismats, one ryot said he had lost one-half, but it turned out he meant of his rubbee plants. If he lost half of what had grown above ground, he must have sown again, for his gardens were all in very fine condition.

7. Nowhere did I see greater traces of havoc than at Kalikapur, near the north-west point of the District, and close to the line of the new Railway. There the one and only opinion of more than a dozen cultivators was that they had suffered a loss of 5 annas. In that neighbourhood I observed two or three fields of pân-bunj laid low, but nearly a continuous mile more of them, being sheltered by groves of trees, seemed unhurt.

8. On the whole, I am of opinion that, in at all events the east, north, and west of this District, there is not an amount of distress, caused by the late Cyclone, calling for relief from the public or the Government. The class that has really suffered is that of the Mahajuns, whose cargo boats of rice, oil, hides, tobacco, salt, jute, and seeds, were lost in scores. I have not observed any field of Urhur at all in any town, and none of sugar-cane damaged.

9. I annex an interesting statement on the subject in question by Mr. Phelan, of Mudundary Factory. I know that the opinions therein expressed are entertained also by Mr. Patrick Smith, of Bakhundi, and Mr. Rainey of Panchuria.

P. S.—With regard to the south country further report will be made soon.

From E. P. Phelan, Esq., to S. J. Little, Esq., Deputy Magistrate and Collector, Furreedpore, —(dated Mudundary, Jessore, the 17th November 1867.)

In reply to your official favor, No. 345, dated 12th instant, I have the honor to inform you that, as far as I have seen (and I have been over a great part of the Furreedpore District in this vicinity since the Cyclone), I do not think the late Cyclone has caused such distress as to render it advisable or necessary to raise subscriptions for the relief of the sufferers in this neighbourhood, for the following reasons :—

1st.—I have ascertained, by inquiries made amongst the ryots themselves, that they have in store their late crop of "aous dhan" uninjured by the Cyclone. Of the standing rice crop, about one-fourth has been destroyed, but as this was a remarkably fine crop previous to the Cyclone, the out-turn from it will be an average one, and the sugarcane and "mashkully," the only other standing crops at this season, have not suffered at all in this vicinity.

2nd.—The loss of cattle has been very trifling, and if an average could be struck, it would not be more than one head of cattle in every three houses. I have been informed that one ryot lost as many as 20 (twenty) head of cattle, but most of the people have not lost any.

3rd.—I have seen few instances of the total destruction of Native houses, and most of those that have been blown down are already re-erected.

4th.—As the price of rice in the large markets in this part of the District is influenced more by the supplies from the Districts of Backergunge and Sylhet than by the local supply, and as those Districts do not appear to have suffered by the Cyclone, I do not think it probable that the price of rice this year will rise above that of last year.

The present rates are from Rupees 1-4 to Rupees 2 per maund.

The greater sufferers by the Cyclone are, I am inclined to believe, the Native Mahajuns, who have lost, in many instances, large boats and their cargoes. The bulk of the people are, I believe, sufficiently independent to tide over the calamity without assistance, and only one village has applied to me for pecuniary assistance, but I have not heard the ryots express any fears regarding a scarcity of food in consequence of the Cyclone. Should Government find it necessary to give relief to the people in this part of the District, I shall be glad to aid any measures that may be decided upon for dispensing the same as far as may be permitted, or as may lie in my power.

From S. J. Kiley, Esq., Deputy Collector, in charge, Furreedpore,—(No. 365, dated Furreedpore, the 20th November 1867.)

Forwarded in original to A. W. Russell, Esquire, Collector of Furreedpore, as the report regarding the damages done by the late Cyclone is being prepared by him.

From T. B. Lane, Esq., Officiating Secretary to the Board of Revenue, Lower Provinces,—(No. 1957M., dated Fort William, the 6th December 1867.)

Submitted in original to the Government of Bengal, for perusal and return.

2. The Board observes that the gale was much less alarming in its effects in this Division than was at first expected.

From C. F. Montresor, Esq., Commissioner of the Burdwan Division, to the Secretary to the Board of Revenue, Lower Provinces,—(No. 650A., dated Burdwan, the 29th November 1867.)

In pursuance of the orders contained in your letter No. 1800M. of the 8th instant, to my address, I have the honor to submit a detailed report on the effects of the hurricane of the 1st instant.

2. The Districts of Midnapore, Howrah, and Hooghly, in this Division, were more or less affected seriously by the gale; and that to the easternmost boundaries bordering on the Hooghly river. In the District of Burdwan the line of exposed country on the river's bank from Culna to Cutwa suffered considerably, and the crops in most parts of the districts above enumerated have been more or less injured.

3. Considering the bountiful harvest that was in prospect before the 1st, in connection with the injury sustained, I do not anticipate any general material loss, and the market prices as they now stand confirm me in the observation, having assumed the same level to which they were before the hurricane, and lower than they have been for several years past.

4. I have seen it remarked by correspondents in the public papers that the violence of the gale was equal to that of the 5th of October 1864; but such was certainly not the case in this Division.

5. I will proceed to notice each district in order.

Howrah.—The storm raged with extreme violence over the town and suburbs, and appears to have been felt throughout the western portion of the district more severely than in the portion lying to the east of the Damoodah. There was considerable loss of human life, occasioned principally by the falling of houses and walls, 78 deaths having been reported by the Police; of these 34 occurred in the town and suburbs, 15 within the limits of the Police Station of Doomjoor, which extend to the borders of the Municipality; 11 in Sankrail, which lies immediately to the south of the Municipality; and 14 in the Bagnan Division. There was one person killed in each of the Police Divisions of Bally, Juggutbullubpore, Oolooberiah, and Shampore.

The number of cattle destroyed is estimated at upwards of 500, of which 220 were in the Sankrail Division, 123 in Doomjoor, 80 in Oolooberiah, and 58 in Shampore.

Upwards of 30,000 houses, huts, and sheds, are reported to have been blown down, unroofed, or more or less damaged. In Howrah and the suburbs there were 9,553, in Sankrail 16,047, and in Doomjoor 9,276. In other quarters the numbers were not so large, and the extent of injury done was comparatively trifling.

In and near Howrah the number of trees blown down was very large. In other quarters trees did not suffer so much. Cocoanut trees stood the storm remarkably well, but few having given way to it. In many places, however, they were stripped of the fruit.

Great fears were at first entertained regarding the rice crop, but the actual damage done appears to have been much less than might have been anticipated. The injury has been the greatest in the high lands where the grain was nearly ripe. When out in the district immediately after the hurricane, the Magistrate observed that in many places half the grain appeared to have been beaten out of the ear. In Shampore the ryots estimated the loss at 10 annas in the 16 as regards the high lands: on the other hand, the crop in the low lands, where plenty of water lay, suffered comparatively little, the loss being estimated at from 2 to 4 annas only. By far the greater portion of the rice land in this district is low and under water; hence the total average of injury is not so extensive as was expected. Up to the end of October the promise of the crops had been remarkably good throughout the district; the outturn of the year will, notwithstanding, be not less than a twelve anna crop.

As regards the other crops there is not much to add. There is but little "boro dhan" sown in the district, and no great quantity of rubbee. The rubbee, if any, should have been sown before now, but still, with favorable weather for the next four months, the average produce may be raised.

Sugarcane, pan, plantains, and garden produce generally, have suffered considerably, but the area of land under such cultivation is not extensive.

Prices have naturally increased since the storm, but they will go down again if the rice crop sustains no further damage.

For the purpose of relieving, as far as possible, the distress occasioned to the poor by the destruction of their huts and of their garden produce, a Relief Fund has been set on foot by a public meeting.

It was determined to hand over all subscriptions received to the general Relief Fund in Calcutta, and in return to draw upon it for such pecuniary means as are required for this district. Rupees 5,000 have accordingly been received from the General Fund, and have been assigned to the relief, by the hands of Sub-Committees, of the distressed residents within the limits of the Municipality, which extend from Bally to the Botanical Gardens.

Arrangements for granting relief in the interior are being adopted, and with this view local subscriptions are being raised at Oolooberiah. A meeting of the principal inhabitants was called by the Magistrate, and upwards of Rupees 250 raised; assistance from other quarters is promised.

The Municipal Commissioners, at a special general meeting held on the 9th instant, resolved to permit the owners of overthrown huts to re-construct them with thatches, notwithstanding the prohibition of the bye-law. Without declaring any general remission of the tax, it has been left to the Chairman's discretion to remit it in the case of all persons who had suffered such losses as would press too heavily upon them.

HOOGHLY.—At Hooghly the gale is said to have commenced at 11 P. M., and lasted till 4 A. M., the worst period being between 1 and 3 A. M., when the direction of the wind was gradually shifting from north-west to due west.

At Serampore, about 10 P. M., the wind commenced to blow in violent gusts from the north-east, and it commenced to increase in violence until 12 o'clock, when it became more northerly. At about 3 o'clock it went rather suddenly round to the north-west, and at this time attained its greatest force; about 4 A. M. it commenced to abate, but the gale did not altogether cease until 6 A. M.

The Magistrate, who did not rejoin his appointment till eight days after the occurrence, reports that, as regards the Station of Hooghly, the amount of damage done is trifling in comparison to that caused by the Cyclone of 1864, at which time Mr. Cockerell was in charge of the district; comparatively few trees have been blown down, and most of the public buildings have suffered but little. A great many huts have been destroyed, and from this cause alone has there been any real distress.

Twenty-four deaths only were reported throughout the district, but this does not include casualties on the river, concerning which no accurate information is obtainable.

The part of the district which suffered most is that bordering on the river, while the damage towards the north appears to be less than that within the Serampore Sub-Division, south.

At a distance of twenty miles west of the river, though a few houses were here and there blown down, the injury done was small.

In the west portion of the district there was not more than an ordinary gale; one or two trees have been blown down, and the straw from a few huts carried off; the crops, however, suffered from the heavy rains.

As regards the crops generally, the reports of the injury caused by the storm are very conflicting; it is impossible to take any particular average throughout the district of the loss sustained. Where the rice was forward and was much exposed, half the crop may have been lost; in other places, where the ear had not formed, or where there was some shelter to break the violence of the storm, little damage has been done. Mr. Ryland, the Deputy Magistrate of Serampore, says, as the crops generally promised to be very fine, this loss will not materially affect the condition of the people. The price of rice per maund, immediately after the Cyclone, rose from Rs. 1-7 to Rs. 1-12. It was as high as Rupees 1-15 and Rupees 2 on the 23rd instant, but is daily falling.*

* Since this was written the market is lower than it was before the storm.

Relief measures both at Hooghly and Serampore have been confined to giving assistance to those actually destitute of means to re-build their huts.

For this purpose Committees have been formed for different portions of the town, for the purpose of raising subscriptions, and the circumstances and necessities of every applicant for relief are also certified by some members of the Committee before relief is granted. The amount given in each case has varied from 3 to 7 Rupees, according to the loss sustained by each person, and the number of the family. 5000 Rupees have been assigned by the Cyclone Relief Fund for this district, of which Rupees 2,500 have been sent to Serampore.

The Municipalities of Hooghly and Serampore have also passed resolutions to grant a remission of the tax on all kutcha houses and gardens destroyed or injured by the storm; the amount of remission to be regulated by the injury done in each case.

The following statement of the number of houses destroyed and injured by the gale in Shahgunge, Hooghly, Chinsurah, and Chandernagore, will give an idea of the violence of the storm, and the injury done in the neighbourhood.

Sub-Division.	Number of pucca houses in each Sub-Division.	Number of kutcha houses in each Sub-Division.	Number of pucca houses blown down by the Cyclone.	Number of pucca houses injured by the Cyclone.	Number of kutcha houses blown down by the Cyclone.	Number of kutcha houses injured by the Cyclone.
Shahgunge ...	390	517	7	4	337	153
Hooghly ...	1,523	2,327	12	32	478	421
Chinsurah ...	1,347	1,095	15	7	152	249
Candernagore ...	741	783	16	48	292	364
Total ...	4,001	4,722	50	91	1,259	1,187

The remission of the tax will cost the Municipality about Rupees 1,500.

It has been proposed to adopt the same measures in the neighbouring villages where Act XX. is in force, and lists are being prepared with this object.

Bancoorah.—The only damage caused by the storm in this district was to the crops, and that in a very slight degree. In and around the station there was no indication of the crops having suffered in the very least degree, while to the eastward, at Kotulpore, where the violence of the storm was rather great, the reports of damage to the rice and sugarcane crops are more favorable than they were at first represented to be.

Before the storm the Collector had estimated the outturn of the rice crop at 14 annas of a full crop; after it, he had at first supposed that the damage caused would reduce it to a 12 anna crop, but he has now assumed that nowhere in the district is a less outturn than 13 annas expected, while in some places a full 16 anna crop is a certainty. The sugarcane, especially to the eastward, was thrown down by the wind, but the canes have not been materially injured, and can be reclaimed by artificial props.

No other damage of any kind has occurred in the district.

Beerbhoom.—This district almost entirely escaped the hurricane. There was a heavy fall of rain and high wind, which did some little damage to the crops on the 1st and 2nd, but nowhere has the loss been severe.

Midnapore.—On the evening of the 31st of October the sky was perfectly clear. It had been a raw drizzly day however, and 20 miles east of Midnapore the sky never cleared. The weather was refreshingly cool, and it seemed certain that the usual calm-cold weather had set in. Shortly after midnight, however, clouds began to rise, and from 8 A. M. to 11 A. M. on the morning of the 1st drizzling rain continued to fall; at 11 A. M. the drizzle became a torrent, and the wind commenced to blow in gusts from the north-east. The wind freshened almost imperceptibly, and at 6 P. M. was blowing strongly and pretty steadily from the north-north east, but it did not deserve the name of a storm until about 10 P. M. From that time until 11½ P. M. there was certainly a very high wind. From 11-30 P. M. the Barometer, which had been falling steadily, remained stationary until midnight, when it began to rise again. During the whole time the wind was accompanied with heavy rain, which slackened at midnight, when Mr. Shortt, the Officiating Collector and Magistrate, went round the Cutcherry Guards. In the morning the wind had completely subsided. The following readings were taken from an Aneroid Barometer which Dr. Bensley kept at the Jail Hospital and the correctness of which may be relied on :—

3 P. M.	Barometer	29·83,	wind North-East.
6 P. M.	,,	29·70,	wind and rain increasing.
8 P. M.	,,	29·66,	do.	do.

On the morning of the 2nd the ground was strewn with leaves, and here and there a few small branches had been blown down, but otherwise there was nothing to shew that a heavy storm had passed over the station.

At Godapeasal, seven miles to the north of the station, the crops along the road-side are reported by Mr. Shortt as a little the worse from the previous day's bad weather. The grain was nearly ripe, and was generally beaten down, but this occurred in very few fields, and even then the amount seriously injured could not (to use the Native standard) be greater than two annas in the Rupee. Before the storm the crop was generally estimated to be about ¼ greater than the ordinary 16 anna crop. Further north the crops looked better, and more cheering were the accounts received from the ryots.

Considering that there was no necessity for proceeding further in this direction, Mr. Shortt returned to Midnapore, and started for the Sub-Division of Tumlook, viâ the village of Palpore, three miles west of Panchkoora, which looked in splendid condition, and although 2 annas, 4 annas and even 6 annas loss was reported from some Police Stations, there was nothing to shew that there would be the loss of even one anna of a crop which may be termed magnificent. Observing carefully the appearance of the fields, and taking specimens from them as he proceeded to Tumlook, Mr. Shortt reports that, as far as he can judge, he considers the crop as far as this point even better than that at Panchkoora.

The crop along the road from Midnapore to Belda, i. e. for about 25 miles in the Balasore direction, has been very little injured. The crop itself is later than that in the Tumlook Sub-Division, but a full crop is expected to be reaped in this quarter. From Belda to Contai Mr. Shortt reports that the rice gets finer and finer as you near Contai, and, as far as he could judge, it has suffered no injury.

Mr. Adams, the District Superintendent, proceeded from Tumlook to Contai viâ Mysadul, Doro, and Kedgeree, and reported that though those Pergunnahs had suffered more severely than any others he had seen, a fair average crop would still be reaped. At Kedgeree two men were killed by falling in of a house, and in the Sootahatta Bazar (Doro Pergunnahs fifteen others lost there lives from similar accidents. This is hardly to be wondered at, as those Pergunnahs are in a very exposed position.

The general result appears to be briefly as follows :—

The western half of the district has not suffered. The crop has not been affected to speak of, and there has been no damage at all to other property.

Eastwards from the town of Midnapore the crops were blown about with greater violence.

The eastern boundary is the Roopnarain, and only close to that river have any huts fallen in. They are so few as not to call for attention. The crops, in spite of the gale, are still reported as extremely fine; the large Pergunnah of Bogree has, according to latest accounts, lost 4 annas of a very fine crop. But even that is considered an undue estimate by the best authorities, the Zemindars.

Only in Tumlook and Hidgelee the wind amounted to a severe gale, and that scarcely so anywhere but in Doro and Mysadul, and in Tumlook itself.

In Hidgelee a very few huts have fallen, and no trees of any size. The deaths reported up to date were only three from falling houses, and no more are likely to be discovered. The worst news from there is the loss (in all probability) of "8 or 10" boats waiting to take in salt at the mouth of the Rusulpore river (just opposite to Saugor Island). They were blown out to sea, and have not been heard of since, but seven dead bodies, supposed to belong to them, were washed ashore; a small ferry boat too has been blown away on that river, always a dangerous one to native craft.

The loss of crop is put down by Mr. Rattray, Deputy Magistrate of Contai, and Mr. Shortt, the Officiating Collector and Magistrate, as not more than 2 annas on the whole. But as the season was a glorious one so far, the harvest is likely still to be magnificent.

Petitions sent in from this part of the country deserve notice on account of their unusual and unmeaning exaggerations. It is only right to observe that the liberal remissions made in Hidgelee for the last 60 years, ending in that for the Cyclone of 1864, have engendered habits of exaggeration in the description of their losses, which make it quite impossible to guess from the language used whether the injury done is tremendous or trivial. An approximate idea can be formed from most petitions, but not so in Hidgelee, where exaggeration is proverbial.

The worst effects in Hidgelee were near the sea, and that the worse the further north along the shore; towards Balasore, only the crops have suffered, and even here the Zemindars admit that they will have a finer harvest than any during the past six or seven years.

In Tumlook serious injury has been done. The district runs out there well into the track of the Cyclone. The unfortunate Pergunnah of Doro (just opposite Diamond Harbour and Mud Point) has again borne the brunt of the storm. It was visited by the Deputy Magistrate, Baboo Jadub Chunder Ghose, and by Mr. Adams, the District Superintendent of Police, ever active and prepared, and both Officers agree in thinking that the loss is not so severe as to call for charitable assistance. It must be borne in mind that the huts in Kookrahatty and Gowakhally are the flimsiest of structures, re-erected almost every other year, as is the custom in Gunjes on the banks of large rivers. At the worst the Deputy Magistrate does not put down the number of houses destroyed as more than five per cent. in Doro, and less elsewhere.

This can scarcely have touched more than the most slender constructions, and though it might have been opportune if a little money had reached the owners at the time, to feed them while putting their dwellings up again, they must have done so by this time. The Magistrate, Mr. Herschel, passed through the Oolooberiah bazar the morning after the storm, where several huts had been blown down. On his return, 12 days later, they had almost all been set straight without any outside aid.

Mr. Herschel reports —"In Tumlook itself 120 huts were blown down and one calf was "killed. Your suggestion to remit Chowkeydaree tax on these people will be communicated "to the Deputy Magistrate, who says that the people have suffered no very severe loss in "personal property, and, if at all, a very slight one.

"The huts, I presume, are such as fell at Oolooberiah, the re-erection of which is a tax "on the energy, but little or none on the purse, of the owner."

The loss of life in the Tumlook Sub-Division was 18; all (except two of which) were in Doro.

The crops in the western part of the Sub-Division are reported as beautiful, and the damage done small. In Doro and Mysadul it is otherwise. The crops were extremely fine (except in the centre of Doro, owing to an extraordinary rain-fall early in the year), but from ¼ to ⅓ has been lost according to present appearances.

Much stress on the estimates of damage done to the crops cannot be laid at present; it will be time enough to form an opinion on that point when the harvest comes. It is sufficient at present to know that the injury is nowhere more than one-third, and that only in one Pergunnah. What is still more satisfactory is, that the market prices, which were all disturbed for a few days, have recovered themselves, and are falling, as usual, as the harvest approaches, below what they were before the gale, excepting only in Doro, where the latest accounts shew a rise of 6 seers (from 32 to 26 seers per Rupee). Rice in Midnapore is 46 seers, and in the jungle mehals 50 seers per Rupee. The total loss of life in the district is 28, including the seven boatmen on the Rusulpore. Of cattle about 120 have been destroyed. The number of huts blown down, including Gunje-sheds, is about 800. Mr. Shortt, the Officiating Collector, and Baboo Jadub Chunder Ghose, were most prompt in their investigations, and saw no signs of distress.

Mr. Shortt, in speaking of the general appearance of the crops, remarks thus:—

"The ryots certainly say that although the crop looks so well, yet a blight has fallen "on it from the effects of the storm, and that the outturn will be merely straw and chaff. "This account I entirely disbelieve. I examined carefully many of the fields throughout my "enquiry, and found no sign of blight. I should be the last person to ignore symptoms of "loss or distress, having been in the midst of the famine of 1866; yet, as far as my judgment "goes, I think I can guarantee that the people of the Midnapore District will live in plenty, "if not in abundance, during the year 1868."

Burdwan Sudder Station and Division.—The weather in the station was rough and wet throughout the 31st of October and 1st November. On the night of the 1st the wind gradually rose and blew with great and increasing violence from 9 P. M. to 1 A. M., when it reached its climax. The direction of the wind veered from north-east to north-west until about 5 A. M. when it gradually subsided; there were occasional gusts from the south-east. There is, however, some difference of opinion about the last; but the direction of the fall of some of the heavy trees on the Grand Trunk Road in the station corroborates this fact. There was no loss of life in the Sudder Division, and the damage to property in the station was confined to trees, to the Police Hospital, a large and cumbrous building, and a few cutcha huts, which were blown down. The standing rice crop was much beaten down in course of the wind; the Police estimate the damage variously from ⅓ to as much as ½ the crop in some places, but from personal observation, corroborated by the reports of the Civil Surgeon, the District Superintendent, and the Local Fund Engineer, who visited the interior since the gale in different directions, the Collector has expressed himself confident that the loss will not exceed 2 to 3 annas; my own observations confirm me in this opinion.

The market price of rice has not been affected; the cold-weather crop wherever damaged can be sown again, and no relief is required.

Bood-Bood Sub-Division in the Burdwan District.—Nothing more than a strong gale was experienced, and no material damage done.

The rice crop in places may have been injured to the extent of 2 annas, not more; but Baboo Hit Lall Misser, Honorary Magistrate in this Sub-Division, who has extensive properties, informs me that the injury has been most trivial.

Cutwa Sub-Division in the Burdwan District.—A severe storm of wind and rain was experienced here. The wind began to blow with great violence from about 10 P. M. to 2 or 3 A. M., commencing from the north-east and veering round to the north and north-west and west. About 100 houses have been blown down in the Division, and 26 boats laden with country produce, including the smaller crafts, were sunk in the river; of the latter, 11 have since been recovered. The loss of property is estimated at about Rupees 9,000; no loss of life occurred.

Much of the amun rice crop in this Division was in blossom, and was liable to injury by any strong wind accompanied with rain at this season. The Police estimate the average loss to the rice and cold weather crop at ¼, and the Deputy Magistrate, Baboo Kallica Dass Dutt, from personal observations, considers this estimate not over-rated.

The Deputy Magistrate, however, reports that the price of rice still continues to stand at 36 seers for the Rupee, and that he found the ryots everywhere engaged in their ordinary occupations and no complaint of distress.

No measures for relief are or were required.

Culna Sub-Division in the Burdwan District.—The Assistant Magistrate, Mr. J. R. Hallet, was absent at the half-yearly examination at the Presidency when the storm occurred, and the subjoined information is based on the Police Reports and (Mr. Hallet's) subsequent observations. In Culna itself the storm commenced on the night of the 31st October, with rain and wind, which continued throughout the next day, gradually increasing to a hurricane during the night, which did a deal of damage to house and other property, and did not cease until 11 A. M. on the 2nd. It was discovered that 257 houses were more or less damaged, 117 trees blown down, and 33 laden boats sunk in the river; most of the boats have since been recovered. The loss of life was confined to one person killed on shore by the fall of a wall.

On the day after the storm the price of rice rose from 1-11 per maund to 2-8, but on the 4th November it fell to 1-15, and now stands at 1-12.

The storm has caused but little distress in Culna itself, and there is no reason to apprehend scarcity of food.

The Assistant Magistrate has prepared a list of 43 poor persons who require assistance in re-building their huts, and estimates the amount required at Rupees 244. For this small sum the Magistrate has been directed to apply to the Central Committee. The private loss of property is estimated at about Rupees 25,000, and that of Government at Rupees 500.

With regard to the crops ¼ of the rice and the greater portion of the cold weather crop are reported by the Police to have been destroyed; the correctness of this report, as well as that of the 4 following paragraphs, will be tested by the Collector, who is about to proceed to Culna.

In Thannah Bhatooria the storm commenced on the morning of the 31st October, and subsided at mid-day on the 2nd November. In this Thannah 6 annas of the crop is said to have been destroyed, and about 40 cattle killed.

The loss to private property is estimated at Rupees 4,000.

In Montessur the storm began on the morning of the 31st and ceased at 3 P. M. on the 1st.

The proportion of the crop destroyed is said to be ¼ of the rice and the whole of the cold weather crop.

The walls of the Police Station and a few huts here were blown down. There was no loss of life.

With respect to the loss reported on the crops, no distress is anywhere apprehended; the price of rice has not been materially affected; the cold-weather crops can be re-sown; for these and other reasons stated above respecting the Sudder Division, the Collector believes it to be exaggerated, and that 3 to 4 annas will fully cover it: no general relief is required, and I still estimate the average district outturn at from 10 to 12 annas.

The direction of the wind in this Sub-Division appears to have been eccentric; in Culna it blew from the north-east and afterwards veered round to the north-west, when it subsided; in Bhatooriah it blew first from the north, then from the south-west, and at last from the west.

In Montessur it blew first from the north-east, then the west, and when it subsided it came from the south-east.

The Assistant Magistrate has convened a meeting in Culna for the relief of such trifling distress as exists, and estimates that the total amount required for the whole Division will not exceed Rupees 1,000. The relief proposed will be confined to aiding the very poor in re-building their huts.

From E. W. MOLONY, ESQ., Famine Commissioner, in charge of Current Duties, to the Junior Secretary to the Government of Bengal,—(No. 967, dated Cuttack, the 19th December 1867.)

WITH reference to your No. 5057, dated the 9th instant, I have the honor to enclose a copy of the report which was furnished to the Board of Revenue for this Division. The report, I think, embraces all points on which information is required and as, with the single exception of False Point, the storm did not increase to anything approaching a hurricane, and there was no loss of life or of property to any great extent, I do not conceive that any further particulars will be of interest. I have heard of no bad effects of the storm upon the general health of the people in any part of the province.

From A. MANSON, ESQ., Special Assistant Commissioner, Cuttack Division, to the Secretary to the Board of Revenue, Lower Provinces,—(No. 907½., dated Cuttack, the 26th November 1867.)

IN accordance with instructions received from the Commissioner now in camp, I have the honor to submit the following detailed report of the storm of 1st November, in continuation of this Office No. 874 of 18th instant. I have arranged the particulars of the several Districts in the order in which they lie from north to south.

2. Captain A. Bond, Master Attendant of Balasore, was on his way to Calcutta in tow of the Conqueror, and states that he did not encounter the storm, which passed him to the north-east, but it was blowing heavily on the night of 1st November; he gives the following readings of the barometer:—

Date.	Moon's age.	7 A. M.		Noon.		4 P. M.		Wind, &c.
		Barometer.	Thermometer.	Barometer.	Thermometer.	Barometer.	Thermometer.
30th October ...	3¼	29·78	75	29·80	78	29·77	80	N. light to N. W. to N. N. W.; cloudy to N. E.
31st October ...	4¼	29·75	77	29·74	77	29·72	76	N. W. very cloudy rain, to N. E. rain.
1st November ...	5¼	29·68	75	29·58	74	29·51	72	N. rain at noon heavy rain to N. W. heavy rain.

3. Slight damage to the crops has been reported at Bulleeapal on the Soobunreekha river, as also at Bustah and Bhera, but the injury was local, and in no place exceeded 2 annas or 1-8. In the north of the Balasore District a few huts were unroofed; no life appears to have been lost in any part. The wind blew uniformly from the north at Balasore Sudder Station; it commenced with a fresh breeze on the morning of the 1st November, and increased to high wind in the afternoon, and to a moderate gale early in the night, it fell suddenly at about 1 A. M. of the 2nd. The force of the wind was sufficient to blow down a couple of small trees, but the Collector observes that these were imperfectly roofed, and that the ground was softened by the rain. The Collector was on the coast near Balasore on the 3rd, but there had been nothing of the nature of a storm wave. Any injury that may have been caused is extremely slight.

4. At Bhuddruck, on the evening of the 31st October, there was a strong wind, which lulled at about 10 P. M. On the morning of the 1st it again rose at about 9 A. M., and blew in violent gusts; from 11 A. M. to 1 P. M. the wind was at its highest, and from 3 P. M. it gradually fell. The direction was at first north, but on the 1st it veered to north-west; it was at no time extraordinarily heavy; some injury was anticipated, but only from the heavy rain which followed during the week. The Assistant Collector of Bhuddruck, writing on the 22nd instant from personal inspection, says:—From Kolho to Chandbally the force of the wind on the 1st November levelled the paddy to the ground in many fields, and the rain which subsequently fell has rolled it. In other fields, especially of guru Dhan, the ears have been emptied of their contents, and nothing but chaff remains. Over this tract the direction of the wind was due north during the two days that it lasted: between Chandbally and Dhamrah little injury had been done; as to Dhamrah itself, there appears to have been an unusually high tide on the 1st November, which has left little pools of water on the land in the neighbourhood. The Government rice golah was surrounded by the water. The roof of the golah is in a dangerous condition, the force of the wind having broken the cross beams, but they were old and decayed, and as no boat or house in Dhamrah was destroyed, and no life lost, it appears that even here the storm did not amount to more than a somewhat heavy gale. The Assistant Collector found the awning pole of some vessel washed ashore. As little or no cultivation is carried on in the neighbourhood of Dhamrah, little damage was done by the rise of the water. The injury to the Sub-Division has been confined to the coast tract, where it has, however, been considerable. The loss to the crops between Kolho and Chandbally is probably as much as $\frac{1}{4}$, or 4 annas; the price of rice, however, remains steady and low.

5. From Jajpore Sub-Division no accounts of the force or direction of the wind have been received. In Ulabhur some huts were unroofed, and from Aul the Assistant Collector had heard that the crop had been injured to the extent of 4 annas, or $\frac{1}{4}$; the crop there was, however, very scanty, and the Dewan of the Rajah of Aul, since stated to the Collector of Cuttack that the injury had not been over any extent worth speaking of; farther inland very slight injury had accrued to the Sarud crop. The Assistant Collector had also heard of some sort of a storm wave having inundated Saraswats and Jagula on the Bhuddruck side of the Dhamrah. The result of a personal investigation by the Assistant Collector has not yet been received; there are reports of any loss of life having occurred in this part of the country.

6. At Kendraparah the wind rose from the evening of the 30th October to a gale at about noon of the 31st; it continued with some violence till evening of that day, and subsided entirely on the morning of the 1st November. At Pattamoondai the direction of the wind was N. N. E.; at Kendraparah itself it was N. N. W.; and at Chandpore it was due N. The storm was accompanied by showers of rain. At both Pattamoondai and Kendraparah a few old huts were unroofed, but nothing more than would generally result from an ordinary storm. The cultivators fear that the bloom of the early Sarud rice has been injured, the crop with which nearly half the Sub-District is cultivated; in a few places the ripening paddy was beaten down, but not so as to render any considerable injury probable. The Assistant Collector writes from personal inspection, that in Tikan, Utikan, Noulbeshay, and part of Koojung, the Pergunnahs most liable to injury from hurricane, the injury to the crops had been still less than had been anticipated. In some places the flower of several sorts of rice sown broad-cast had been destroyed by the force of the wind, but where the rice had been planted it grew so close that scarcely any injury had been done to it. Some of the ryots complained that the rain had spoilt the ground prepared for their "birhi" and other rubbee crops, but they acknowledged their loss to have been trifling. No life has been lost, so far as is known, either of men or cattle. Some injury was done by the wind unroofing old huts, but all of a very trifling description. The Assistant Collector proceeded to within a few miles of the sea, but found no traces of a storm wave, and could not even hear of the water having risen preceptibly in any of the creeks. The direction of the wind over the coast tract of the Sub-Division appears to have been as near due N. as possible. The general appearance of the rice crops over the Sub-Division is magnificient.

7. In Cuttack Town no mischief to life or property occurred. The wind was high both on October 31st and November 1st, and blew steadily from the N. The Master of the False Point Light House reported that the storm commenced at 10 P. M., October 31st, and blew from N. N. E., until about 8 P. M., of November 1st. He describes it is the severest gale he ever experienced. The Light House and boats were uninjured. In the anchorage were the S. S. Conqueror and some other vessels. But the port is secure from any great violence from storm, and all the ships rode it out in safety. The water rose at Kharinasi, about 5 miles west of the light; it topped the temporary bund or platform raised to protect the golahs. No injury to the rice was done. The roof of the golahs at Kendradia were injured, but not permanently. The gale did not blow with much violence so far inland as this. At Hansooa and Paint the golahs suffered some injury to their roofs. In no part of the Cuttack District does the damage to crops appear to have reached $\frac{1}{8}$, and the Commissioner, from personal enquiry, has learned that in the western part no loss whatever has occurred. There is no report of a storm of unusual violence from any part except False Point, and no life appears to have been lost.

8. At Pooree, on November 1st, there was high wind from the N. or N. by E., and the sky was heavy, indicating bad weather in the Bay. On the night of November 2nd the wind increased to a gale from the same direction, with moderate rain, but the wind was not higher than it is frequently felt at Pooree. The only remarkable feature noticed was that the surf, on the morning of Sunday, 3rd, was much heavier than any Native or European inhabitant could remember to have seen it, and very much greater than is usual during high winds. The surf was exceedingly heavy, and, rolling in against a high wind, occasioned a mass of foam and spray to rise to a height of 20 or 30 feet, and occasionally to a much greater height. About noon of the 3rd both sea and wind subsided, but the weather continued wet and unsettled for a week or 10 days after that date; the storm was not accompanied by very heavy rain nor by inundation. No serious damage has occurred to the crops, and no complaints have been made. There are no reports of loss of cattle or of human life, or of injury to houses; little notice was attracted to the storm at the time, except as unseasonable weather which might cause injury to the harvest if followed by much rain.

9. Reports from Khoordah state that a high wind blew from the north there on 1st and 2nd November, but not sufficiently strong to be considered a storm, and no damage has been done.

From C. F. MONTRESOR, ESQ., Commissioner of the Burdwan Division, to the Junior Secretary to the Government of Bengal,—(No. 72, dated Burdwan, the 31st December 1867.)

IN reply to your letter of the 9th instant, No. 5056, received on the 16th, I have the honor to refer you to my complete report to the Board of Revenue No. 650A., dated the 29th ultimo, on the effect of the late hurricane of the 1st ultimo as applicable to this Division, embodying the particulars required in your letter under acknowledgment. The only point in it not noticed is the general health of the people after the hurricane. This does not, however, appear to have been materially affected by it, though in a few parts, where the poorer classes were deprived temporarily of shelter, there was doubtless more or less suffering from exposure, but this has long since been relieved.

2. I also subjoin a statement, arranging, as far as practicable under the four heads alluded to in your communication, the particulars embraced by my report.

3. Should any further information be required with reference to your 3rd paragraph, it will be submitted with any additions that may be deemed necessary after further local investigation, especially as to the loss of life, which cannot be arrived at with any accuracy, as such was almost wholly confined to the rivers in which boats from a distance were moored.

4. In estimating the number of houses lost, I would notice that a very great majority of those which I have inspected, especially in the Culna Sub-Division, where the storm was somewhat severe, were simple huts of the most fragile description, and such as would not have stood the violence of an ordinary Nor-Wester.

5. I witnessed the gale and its results in Calcutta, and have seen and heard of no such devastation in any part of this Division, excepting perhaps at Howrah, Bidobatty, and Serampore, and that confined almost to the banks of the river, where the violence of the hurricane was necessarily, from the exposed position, greater.

In Beerbhoom and Bancoorah it may be said not to have been felt.

District.	1 Amount of loss of life caused.	2 Amount and description of the loss of property, houses, crops, and boats, especially.	3 General health after the Cyclone.	4 Character and progress of the storm in different localities.
Bancoorah ...	.....	14 annas of a full rice crop was expected; the storm is reported to have reduced the out-turn to 13 annas, but this may be said to be little more than conjecture. No other loss sustained.	Not affected in any way by the storm.
Beerbhoom ...	This District escaped the storm almost entirely ...		Ditto.
Burdwan ...	Only one human life was lost in the Culna Sub-Division by the fall of a wall, and forty head of cattle were lost in the same manner.	Houses.—From 350 to 400, including huts, besides, a great number of trees. Crops.—From 2 to 3 annas of a crop is reported to have been destroyed. I have since visited the parts most affected in both Sub-Divisions, and should estimate the loss at the highest at 1 anna. Boats.—Fifty-nine, all in the Cutwa and Culna Sub-Divisions, of which eleven have since been recovered. Estimated value of loss of property about 38,000 to private individuals, Government 500; the greater portion of the loss of property (Rupees 25,000) was in the Culna Sub-Division. This provides for the reparation of old buildings which, in the ordinary course, would have had to be repaired according to custom annually after the harvest.	Ditto ...	The storm bore more the character of a gale and commenced at 9 P. M. on the North-East and veered round to the North-West. It was at its climax at 1 A. M., and subsided gradually at 5 P. M.
Hooghly ...	There were only twenty-four deaths throughout the District, exclusive of casualties on the river which, as well as the loss of boats, can't be ascertained.	Houses.—The number blown down were 1,309. That injured 1,278. Crops.—Where they were forward and much exposed, such as vegetable, pawn, hemp, gardens; one-half; where they were sheltered and the ear had not formed, little damage has been done.	Very slightly by exposure.	The character was that of a severe gale. It commenced at 11 P. M. and lasted till 4 A. M. It attained its greatest force between 1 and 3 A. M.
Howrah ...	There were twenty-eight deaths by the falling of houses and walls, besides upwards of 500 head of cattle.	Houses.—30,000, inclusive of huts and sheds, besides a large number of trees. Crops.—About 10 annas out of 16 where the lands are high were said to have been injured, chiefly garden produce, &c., and on the low lands from about 3 annas.	Ditto ...	Passed with extreme violence, accompanied with rain, over the town and suburbs. It was felt more severely throughout the western portion of the District than in the portion lying to the east of the Damooda.
Midnapore ...	There were twenty-one deaths.	Houses.—About 5 per cent. in the Tumlook Sub-Division, at other places very trifling. Crops.—About 2 annas of a most luxuriant crop. Boats.—About eight or ten salt boats at the mouth of the Russoolpore River, which were blown out to sea and a small ferry boat.	Ditto ...	The wind commenced blowing from the North-East at 6 P. M., and rose to a storm from 10 to 11½ P. M., accompanied with heavy rain.

From F. B. SIMSON, Esq., Officiating Commissioner of the Dacca Division, to the Secretary to the Government of Bengal,—(No. 46T., dated Furreedpore, the January 1863.)

WITH reference to your letter No. 5053 of the 9th December, I find that I have very little to add to the reports I have already made concerning the late cyclone. Those reports were substantially correct; if any thing I over-estimated the damage rather than otherwise. The very fullest enquiry has been made. The Collector of Backergunge went over the south of his District in a boat; the Collector of Furreedpore visited every place in his District where his presence was likely to be necessary, and enquired also through the District Superintendent of Police. The Collector of Dacca accompanied me over parts of his District immediately after the cyclone, and subsequently I visited the large rivers which separate Dacca from Backergunge, and traversed all the north of that District, visiting the Sub-Division of Madaripore and the Sudder Station. I have since passed through more of the Dacca District on horse back, and have visited Goalundo, and seen the state of things over much of the country of Furreedpore bordering on the large rivers, and except in the obstruction of boats and cargoes, I am thankful to report that there has been no damage causing distress anywhere in the Division; the crops are certainly no where below the average, nor do the cultivators complain unless pressed to do so, and the specimens even of vegetable at the melahs of Moonsheegunge and Furreedpore are not below the average; the effects of the storm in the District of Mymensing, Sylhet, and Cachar, were trifling and call for no further notice.

I can only ascertain for certain that three lives were lost in Backergunge and three in the Dacca District. Thatched buildings all over the District, especially those which were old, were blown down, but very few brick-buildings suffered much.

The harbour of Naraingunge was unusually crowded owing to the temporary stoppage of the railway steamer, and accumulation of goods, which could not be passed on; it is said 200 boats sunk there, and that the destruction of property was alone 60,000 Rupees, but the particulars are quite unreliable, and I can only say, as before, that on the large rivers in the Districts of Backergunge, Dacca, and Furreedpore, nearly all boats on the leeward shore sank, those in khalls and on the windwards shore were unharmed, of those that sank a small proportion broke up; of the others a large proportion was again floated and found to be not much the worse; all cargo nearly was destroyed in the boats which sank, but of this even a considerable proportion was recovered and dried. I consider it quite impossible to estimate this loss, for the boatmen did not know the value of their cargoes, and the owners were generally absent, and no enquiry could be properly made at the time.

The general health of the Districts does not seem to have been affected; as far as my enquiries go, there has been less cholera than usual as yet, and no more than the usual November fever prevalent among the Natives.

I have already noticed the general character of the storm in the Districts. The one thing that strikes me is peculiarly different from the accounts which have been so widely published in Calcutta for the 24-Pergunnahs, and that neighbourhood, is the fact that the wind from more than an hour before daylight on the 2nd of November till nearly noon, during which time the cyclone was at its height, blew strongest from the south and south-east, and that nearly all the trees and houses in the Districts which were blown down fell towards the north and north-west, whereas those which were blown down in Nuddea and 24-Pergunnahs fell towards the south and south-east, apparently about the same time.

I have no trustworthy scientific data to report; the wheels of the anemometer at Dacca had been wrongly put together, and did not act properly, and I have no sufficiently credible readings of the Mercurial Barometer to forward.

From, W. Le F. Robinson, Esq., Officiating Commissioner of the Rajshahye Division, to the Junior Secretary to the Government of Bengal,—(No. 134Ct., dated Camp Rungpore, the 29th January 1868.)

In reply to your No. 5055 of 9th December, I have the honor to state that in the greater part of this Division viz., Moorshedabad, Maldah, Dinagepore, Rungpore, Bograh, and Rajshahye, there was nothing which could be called a cyclone; there was merely the equinoctial gale though it came a little later than usual perhaps; a few huts and trees were blown down here and there, but there was no real damage done, and there is really nothing of any interest connected with the storm in this part of the country to report about.

2. The only places in fact where the storm was felt with any degree of severity were Pubna and the Sub-divisions of Serajgunge and Comercolly, and even in those places the damage done, except to boats and their cargoes, has not been such as to call for any special measures for relief; huts of course were blown down, but where grass and bamboo are the building materials, they are easily blown down and as easily and cheaply repaired, and probably the occurrence of the storm was a god-send rather than otherwise to the poorest classes of coolies, as they would find ample employment in repairing the houses of their better-off neighbours.

3. The following extracts from the reports from Pubna, Serajgunge, and Comercolly may be interesting. At Pubna the Collector says, a high easterly wind had been felt for two days coming in gusts till the evening of 1st November, when it increased in steadiness and strength. The wind continued easterly, occasionally veering to south but more often to north-east; opinions, however, differ very much. From 12 at night to 5 A. M. the storm was at its height, the wind blowing fiercely from the north-east, the storm was accompanied by a deep booming noise.

4. The Sub-Divisional Officer of Serajgunge reports that from the regular change in the direction of the wind he has little doubt that the storm was of a circular nature; the directions of the wind seemed to indicate that the centre passed in a curve somewhere to the east of Serajgunge and gradually through south to west. There was no decided bill perceptible; the wind was at its height about 8 or 9 A. M. at which time it was blowing from the east.

5. The Comercolly Officer states that it rained almost incessantly during the 1st November, and that the storm commenced with a booming noise from north-east by east between 12 P. M. and 1 A. M. of that night the gale was accompanied by very heavy rain towards dawn the north-easterly wind changed to squalls from different directions; between 5 and 6 A. M. the gale appeared to moderate; about 6½ A. M. there was a lull for half an hour, when it blew for a short time from the north-west and then gradually subsided.

6. The loss of life appears to have been very small; one woman in Comercolly, three persons in Serajgunge, and one or two cases in Pubna itself being all that the Collector could hear of in Comercolly: there was some loss in cattle but not very great, the actual amount was not ascertained.

7. The loss of property in boats must have been very considerable, the Comercolly Sub-Division Officer puts down the losses there at one lakh of Rupees, and the Serajgunge Officer gives the accompanying list of goods* wrecked in the vicinity of that place, but puts no valuation upon them; in Pubna the loss was not ascertained but hardly a boat was able in the larger rivers to ride out the gale.

Lost in the Kole.

8. Where the crops were very forward they suffered to some extent, but I have no where heard the loss estimated at more than four annas, and in few places at so much, one or two annas being the general answer, and where the crops were backward they benefited by the rain fall.

9. The general health throughout the Division has been good; there was an outbreak of cholera in Rajshahye, but it was not supposed to be connected in any way with the cyclone.

(From R. B. Chapman, Esq., Officiating Commissioner of the Presidency Division, to the Secretary to the Government of Bengal,—No. 38Ct., dated Kishnaghur, the 7th February 1868.)

In reply to Government Order No. 5052, dated 9th December 1867, and in continuation of previous more general reports upon the Cyclone of November 1st and 2nd in this Division, I have the honor now to lay before the Government a carefully prepared account of the storm as it was experienced in the District of Jessore, both in its nature and effects.

2. Mr. Monro deserves great credit I think for the completeness of his report, which, except in one particular, contains all the details that can be desired. Information is wanting regarding the loss of life and property from boats on the numerous rivers and water-courses of the District—a loss that, I greatly fear, must have been very serious. I am unable to say that any means existed whereby statistics concerning it could have been obtained in a reliable shape.

3. In regard to the destruction of houses, it must be remembered that the materials were not generally destroyed, but remained available for re-erection. Nevertheless, the injury to property altogether—houses, cattle, crops, trees, boats—must have been enormous. It is a satisfactory proof of the general prosperity of the people, that there should have been so little demand for the exercise of public charity. I entirely agree with Mr. Monro, with whom I have been throughout these months in close communication, that such charity was not called for, and that its employment therefore, would have been simply mischievous.

4. I concur in Mr. Monro's estimate of the damage done to the rice crops. The very low prices ruling everywhere show that the crop gathered must be, with former stores, amply sufficient for the wants of the country. Actual suffering will, I really believe, result chiefly from the destruction of fruit trees, which in Jessore are largely the resource of a respectable class of persons who formerly lived by service, but, from various causes, are now in a declining condition. I do not indeed suppose that such persons will suffer actual privation, but I fear that the cyclone will accelerate their progress to poverty, unless it drive them to do, what they must at last come to, viz., adopt some new means of livelihood.

5. As already stated, the cold-weather crops so largely injured do not in Jessore occupy a place of economic importance.

6. Mr. Monro is entitled to my cordial acknowledgments of the energy and intelligence which he brought to bear upon the onerous and anxious duties devolving upon him in consequence of the storm, and he was faithfully seconded by all his subordinates.

From J. Monro, Esq., Officiating Collector of Jessore, to the Commissioner of the Presidency Division,—(No. 397, dated Jessore, the 23rd January 1868.)

Having now ascertained some particulars regarding the commencement and progress of the late cyclone in different parts of the district, I have the honor to submit a supplementary report on the subject.

2. Early last month I addressed a series of questions to various gentlemen in the district, and the following is the substance of the information gathered from this source.

1st.—Commencement of the Cyclone.—When rain began to fall? whether the rain was heavy? whether the rain was accompanied with wind? whether the wind was at first strong? when the wind began to blow like a storm wind?

I proceed to take answers on these points from all parts of the district.

Places situated to the north, viz.,—Nuldunga, Kallygunge, Chundra, Jemidah, and Soilcopa.

From Nuldunga.—Rain in slight showers fell incessantly from 4 o'clock in the morning of 31st October, till the evening of 1st November. The rain was accompanied with wind, which blew in gusts of varying violence till 8. P. M. of the 1st, when the wind began to rise and the rain to fall more heavily; at about 11-30 P. M. it was blowing a hurricane.

Kallygunge, which is a Police Station, within a couple of miles of Nuldunga, reports similarly.

Chundra reports that it rained the whole of 30th and 31st October, that the rain was accompanied with slight wind, and that the wind was blowing with great violence at midnight of the 1st.

Jemidah, distant 28 miles north, reports in similar terms, except that the rain commenced on the 31st.

Soitcopa, distant 39 miles north: same report as from Jenidah.

The first indication then of bad weather in the north of the district may be said to have been given on the 31st, in the morning; from that time up till about midnight on the 1st the signs of bad weather increased, and at midnight the force of the cyclone began to be felt.

Places in the north-east of the district, viz.,—Huzlabut, Magoorah, Mahomedpore.

Mr. Durand, writing from Huzlabut, states that the rain began on the morning of the 31st, that there was no wind till the night of the 31st, that it did not blow strong till the 1st, and that on the evening of the 1st the storm-wind first began.

At Magoorah Sub-Divisional Head-Quarters, 36 miles from Jessore, the rain began on the morning of the 31st accompanied with slight wind, which gradually rose until at midnight on the 1st the storm-wind began to be felt.

From Mahomedpore Police Station the same report is sent, so that the commencement of the storm was the same as at the localities in the north. Magoorah is 17 miles east of Jenidah, and Mahomedpore 15 miles east-south-east of Magoorah.

Places on the east of the district, viz.,—Bagarpara, Sreedhurpore, Nohatta, Nurrail, Lohagorah, Kaliah.

Bagarpara Police Station, 12 miles east, reports that on the 30th October rain began, accompanied with slight wind, which gradually increased till 11 o'clock P. M. of the 1st November, when the wind blew a hurricane.

Sreedhurpore, the residence of Baboos Punchanund and Ishur Bose, reports to exactly the same effect.

Mr. Savi of Nohatta, 28 miles east, states that drizzling rain commenced on the morning of the 31st, and continued the whole of that day, and of the ensuing day. On the evening of the 1st it came down very sharp, accompanied with gusts of wind; about midnight of the 1st of November the wind began to be strong, and gradually increased to a gale at about 2 A. M. of the 2nd, after which time it assumed the appearance of a cyclone.

Nurrail Sub-Divisional Head-Quarters, 22 miles east of Jessore, reports very much as above, but states that at 10 P. M. of the 1st it was blowing a perfect hurricane; the storm-wind being felt at 8 P. M. of the 1st.

Other advices from Nurrail fix 11 and 12 as the time when the wind might be called a storm-wind.

Lohagorah Police Station, 11 miles east of Nurrail, reports that rain began late at night on the 30th, continued all day of the 31st, heavy showers taking place at intervals, and that the wind began to blow with great fury at 7 P. M. of the 1st.

At Kaliah, about 14 miles south-east from Nurrail, it rained during the whole of the 31st, and the wind blew strong up till midnight of the 1st; still up till that time it was thought that the wind was the usual katian or kartick wind, which often blows pretty strongly at the beginning of the cold weather during the month of kartick. At midnight, however, my informant began to suspect the wind was somewhat stronger than the katian, awoke all his children, and put them in a place of safety. We may therefore fix between 11 and 12 as the time when the storm-wind commenced at Kaliah.

It will be seen that the Deputy Magistrate of Nurrail, and the Police Inspector of Lohagorah, both place the commencement of the storm-wind much earlier than hitherto given. I imagine that as the ideas of all persons do not agree as to the degree of violence which would warrant the blowing of the wind being called a hurricane, so this difference of opinion has given rise to the discrepancy. My other informants at Nurrail speak of the storm-wind having commenced at 11 and 12 P. M.

Places in the south-east, viz.,—Khoolnah, Molahat, Morrelgunge.

From Khoolnah, 37 miles south-east, I have two reports.

The rain seems to have commenced on the 30th, to have continued falling not very heavily till the evening of the 1st, when the wind began to rise. The storm-wind began to be felt according to one report at 9 P. M., according to the other about midnight.

At Molahat, distant from Khoolnah, rain commenced on the 31st, and strong wind blew about 8 P. M. of the 1st.

At Bagirhat, about 40 miles south-east, rain commenced on the 31st, and the storm-wind began to be felt at 10 P. M.

At Morrelgunge, 120 miles south-east from Jessore, rain commenced to fall very heavily at 10 P. M. on the 30th; it was accompanied with wind which was not very strong, and at 7 P. M. the storm-wind began to blow and the rain to lessen.

Places in the south of the district, viz.,—Doomria, Bylaghata, Keshubpore, Alipopo.

Doomria, distant from Khoolnah, reports rain to have commenced on the 30th October in the morning, and to have continued falling, sometimes violently, sometimes lightly, till 9 P. M. of the 1st November, when it ceased, and the storm-wind began to blow.

Bylaghata reports that rain began on the 1st November (I don't trust this report), and that it continued accompanied with wind of more or less violence till dusk on the evening of the 1st, when the storm-wind began.

Keshubpore, twenty-two miles south from Jessore, reports that rain, beginning on the 30th, continued falling with varying force till the evening of the 1st. The wind, which blowing lightly had accompanied the rain, increased in violence from the evening of the 1st to 8 P. M., when it blew a hurricane. Baboo Shooka Sundoo Banerjee, living at Alipore, a couple of miles from Keshubpore, corroborates the Keshubpore account.

Jhingurgatcha, nine miles from Jessore, reports that rain began on the 30th, continued to fall heavily during the 31st, accompanied with wind which kept on increasing till midnight of the 1st, when it blew a hurricane.

Amirto Bazar, about four miles from Jhingurgatcha, reports that the rain began on the night of the 29th, and continued, with short interruptions, during the 30th, 31st, and 1st. The rain was accompanied with wind, which increased to a hurricane about 10 P. M. of the 1st.

Gudkhaly Police Station, distance twelve miles west, repeats the same report, fixing midnight of the 1st November as the time when the storm-wind began to be felt.

Kotechandpore, twenty-six miles north-west from Jessore. There was slight rain on the 30th. It was heavy on the 31st, and equally on the 1st; it rained at intervals up to 11 P. M. It was very heavy during the remainder of the night, and while the storm was raging. There was no wind on the 30th. It was gusty on the 31st; on the day of the 1st it was the same, and the storm-wind began to be felt at midnight.

Seendooree, thirty-seven miles north-west. Rain began to fall at first lightly, and shortly after heavily, early on the morning of the 31st, and continued with but slight intermission till the evening of 1st November, from which time up to the end of the storm at 6½ A. M. it came down in torrents. This is quite peculiar to Seendooree; as the storm elsewhere increased the rain lessened. The rain was accompanied with gusts of wind, at first light, but gradually increasing in force up to the time of the storm. The wind began to blow strongly about midnight of the 1st.

The above accounts shew pretty clearly that bad, and, for the season, unusually rainy weather had, for thirty-six hours before the cyclone was felt, been prevalent throughout the district, that the wind gradually rose, and that it became a hurricane at some time between 10 and 12 of the night of the 1st.

2nd.—The direction from which the wind blew.—Whether it came from one direction throughout the storm, or whether it changed?

Places in North of District.

The wind began north-east, continued to blow from that direction till about 3 A. M., when it veered round due east for about two hours, then turned to south, and in the morning blew south-west, and finally west at the close of the storm.

Places in North-East of the District.

Wind at first about north-north-east, then turned round gradually to the south-west, from which direction the wind was blowing when the storm ceased.

Places in East of the District.

The accounts received from these quarters vary somewhat. Sreedhurpore reports the wind all along was coming from the east, and when it became very strong it blew from south-east, north, and west, and with a southern wind the storm abated in the morning.

At Nyhatta the wind blew first from the north, then went to north by east, and gradually veered round to the south.

At Nurrail it began north-north-east, gradually shifted to east-south-east, south-south-west, west, when the weather cleared up.

Places in the South-East.

Here again accounts vary.

The Deputy Magistrate of Khoolna writes, the wind came from east, and continued to blow steadily from that direction till 2 A. M., when it blew from the south, and continued to do so till 9 A. M.

Another account from Khoolnah says, the wind on the 1st came from east for some time and then from south-east, and the blowing of the south-eastern wind continued up to 9 P. M., of the 1st instant, when it came from east and south-east very furiously as that of a very great storm. At about midnight it also changed its course and came for half an hour from the north; at about 1 A. M. it again changed its course, and came from the south very furiously.

A third account from the same place says, the wind commenced from north-west, then shifted due north, north-east, east, and lastly veered to the south, when it was strongest.

At Moralgunge the wind began to blow from north-east, continuing till 10 P. M., when it changed to the south-east, which quarter it steadily kept till 5 A. M. of the 2nd.

Places in South of District.

Wind reported to have come first from the east up to 2 A. M., then from the south and south-west.

Direction of the Wind.

Wind came first from north, veered east and south-east round to south-west.

The same may be said of places on the north-west.

There is no place in the district where any distinct fall in the cyclone was felt; but judging from the direction of the wind given above, I should say the centre must have been somewhere on the west of the district, and that the cyclone came up from towards south-west.

2nd.—End of the Storm.

From all accounts the storm began to abate on the morning of the 2nd, and although the wind continued blowing for some time afterwards, all danger had passed away by 6 A. M. of the 2nd.

In many places lights or luminous appearances were observed in the sky during the storm.

At Chandra, on the north of the district, my informant states that about 5 o'clock, amid the rain and storm, a peculiar light, somewhat like a red cloud, was observed in the north. It did not remain in the same place, but changed its position and disappeared in about an hour.

At Jenidah no such peculiar light was observed.

At Huzlabut, in the north-east of the district, there appeared in the south a cloud of a pink colour. It seemed like a wind cloud, but black clouds obscured it.

At Magoorah a peculiar lurid appearance at the beginning of and during the storm was noticed, but no particulars of it are given.

At Nyhatta during the height of the storm the horizon presented a lurid appearance, like that of a conflagration at a distance, and the Natives there report the emission at intervals of balls of fire.

At Narrail a bright glow was remarked during the night on the horizon from south-west, and removing up to north-west. It disappeared with daylight. The same peculiar appearance was visible at Seedhurpore, commencing about 4½ A. M., and disappearing with the dawn.

At Kaliah my "informant saw a light after two 2 o'clock as if a house was on fire in the west. I thought it to be quite close, in my uncle's house, which is about 4 or 3 yards off. I sent my father to see, and he saw it as if somewhat further off. I saw it for about an hour, always in the west, getting further off. Other people said they saw it in the south and east, but I did not. It disappeared about 8, and I did not see it again."

At Khoolnah a peculiar light was visible in the sky at 3 A. M. It was first visible towards the north; after half an hour it changed to the east, and subsequently to the south, where it disappeared.

Another informant at the same place says, from 3 A. M. up to 5 A. M. peculiar lights were visible in the sky: some red or fiery clouds in the south-west, and a great luminous body in the south were visible. The light seemed as of that of lightning all over the southern and south-western parts of the sky.

The same light was seen at Alipole in the south, and in other places in the west and north-west.

At one place in the district from which I have received information, viz., Morrelgunge, the storm was accompanied with thunder and lightning.

I have not heard that there was anything like a storm wave at any place in the district. At Khoolnah and Bagirhaut the rivers rose considerably, and the water rapidly subsided. At Morrelgunge there was a very high tide, the water coming up to the house of the Messrs. Morrell, which is well raised, and submerging the surrounding crops. It does not appear that this rising of the water was the occasion of loss of life, and it certainly saved much of the crop which temporarily sunk and escaped the violence of the wind, and, after the subsidence of the water, emerged without having sustained much damage. The water which rose thus does not appear to have been salt; at all events no damage was done by it to the crops of the character which salt water always occasions.

Damage done by the Cyclone.

I append a table showing the damage done to houses and cattle, with statistics of the loss of human life. I only give these figures as showing the loss approximately; it is almost impossible to procure anything like accurate statistics without a detailed enquiry of a character which I have neither time nor establishment to conduct. The figures are given on information furnished by the Police, supplemented by other local enquiry. I am at a loss to understand how so much damage was caused to cattle in the southern and eastern portions of the district as compared with other parts, except on the supposition, which enquiry verifies to some extent, that many in the south and east were blown away and drowned in the rivers and creeks which there intersect the country. In these parts the cattle had been, in consequence of the inundation, brought on from the maidans to which they might have escaped, and were cooped up in large numbers on very small space on the raised spots of ground on which their owners' houses stood. When the storm came they could not take refuge in the maidans, where they would have been in [illegible] circumstances tolerably safe, and when the houses fell they caused great destruction amongst the herd gathered in beside them.

In Morrelgunge and in Bagirhaut, where the rivers rose, death of cattle by drowning was doubtless the most common form of destruction.

The number of houses put down as destroyed seems incredible, but yet I believe the numbers given are rather under than over the mark.

The loss of human life is put down at 126. Those figures I am afraid do not represent the actual loss which must have occurred owing to the foundering of boats in the numerous rivers of the district and of the Soonderbuns, but no accurate statistics of these deaths can possibly be procured. Considering the size of the district, and the violence of the storm, I am thankful that the loss has been no heavier. As regards trees no figures are given to show the loss, but the destruction of the fruit gardens has been very great, and the loss sustained by respectable men and women of the upper classes, whose chief means of income was derived from these gardens, has been most serious. The loss in this respect it is impossible to repair for years, and were it not fortunately the case that the present is not the fruit season, and that the effects will not be felt till after the immediately disastrous effects of the storm have partially disappeared, distress might have resulted.

The date tree is most extensively cultivated in the district, and the sugar manufactured from its juice forms an important item in the commerce of several large and important places on the west of Jessore. The destruction of these trees I at first believed to be very great. Subsequent inquiries have, I am glad to say, led me to believe that the first accounts were considerably exaggerated. I now believe, from enquiries which I have personally made in parts of the district where the trees are largely cultivated, that the yield this year will be $\frac{1}{4}$th less than in ordinary years. About $\frac{1}{4}$th of the number of the trees have been uprooted and destroyed, and to the extent of $\frac{1}{4}$th the productive power of remainder has been diminished. This loss of productive power will not, however, be lasting, and the trees I am told recover gradually.

When the cyclone came a most luxuriant Amun rice crop was upon the ground. The high price realized for rice during the previous two years had led to the cultivation of paddy being largely extended. An abundant Aous crop had been reaped in August, and the Amun had largly begun to form in the ear when the storm came.

In many places the rice was beaten down, in others submerged, in others, where the ear had more fully formed, the tops of the stalks were cut as with a knife. The submerging of the rice in the southern parts saved it from injury, for the water in which it disappeared protected it from the violence of the wind, and on its subsidence the stalks rose again without having sustained any damage for their temporary submersion.

I think the loss of rice crop throughout the whole of the district may fairly be stated to be about one-fourth of the crop on the ground, and less than one-fourth of an average crop.

As regards the cold-weather crop also, the cyclone caused no inconsiderable damage. The inundation which immediately preceded it had not subsided; the waters were still upon the ground, and the usual khatian sowings had not been made; the rain which fell along with the cyclone, caused any seeds recently put into the ground to rot, and the wind destroyed any plants which had got above the ground. The losses to houses took up the attention of the people so much, the magnitude of the cyclone calamity disheartened them at first so much, and the procuring of seed grain at anything like a reasonable price from the dealers was so difficult, that fresh sowings were only partially made. The crop derivable from these late sowings will not be so full as from sowings made at the proper season, and I shall consider the district fortunate if a six anna cold weather crop is reaped.

Relief measures and attitude of the people after the Cyclone.

For the first few days after the cyclone the people seemed stunned, and they appeared incapable of making any exertion to help themselves in the midst of the distress which was apparently universal. I admit freely that for the first week I thought the distress would be most severe, and the first accounts which came in from all quarters were anything but cheering.

Matters, however, soon began to mend, and it was found that what the people most needed was a little encouragement and incitement to work for themselves, rather than pecuniary aid. The Sub-Divisional Officers, and all the Officers available at the Sudder Station, were ordered out to various parts of the district, with instructions to help those who really needed it, and encourage the people generally. The assistance of the prisoners was given to those in the station who needed their houses rebuilt, and it was surprising how soon all began to better themselves, and erect some kind of shelter, often of a very primitive description, for themselves and their families. The Agents of some of the Zemindars were sent for, the Zemindars were written to, and aid was promised if required. I am convinced that if aid had been given at once in the shape of money, the idle only would have benefited by it, and numbers of people would have been converted into needy idlers, who by a little encouragement soon betook themselves to work, and cast upon neither their neighbours nor the State any pecuniary burden.

Five thousand Rupees was sent by the Cyclone Relief Committee in Calcutta, and Rupees 500 were placed at the disposal of each Sub-Divisional Officer, for the relief of those who were really unable to put up the houses which had been blown down. It was soon found that very few of this class were in the district, that a detached case or so was to be found in villages, but that generally the people were in a position to fight against the calamity; that they united and helped one another to repair the damage done, and that in the case of indigent widows and old men, who had neither the means nor the strength to erect their houses, private assistance and private charity sufficed to meet their wants. Not more than 500 or 600 Rupees has been expended altogether of the grant made by the Committee, and assistance to a considerable extent, in a promiscuous fashion, has been given by the Zemindars, and under landholders generally.

The District, it must be remembered, had previously been specially fortunate in escaping the ravages made by the cyclone of 1864, and the scarcity of 1866-6. The condition of the ryots has every year been improving; an abundant harvest had been reaped, so abundant that most of them cleared themselves from the Mahajuns, and in every cultivator's house there was at the time of the cyclone a store of rice sufficient for half a year's consumption, and a few rupees which his good fortune in previous years of plenty, and scarcity in other districts, has enabled him to accumulate. With these stores to fall back upon, the ryots soon began to recover their spirits, and their previous good fortune enabled them, without much privation, and with very little real suffering, to fight against the injuries of the cyclone.

The chief want felt at the time was that of labor. This of itself was a good sign, and showed that one class at least was beyond the reach of want. The day after the cyclone labourers could not be procured in Jessore at a Rupee per head per day, and weeks after, with the competition of prison labor in the market, coolies who immediately for the time became intuitively (although not practically) acquainted with the duties of gheramies, received 5 annas per diem and their food. There are still in the town and in the villages many houses to be put up; many who previously had four or five rooms, have contented themselves with putting up one or two rough houses sufficient for shelter. The great majority of the cultivating class have been so busy reaping their Amun crop, that they have been content with very inferior house accommodation, but I have not yet heard, although careful enquiry has been constantly made, of any real cases of distress on account of the want of accommodation. There are numerous Dewas, Eustums, and Bustomis in every village, who come for aid, but it must be remembered that these were generally houseless before the cyclone appeared, and that they have only the claim of professional beggars to be listened to.

6. But the question still remains, supposing the people on account of the previous bountiful Aous harvest have been able to tide over the distress hitherto, will they be able to prolong their endurance till a year, it is to be hoped of ordinary fertility, partially makes up for their losses? The loss occasioned by the cyclone ought not to be felt until the time when the crop which it damaged would, under other circumstances, have been ready for consumption, and it remains to be seen whether the damage sustained has been of so serious a nature as to give rise to apprehensions that when the Amun crop comes into consumption, the supplies should not be sufficient to keep the people above want.

I think I may safely say that there is no reason for such apprehension. With a twelve annas crop, the people can well afford to stand a calamity even like the cyclone. The price of rice is the best test of the general feeling on this point. Rice has been also lately cheaper than in ordinary years, and, except for a few days immediately subsequent to the cyclone, the price has latterly been at all times moderate. When the Amun comes into the market now, a further fall in price will take place, and although the prospects of the cold-weather crops are by no means cheering, the prosperity of the district fortunately does not depend much upon these crops, and if the rice crop be but fair, a deficit in other crops has not much effect in diminishing the general well-being of the people.

The loss in cattle is one which will not be felt till next sowing time, and, with the loss even of 10,000, I do not think the stores of the district are much weakened. Calcutta is largely supplied from this district, and it might be well to find out from purchasers there, if the cyclone has caused any perceptible rise in prices.

I think the people of the district deserve very great credit for the way in which they have borne a calamity which may not cause active distress, but which has given rise undoubtedly to very wide spread inconvenience and privation. They have weathered the storm with but very little complaining, and many exhibitions of endurance, for which Bengalis do not generally get much credit.

In conclusion, I shall be wanting in my duty if I failed to acknowledge the cordial co-operation which I met with from my Sub-Divisional Officers, and from all the Zemindars and gentlemen of the district whom I had occasion to address after the cyclone. Without such help it would have been well nigh impossible to have brought the district through the trial, with so comparatively slight suffering and distress.

From LORD H. ULICK BROWNE, Officiating Commissioner of the Chittagong Division, to the Secretary to the Government of Bengal.—(No. 150, dated Chittagong, the 29th February 1868.)

I HAVE the honor to acknowledge the receipt of the Junior Secretary's letter No. 5054, dated the 9th December last, and to submit, for the information of the Lieutenant-Governor, a statement shewing the losses incurred in this Division, and the following report on each of the four points in connection with the late cyclone.

1st.—The amount of the loss of life caused.

2. In the Noakhally District the loss of 10 lives is reported in Dukhin Shabazpore and four in the Out-posts of Farashgunge and Gazeepore. In the other Districts of this Division I am happy to say that no lives were lost as far as can be ascertained.

2nd.—The amount and description of the loss of property, houses, crops and boats especially.

3. It will be observed from the enclosed statement that the loss of cattle on the former District has been very great, the total number of buffaloes, cows, and goats, aggregating 3,168. In Chittagong, where there was in fact no cyclone, there has been a very slight loss of crops from inundation.

3rd.—The general health after the cyclone.

4. The cyclone does not appear to have had any effect on the general health. There were a few cases of cholera and small-pox in Noakhally and Tipperah after it, but the Collectors do not think that these are attributable to the cyclone. In Chittagong there is nothing to report.

4th.—Character and progress of the storm in different localities.

5. In Chittagong the only thing noticeable in the weather on the 1st and 2nd November last was a high wind overnight, accompanied with heavy rain, caused doubtless by the storm, which raged at the same time in the western part of the bay. The high wind, however, did not amount to a gale.

6. In Tipperah the Collector reports that on the 1st of November there was slight rain, and a moderate wind blowing from the north-east. It gradually increased in violence, and on the 2nd there was a most violent gale up to 2 P. M., when it began to moderate, and at 4 P. M. entirely subsided.

7. In Noakhally the gale began at 7 P. M. on the 1st November, blowing at first from the east, but afterwards veering round to the west, from which quarter it blew strongest. The tide which was an ordinary neap tide made early in the morning of the 2nd and flooded the country. It was this inundation that caused by far the greater part of the losses. There was no "bore" on the river, but still the water rose at least 4½ feet higher than the level of a tide.

8. With the exception of the lamentable loss of cattle in Noakhally, the cyclone does not appear to have done much damage in the Districts of this Division.

H. U. BROWNE,
Officiating Commissioner.

From R. B. Chapman, Esq., Officiating Commissioner of the Presidency Division, to the Secretary to the Government of Bengal,—(No. 109Ct., dated Kishnaghur, the 11th March 1868.)

In continuation of my No. 38Ct., dated 7th February, I have the honor to submit two reports in original by Messrs. Bell and Westland, numbered and dated as in the margin, containing all the details that can be procured of the course and effects of the Cyclone of last November in Nuddea.

No. 74Ct., dated 13th January.
No. 2024, dated 5th March, with enclosure.

2. These accounts are very much less complete and valuable than those for Jessore, in consequence perhaps, chiefly, of the absence of four of the Sub-Divisional Officers in Calcutta at the examination, at the time of the storm.

3. I have very little doubt, as already reported, that the storm was on the whole decidedly less violent in Nuddea than in Jessore. The north-west of the District escaped almost altogether.

From H. Bell, Esq., Officiating Collector of Nuddea, to the Commissioner of the Presidency Division,—(No. 74Ct., dated Camp Chagdah, the 13th January 1868.)

I have the honor to acknowledge the receipt of your memorandum No. 28 of the 21st ultimo, calling for information regarding the late Cyclone, and to enclose a statement giving the information called for by the Government of Bengal. The statistics have been furnished by the Police, and revised by the Sub-Divisional Officers; and, in my opinion, considerably understate the damage which has been done. In the Kishengunge and Hanskhally Thannahs alone some 3000 or 4000 head of cattle must have perished, but the Police returns give only 680. Similarly, I find from the returns that in the same two Thannahs 750 houses have been blown down; whereas Baboo Brindabun Chunder Sircar gave me in a return, showing that, on his estates alone, which are principally situated in this quarter, 10,000 huts were destroyed. I feel confident that the Baboo's estimate is much nearer the truth. I regret to say that I can at present furnish no returns regarding boats. The destruction, however, was enormous; hardly a boat on the rivers escaped.

2. With regard to the crops, it is estimated that one-fourth of the Amun dhan left by the inundation was destroyed. The destruction of Urhur and Teel was of course much greater, and amounted on an average to three-fourths of the crop. The cold-weather sowings also suffered severely. In consequence of the inundation the sowings all over the District were late, and the rain which accompanied the Cyclone rotted the seed in the ground, and necessitated the re-sowing of large tracts of country.

3. I do not think the general health of the District has been in any appreciable degree affected by the Cyclone. The several Relief Committees which have been formed have been untiring in their exertions, and by their assistance the poor throughout the District have been enabled to re-erect their houses.

4. Mr. Savi was, I believe, the only gentleman in the District who noted with accuracy the progress and character of the storm, and I have written to him to furnish you with the result of his observations.

H. Bell,

Officiating Collector.

From JAMES WESTLAND, Esq., Officiating Collector of Nuddea, to the Commissioner of the Presidency Division,—(No. 2024, dated Kishnaghur, the 5th March 1868.)

I HAVE the honor to submit a meteorological report regarding the recent cyclone.

The information collected is much more meagre than one would desire, and one cause to which it is to be attributed is that the cyclone came at a time when many of the Sub-Divisional Officers were absent in Calcutta, and that Natives are not in the habit of observing storms from a meteorological point of view, but spend their time in waiting till it is over. I have no doubt you will recognize the propriety of confining one's self to ascertained facts, in a report of this sort, instead of collecting the vague statements and rumours which are all that is procurable from native quarters.

I begin with Bongong as the part where the storm is supposed first in this district to have reached. The weather was bad for two days previous—drizzling showers of rain, with gusts of wind from the east. Rain set in in greater quantity about 9 P. M. of the 1st November, and the wind increased in violence at the same time, and up till 11 o'clock bearing from east to north as it became stronger. The wind was strongest about midnight. It then abated slightly, and at 1 P. M. there was a moderate wind only, blowing from a point slightly west by north, but from 2 A. M. till 3½ A. M. it had again risen and was blowing with violence. By the latter hour the cyclone may be said to have ceased, though a strong breeze continued to blow up till 8 or 9 of the morning.

The rain decreased as the storm gathered strength.

Of all places in the Sub-Division, it appears to have blown with most violence at Moheshpore, where even masonry walls gave way before it. Many people living near Bongong say that about 2 A. M. a streak of light, broad, more vivid than lightning, but noiseless, shot across the sky from west to east.

From my own observation I can state that, in the eastern part of the Bongong Sub-Division, the trees, &c., were blown down south-westward, some light ones westward. This shows the beginning of the violence of the wind to have been when it was in the north-east.

From Chooadangah the information is little. Mr. Webster returned after the storm, and found the Thannah and the Department Public Works Bungalow all in ruins, and his Hajut roof blown off. The storm there blew from the north at the beginning, and from the west afterwards. Its duration is put down as from 12 midnight to 8 A. M., but includes more than the cyclone proper.

At Kooshtea the time is written from 2 A. M. till 10 A. M., and it is stated that it blew first from the east and then from north-east. The rain guage marked 12 inches of rain; but for this and other reasons I believe that rain guage is in the habit of giving false reports.

At Ranaghat, which is adjacent on the west to the Bongong Sub-Division, a strong easterly wind with rain prevailed for three days, and on 1st November, at 8 or 9 A. M., the wind turned to the north-east and then to the north, from which point it blew with the greatest violence, and caused the greatest destruction. The sky towards the east had a reddish appearance. The violence of the storm appears to have varied in even adjacent places.

At Kishnaghar the previous three days had been unusually bad weather, very cloudy and cold, and each evening especially gusts of wind and rain set in from the east. Those that occurred in the evening of the 1st November were stronger and more frequent than had been before, and they settled down into a strong east or north-east wind, which began to blow strongly about 10 P. M. From that time it increased in violence, passing round to the north, whence it must have been blowing about midnight; after that it passed still further west, and the strongest wind blew from north-west about 2 o'clock till 4 o'clock. The trees which were blown down fell in a south-east direction, but I observed many broken branches of trees lying almost east of the trees to which they belonged; probably it requires a stronger wind to break off a branch than to blow over a tree.

The night was profoundly dark, and there was none whatever of the light said to have been seen in other places. The wind was still strong when day-light came, but it gradually subsided, and the sun came out at mid-day on the Saturday. I append an interesting series of barometrical observations by Mr. Savi of Moheshgunge, which give particulars of the storm at the various hours.

From R. B. Chapman, Esq., Officiating Commissioner of the Presidency Division, to the Secretary to the Government of Bengal,—(No. 32, dated Calcutta, the 30th March 1868.)

In continuation of my No. 109Ct., dated 11th March, I beg to submit herewith Mr. Smith's Report in original upon the Cyclone of the 1st to the 2nd November 1867, as experienced in the 24-Pergunnahs.

2. Although this report is late, it is very complete and very valuable, and Mr. Smith deserves, I think, the acknowledgment by the Government of the care and intelligence with which he has prepared it.

3. The 24-Pergunnahs bore the brunt of the storm, and the suffering caused by it there was owing to former recent calamities, peculiarly great. I venture to say, however, that all that could be reasonably expected from the administration and from public charity was done in this District for the relief of the sufferers, and done energetically and well.

4. We profited largely by the liberal contributions to the Cyclone Relief Fund, of which a large share was expended in this District, and we owe perhaps still more to the zealous and self-denying services of that large band of workers, most of them Volunteers, whose names are given in Mr. Smith's 26th paragraph. I hope that I may be authorized to convey the thanks of the Government to each of these gentlemen for their humane exertions, and to Mr. Smith and his official subordinates, and other fellow-labourers upon the District Committees, for the share which they took in the work.

5. It is gratifying to me to be able to report that the gloomy anticipations of distress to result from the storm, which were entertained by so many well able to judge even to a recent date, are not as yet realised. There are no signs yet of any popular suffering or even of any need of relief works. We shall of course, however, continue carefully on the watch for such signs until the next harvest is secured.

6. Having sent on the Jessore and Nuddea reports to Government in original, I am unable to institute any general comparison of the effects of the storm in the three Districts of the Division, or to compile any connected sketch of the whole. This will, it is probable, be done better than I could do it, by the professional Department.

7. I shall be glad of printed copies of all these reports in due time.

From A. Smith, Esq., Magistrate of the 24-Pergunnahs, to the Commissioner of the Presidency Division,—(No. 142, dated Alipore, the 23rd March 1868.)

Referring to your Nos. 204 of the 4th November, 88 of the 11th November, and 3Ct. of the 3rd December, information of the effects of the Cyclone of the 1st November last on the District has been communicated to you from time to time as collected. I now proceed to submit, as requested in the orders of Government conveyed to me under your endorsement No. 28Ct. of the 21st January, a summary of the information obtained, whether already submitted or not.

2. This District was traversed by a storm in a Northernly or North-Easterly direction. The centre of the storm was considerably to the East of Calcutta. At Canning, Barripore, Atharabanka, Busseerhaut, Goverdenga and Satkhirah, the calm which indicates the passage of the central vortex of the storm is spoken of.

3. Travelling, as in these parts such storms uniformly do, from the Bay, it entered the District across the desert wastes of the Soonderbuns, and the storm-wave which is always carried with Cyclones on the ocean, and which in 1864 was borne on the populous country of the Northern Hidgelee and the shipping in the Hooghly, fortunately expended itself almost entirely on these wastes, and the small area of cultivated but thinly-peopled land which lies between them and the District Proper.

4. Beginning from Saugor Island the storm-wave extended to the extreme East of the District. In the Culpotton and the Cobaduck, Mr. Reilly reports that the water rose 6 feet above flood level. The North part of Saugor Island is reported by Baboo Sunjeeb Chunder Chatterjee to have been inundated, and the whole of the intervening Soonderbun lots appear to have been swept by the wave. At Port Canning the water rose to a height of 4 to 5 feet above the Canning Strand, and pouring over it inundated the town.

5. The origin of these storm-waves is evidently due partly to the reduced barometric pressure, but chiefly to the mechanical action of the wind which piles up the water in its gyratings and centrepetal motion round and towards the disc or discs of low barometer. The extent of the former influence is a matter of easy calculation. The pressure of the medium barometric column of 30 inches to which mercury rises in a vacuum, is equivalent to that of the height of 33 feet of water, that being similarly the medium height to which water rises in a vacuum. A reduction of two to three inches in the barometric column (The barometer in the central calm at Canti in 1864 stood at 28'025) will permit the water to rise about from 2 to 3 feet only.

6. This is therefore approximately the height due to reduced barometric pressure. To obtain absolute accuracy minute considerations of temperature are required, but they need not be considered here.

7. The remainder of the wave is due to the purely mechanical action of the wind. At Canning the inundation appears to have occurred about the time of the passing of the centre of the storm, about two hours before high water. As the storm occurred at night, no trustworthy particulars as to the mode of progress of the wave have been obtained. Mr. Irwin, who was sent to make enquiries at Canning and to the Eastward, says the rise of water was everywhere gradual. As the wind rose so the water rose. There was, he says, no mass of water forced up by the wind and coming with a rush from the sea, but a gradual rise owing to a disc of low barometer. It is clear for the reasons already stated, that the low barometer alone does not account for the whole or even any large part of the height to which the water was raised. The alleged gradual rising, though in no way unlikely or improbable, is contrary to the particulars ascertained in 1864. I was told then by the surviving inhabitants of one of the most exposed villages situated at the point where the Russulpore flows into the sea, that the water there came in two huge waves, the first of which rolled to the foot of the embankment, and next rose over its coast. At Cowcolly the wave broke over the embankment during the central calm. At Tumlook, Mr. Haughton informed me that the wave was seen coming like a huge bone up the river. At Koilah Ghat, Mr. Grant's description is that the water all at once suddenly rose as if by magic, and slowly rolled towards him. Baboo Hem Chunder Kerr, who was at the time Deputy Magistrate of Diamond Harbour, tells me that there also the rise was not gradual but sudden. Mr. [illegible] mentions also that at Katirbarria the water began to flow in at 9 P. M. [illegible] was earlier than I should have expected from the experience of 1864, but in no way unlikely. The same difficulty is experienced in fixing the time of the inundation at Canning. There can be no doubt, however, that there the principal volume of water was poured into the town at the time of the passing of the central vortex.

8. The phenomena which attended the storm at the Presidency are sufficiently well known, and I need not repeat them here. I may, however, give the readings of my barometer which were taken throughout the night from the time when it first became manifest to me that a Cyclone was impending till it passed over, and which shews the time at which the indication stood at each vegisimal point. During the extreme violence of the storm it oscillated with every gust, but the readings indicated are those at which it stood :—

9. From Diamond Harbour the Deputy Magistrate reported that early in the morning of the 1st November last, while it was yet dark, the sky became cloudy, and the wind began to blow from the East, and this state of weather continued till dusk when the wind veered a little to the North. It then began to blow from the North-East and continued till 10 P. M., the force of the wind gradually increasing. At this time the wind changed its course and began to blow from the North in the shape of a severe gale. At midnight the wind veered to the North-West increasing vastly in its force. At about 2 in the morning of the 2nd idem, it came on from the West and at about 5 o'clock the severity of the storm greatly decreased. It, however, continued in a mild form till 10 A. M., all this time rain fell in torrents, especially after 10 o'clock.

10. At Barripore the Cyclone began after sunset of the 1st Novem[illegible] with a high wind from the North-East. It was then only an ordinary gale, and gathered strength between 8 and 9 P. M. At midnight the wind was found blowing from the North direct, but it cannot be ascertained at what hour precisely veered to that point. This Northern blast was the one which caused most of the destruction attributable to the Cyclone. The wind veered to the West at about 3 or 3-30 A. M., and immediately before the change there was a luminous appearence and a lull in the wind. The luminousity was so strong that most people mistook it for the dawn, and it is described to have been quite equal, as regards the intensity of the light, to the "glooming" which precedes the dawn. It was sufficient to show distinctly such objects as leaves of trees, roads at some distance, &c. This luminous character of the atmosphere lasted about a quarter of an hour. The wind abated during the time that this extraordinary light lasted, but it was not exactly a lull. The wind veered to the West after this phenomenon disappeared, and it then blew with less violence than when it had blown from the North, nevertheless the force of the wind was fearful still, and the storm abated at about an hour before sun-rise. After it had abated the wind still continued to blow from the West. The most interesting fact here is no doubt the connection in the point of time observed between the extraordinary light, the abatement in the force of the wind and the changes in its direction. If the lull spoken of be that of the central calm which I suppose it was, though on the Western margin of it and not very distant, there can be no doubt that the time is as incorrect as that given at Satkhirah mentioned hereafter. At Canning which I next mention, the time when the lull occurred, though definitely fixed by European observation, is equally inaccurately given by the Natives.

11. At Port Canning Mr. Leisk, the local Agent of the Port Canning Company, gives the following particulars: November 1st, wind from North to North-East equally with rain throughout the day. At 7 A. M. weather looked threatening and wind increasing at 8 P. M. blowing a stiff gale, increasing in violence as the night drew on, at 11 P. M. it was blowing a perfect hurricane and continued so up to 1-10 A. M. of the 2nd, wind veering round from North-East. At 1-10 A. M. (2nd November) a sudden lull took place which continued for about 25 minutes when it again commenced to blow furiously from the South-West, and continued so till 4 A. M. The wind gradually veering round to the Westward and North-West, at 4 A. M. the wind began to lessen in violence. The time of the lull spoken of here, where it was evidently noted carefully is, as was to be expected, almost simultaneous with the time of lowest barometer at Calcutta.

12. At Dum-Dum Major Wintle says the weather during all Friday the 1st was threatening. At 9 P. M. the gale commenced. It worked up to hurricane at 12, between which and 2 A. M. it was at its height. After that it gradually abated till about 4 A. M. its violence ceased and it worked itself gradually off to a fresh breeze. The following account of the storm at this station is extracted from the Press.

13. From Barrackpore Captain Walcott says the storm continued from between 9 and 10 P. M., to nearly 5 A. M., being most severe from half an hour after mid-night till about 3 A. M., Mr. Davis, the Police Inspector, gives a slightly fuller account. He says the storm began about 8 P. M., with strong wind and slight rain. It kept increasing and at 10 P. M., it blew a perfect hurricane, and continued so till about 4 A. M., when it slightly abated, but continued with heavy rain till about 8 A. M. It blew from the North all night, but shifted round to the North-West about 5 A. M.

14. From Baraset Deputy Collector Shevapersaud Sundyal (Mr. Clark was absent attending his examination) gives the following. His account of the direction of the wind, if correct, would seem to indicate that the body of the storm had there first a North-Easterly and then a North-Westerly direction. The storm, he says, commenced about 6 P. M., with a strong East wind, about 9 P. M. it turned to North-East when its violence greatly increased. At about 1 A. M, it blew with less force from the South-West. Towards day-break it changed to South and South-East, when its rage began to abate.

15. From Busseerhaut Baboo Shama Churn Chatterjee gives a very full and a very interesting account which I re-produce in original. It will be seen that he notices the luminous appearances alluded to at Barripore, and which were noticed also at Jessore. A full account of these, as observed by Captain Graham, in the Cyclone of 1864 on the Jhenai river in Mymensingh, is given at page 68 of the report published at the instance of Government of the storm of 1864. It will also be noticed that the waters of the Echamutty thus high up rose as much as five feet above its ordinary level.

"I have the honor to bring to your notice that on the night of the 1st of November a Cyclone almost equal in violence to the great and memorable Cyclone of the 5th of October 1864 took place at Busseerhaut, of which the particulars are as follows :—

"On the 30th ultimo the sky was perfectly cloudless and the weather evidently fair till evening, when the sky became cloudy and the rain set in at 8 o'clock P. M. in slight showers and continued to fall throughout the night. On the 31st during the day and night it rained pretty heavily, but as yet there was no symptom of any storm. The wind blew as usual, now and then becoming only a little too strong. On the 1st of November during the day time there was incessant fall of rain, some times in very heavy shower and some times slightly, but there was no perceptible change in the atmosphere indicating the approach of a Cyclone. Just at evening the wind commenced to blow hard. It was not then coming from any fixed direction but was whirling round.

"Gradually its fury became more and more violent. At 8 o'clock P. M. it was in a state which might properly be called a gale. From 8 o'clock it assumed a wild aspect, and it was due North-East and was stronger. From 12 to 12½ its direction was direct East and its strength had at this time reached its chinax. Soon after there was a lull which continued till half past three, when the wind changed its direction to the West, and resumed its work and went on with it with less violence till 8 A. M. the next morning. From 8 A. M. its force began to abate, and at 9 o'clock everything was over.

"During this interval the water of the river was gradually on the increase, having reached its highest limits (about five feet above its usual level) at 4 o'clock in the morning. Although there was no inundation in the Sub-Divisional Head-Quarters, there can be no doubt that in lowland there must have been an actual overflowing of the waters of the river, and information of which when received will in due time be furnished."

P. S.—It is rather singular to hear from people who themselves have witnessed the scene that about 1 o'clock A. M. when the wind was blowing from the East, flashes of luminous light were visible towards the North-East and South-East, and it is further given out (a report of which I have no reason to disbelieve) that masses of burning materials fell in front of houses of the individuals like the fall of Aerolites.

16. Mr. Carstairs gives the following account of the storm at Satkhirah. It would seem therefrom that Satkhirah was on the Eastern margin of the vortex. Mr. Carstairs was not at Satkhirah at the time of the Cyclone, and the obvious error as to the time at which the lull occurred is doubtless due to the fact that he had to collect the information from people who did not attach much importance to the time, and gave it roughly from their recollection. The storm began about 10 P. M. when the wind was blowing a gale from the East. The wind gradually veered to the South and so round to the West. The hurricane was at its worst from midnight till 4 A. M.; there was a marked lull just before midnight, and after that the hurricane rose again to its highests fury. The wind gradually subsided from 4 A. M. and at 9 A. M the storm had quite ceased.

17. The inferences deduced from these accounts which form, I fear, a very imperfect contribution to the meteorology of the storm are, that the calm vortex which was experienced at Barripore and at Canning, and also as it is mentioned at Atrabanka, a few miles East of Canning, was about 20. miles wide, that it travelled Northwards and Eastwards and where again clearly defined points are met with in its progress, Goverdenga and Satkhirah it was still about the same width of 20 miles. Dr. Shircore ascertained on his visit to the Dispensary at Goverdanga that the lull was experienced there.

18. The storm-wave extended to a very great distance East, as compared with its extent. West of the vortex, while there was apparently no noticeable rise in the Hooghly, the water at Khoolnah, in Jessore, is reported by Mr. Rees to have risen as much as 5 feet. This is accounted for by the direction of the wind in its gyration on that side forcing up the water, while on the other side it would drive it back.

19. The most serious result of the storm was the loss of life. Everywhere throughout the District deaths were caused by the fall of houses, but the principal portion of the loss was due to the inundation. The total number of lives ascertained to have been lost was 3,813, of which 285 were in the suburbs, and the remainder in the District. The distribution is given in the annexed Statement.

20. Everywhere throughout the District the houses of the people were thrown down, cattle like human beings were killed by the fall, and were also drowned by the inundation where it occurred. The total ascertained loss of horses and cattle, and its distribution is given in the Statement annexed.

21. Second to the loss of life, the loss of crops has however been the most important result of the storm, so far as this District is concerned. A separate report has been submitted on this subject, and the details need not be repeated here. Generally throughout the southern portion, the loss has amounted to about half the crops, and throughout the northern portion it has been about one-fourth. In some parts of the small Soonderbun area inundated by the salt-water, the loss was as much as 12 annas to 14 annas, but the area is fortunately small. The effect on the North and South divisions is not however proportionate to the actual loss. The Northern half had a good crop of early rice already harvested, and in most places there are cold-weather crops. It has moreover only to sustain itself till the next early rice harvest in July. The South, on the other hand, has neither early rice nor cold-weather crops. It had also suffered very severe distress towards the end of 1866, owing to inundation by the Cyclone of 1864, and draught of 1865. There was fortunately a good harvest in 1866, but it was mostly sold to defray the arrears of rent accruing from past years. Owing to the harvest having again largely failed over the same area, there is reason to fear that a certain amount of distress will be again felt during the ensuing season among the labouring and the poorer portion of the agricultural community. The area where the crop has however thus failed is comparatively small, and easy of access. The prices of food will therefore be little, if at all, higher than throughout the rest of Bengal, and they fortunately promise to be cheap. The distress, if it occurs, will be from want of money, not of food. There will be no danger of any one with money being unable to procure food at reasonable prices. Consequently all that will be required, if anything be required, will be to supplement the local labour market by Public Works, if that market falls short of the necessities of the community. In the North Soonderbun area, owing to the large demand for firewood for the Calcutta market, the people there will not, it is anticipated, experience any difficulty in obtaining ample labor. The result of my enquiries during my cold-weather tour show, that there is everywhere much less cause for anxiety than I was at first disposed to fear.

22. As however this will form the subject of a special report, and works have been already proposed, sufficient to commence with, if requisite, I need not dwell upon the subject further at present, but proceed to notice the action taken to mitigate the suffering which more immediately resulted from the storm, especially from the loss of shelter caused by the fall of almost all the houses in the District.

23. One of the consequences of such storms is that they interrupt the ordinary channels of communication and delay information, which in the ordinary course of things should be earlier received. The telegraph wires connecting Canning with Calcutta were thrown down, and the storm-wave washing over the Railway so injured it that for a day or two the extent of damage done at Canning, and the inundation to the East of it, were not known. As soon as information reached, food and fresh water were despatched both by the Officers of the Municipality and by the Port Canning Company. On the 4th I visited the town with yourself, and saw that all that was required was being done. On the 5th Mr. Rees, the Officiating Extra Joint-Magistrate, was despatched with the Steamer Pioneer with a supply of food, clothing, and water, and proceeded giving relief where required along the Atrabanka, the Kaligunga, the Rymemgul, and the Feringhee Khall, as far as Khoolnah, in Jessore, and then returned to Calcutta. He did not find the distress so severe as was expected.

24. In the suburbs of Calcutta the violence of the storm had scarcely ceased when vigorous efforts to clear the streets, which were everywhere blocked up by trees and houses which the violence of the wind had thrown down, were in rapid progress. Before evening the principal thoroughfares were all clear. I also during the day issued a notification withdrawing the prohibition to re-build thatched house. On the 7th the Municipal Commissioners met. All outstanding taxes on dwelling huts amounting to about 40,000 were remitted, the suburbs were divided into parts, and each of the Commissioners noted in the margin undertook the relief operation in them. The relief operations were conducted with the following result. It was determined by the Commissioners that the aid should be limited in ordinary cases to 5, and in special cases to 8 :—

The operations were conducted with Rs. 18,750-6-2 placed at the disposal of the Commissioners from the Calcutta Famine Fund, and with Rs. 3,000 received from the General Comimttee formed for the relief of sufferers from the Cyclone, of the amount Rs. 196 were transferred to the District Committee.

It was resolved not to raise any separate or special fund, but that all persons wishing to assist should contribute to the General Committee.

26. Similarly after I had visited Diamond Harbour with you and Barripore, and Mr. Joint-Magistrate Carstairs had gone through Baraset, Busseerhaut and Satkhirah, an information had been collected sufficient to shew that special action was required, a meeting of the principal residents of the District was convened at my Office, and the South portion of the District in which, for the reasons already stated, it was known that the distress would be severest, divided into jurisdictions according to the Police divisions, and the gentlemen marginally noted* undertook the task of relief. A committee consisting of the gentlemen also marginally † named was appointed to supervise relief. Five additional Magisterial Officers were posted by Government to the District to aid in the operations. In the South, over an area of 1000 square miles, every village was visited and relief given where required. In the North this was not considered necessary, but relief was given on the application of the Sub-Divisional Officers or other trustworthy agency to such extent as was considered requisite with reference to the circumstances of each particular locality. In Baraset two committees were formed and acted under the Sub-Divisional Officer. Similarly in the Barrackpore Sub-Division Committees were constituted and acted in concert with the Cantonment Magistrate. In the other Sub-Divisions the Sub-Divisional Officers personally and with the aid in some cases of influential residents, among whom Baboo Saroda Prosonno Mookerjee of Goverdenga and Baboo Hurro Lall Seal of Takee may be especially named, gave such assistance as was required. 27. It was at one time feared that owing to the pollution of the tanks, from which the water required for domestic purposes is taken, by the vegetable matter thrown into them much sickness would ensue. I am happy to say that thus far this fear has not been very largely realised. There have been, it is true, outbreaks of sickness here and there, especially of Cholera at Rajpore, Joynuggur and about Port Canning, but they have not been of very unusual severity. Medical aid has been freely rendered wherever they occurred. The relieving Officers in some instances had knowledge of medicines and were supplied with them at the cost of Government. The Native Doctors who had been posted previously by Government at my request to give aid at Boral, at Bossa, at Mograhaut, and at Lonoesa, were utilized, supplied with medicines at the cost of Government, and sent as occasion required to give relief; more recently the travelling dispensary appointed to the Division has been placed at my disposal, and has been sent to render aid about Barripore.

28. All operations have now been completed. The whole of the funds placed at the disposal of the District Committee have been spent, and the Extra Magistrates have been replaced at the disposal of Government. From the information I received in the course of my cold-weather tour, I have no doubt that the relief rendered was everywhere sufficient and effectual.

29. The selection of objects of charity was necessarily a matter of great difficulty, but I have every reason to believe that on the whole the funds were judiciously distributed by the relieving Officers.

30. Their task was not an easy one, and their duty was mostly performed at a great sacrifice of personal comfort. I commend the gentlemen who devoted their time and labour to this object to the favorable notice of the Government, as well as the gentlemen who constituted the District Committee and Honorary Secretary.

Protection of Saugor Island from inundation.

From J. S. Cameron, Esq., for Magistrate of the 24-Pergunnahs, to the Commissioner of the Nuddea Division,—(No. 380, dated the 21st November 1866.)

1. I have the honor to transmit herewith, for perusal and return, the report of the Deputy Magistrate of Diamond Harbour of his visit to Saugor Island.

2. It will be seen that distress prevails in four of the said Abads visited, and that in the remaining one the proprietor, Prossono Doss Dutt, has cared for the interests of his tenants.

3. In the Abads in which distress prevails the owners would appear to have done almost nothing for them, and that they have not even repaired the embankment damaged by the cyclone of 1861.

4. In these circumstances it appears to me to be a matter for serious consideration in what shape public charity should be administered. If it be not worth the while of the proprietors to put the embankments in order and induce their tenantry to remain on their estates, it would, it seems to me, be a questionable use of funds of public charity to expend them in inducing people to remain where their lives are at all times exposed to serious danger; and it seems to me doubtful whether aid towards migrating elsewhere would not be the most effectual mode of administering relief.

5. Much money was spent on Saugor Island after the cyclone, and relief might be given to it temporarily now, but it cannot be permitted to become a permanent charge on the benevolence either of the public or the State.

6. I would solicit your early advice and instructions in the matter.

From E. T. Sevestre, Esq., Deputy Magistrate of Diamond Harbour, to the Magistrate of 24-Pergunnahs,—(No. 71, dated the 10th November 1866.)

With reference to your letter No. 66 of the 3rd instant, I have the honor to say I have been down to Saugor Island and visited Abads in which distress was said to exist. The boat you despatched reached Diamond Harbour on Monday evening, and I left on Tuesday morning, the 6th, and returned to Diamond Harbour on the night of the 9th instant, and now beg to submit a report.

I visited on Saugor Island the following places at which it was said the people were suffering:—

Khasee Mara Monderatollah, called Mud Point, belonging to Mr. Hunter.
Company's Char belonging to Mr. Fraser.
Moonee Grunge, belonging to Mr. Campbell.
Seokaro Chuck, belonging to Baboo Peoolall Mullick.
Dhobtat, belonging to Prossono Doss Dutt.

Dhobetat Abad is the last Abad on Saugor Island. There was no relief required by the ryots. The proprietor has generously provided them with every thing, and repaired the embankment which prevented the inundation of the 24th October from injuring the crops; 800 beegahs of land have been brought under cultivation, and there is now a full crop on the ground. The ryots said they wanted no relief, no relief was given.

The ryots of the five other Abads have been, and are, in great distress. The nearest place from which food can be had is Tangra Beeeluee, about 16 miles distant, and Channel Creek must be crossed to get to the mainland. I took down with me 32 bags of rice; I have distributed it, giving each individual two seers, and have sent down the remaining 24 bags by the Daroga at Fort Canning Company. He came up with me to take charge of the rice, and will see it distributed to the sufferers. The ryots of the Abads say they have since the cyclone been suffering; that to sustain life they have sold every article they had, and are now reduced to utter destitution. The rice crop which in other parts of my Sub-Division promises a very good harvest is in these Abads comparatively nothing. The inundation of the 24th October has not done much injury. It is the field rat that had cut up the plants. The extent of injury done to the small quantity of land brought under cultivation would not be credited without having seen it. The relief that may be expected from the crops now on the fields will be for a short time. From some plots half, in others one-eighth the quantity of former years will be gathered. Relief must from time to time be given to alleviate the distress of these men. The first thing that requires to be done is to repair the embankments which were injured by the gale of 1861. Neither life nor property is secure at present. Any unusual rise in the river will inundate every place where the embankments are broken. It would appear that with one exception the proprietors of the Abads have done very little for the relief of the sufferers. They cannot be aware of the misery and distress that the ryots in the Abads are suffering. To embody every particular in this letter would lengthen it out. I beg to submit a copy of the diary which I kept, as every thing has been noted down in it.

Tuesday, November 6, 1866.

1. Left Diamond Harbour at 11 A. M., reached Tangra Beeeluee at [illegible] P. M. Found old rice 1 palee 2 seers, selling at 5 palees for a rupee; new rice [illegible] palees. The quantity of rice offered for sale was small. Market plentifully supplied with fish, native vegetables in small quantities brought down from Tangrah. Visited the relief depôt; about 300 or 350 women and children waiting to be relieved. Parties in charge said they had received a supply of rice and money; that none of the ryots from Mud Point had come in for relief. The distance was about 16 miles, and a very large stream was to be crossed to get to the mainland. The crops seemed to be in very good condition, and a good harvest was expected; varieties of paddy have been sown. Some have come to maturity and have been gathered, others will not be fit to be gathered before the end of November or the beginning of December. Relief operations should be continued for another three weeks. Left Tangra Beehee at 4 P. M. for Mud Point. Reached Monderetollah, Mr. Hunter's Abad south of Mud Point, one of the places reported to be in distress, at 7 P. M.

WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 7, 1866.

2. Went to the village Monderetollah. Found about twenty-five or thirty houses containing 125 souls, including men, women, and children. Inspected several of the fields a mile or two round the village. Crops not good; they have suffered by the inundation of the 24th ultimo, the salt water having destroyed the rice in the grain. About four or 500 beegahs were sown. The produce will be in some plots half, in others quarter the usual produce. In addition to the destruction by salt water the depredation of rats has been very extensive. Nearly every plot of ground has been infested by rats, and the paddy stock cut up. The roots have sent up fresh shoots, but it is not probable that they will bear paddy. The destruction of the paddy plains may be accounted for by the rats having been driven from the houses after gale of 1864, and taken to the field where they have lived upon roots and bulbs, and have increased in number and attacked the plants as the paddy began to appear. The destruction has been very great. The ryots seemed depressed and said they were few in number and could not prevent the rats, which infested the uncultivated plots, from destroying their crops. Nothing seems to have been done by the proprietor of the Abad to repair the embankment which was washed away in the gale of 1864. The inundation of the 24th October would not have destroyed the crops now on the fields had the bund been in a state of repair. From the water marks I would conclude the water rose 4 feet and washed over the embankment into the fields. Had the embankment given way the salt water would have drained off and the crops would not have suffered. The ryots say the fields were under salt water two or three days. Unless the bunds are repaired there is every probability of the place being under water when the river rises during the spring-tides to any unusual height. The distress of those now on the Abad has been and is great. The able-bodied ~~[illegible]~~ have taken to employment as boatmen on the river or cutting wood in the jungles. The prospect of relief from the crops that will be gathered in by the end of the month is slender, and the same distress that is now experienced must inevitably follow from the existing state of things. The nearest land which food can be purchased is Tangra Beehee, sixteen miles distant, and Channel Creek is to be crossed to get to it. The ryots say they have sold all they had and now are reduced to great distress. I gave ten bags of rice to those two Abads, Monderetollah and Khasee Mara. I saw the rice distributed, each had two seers for his share. A family of five persons had ten seers. I have arranged to send down the remaining bags of rice now at Diamond Harbour for the relief of the sufferers at the several Abads at Sanger Island. In a letter dated 30th October last, shown to me by the Baboo in charge of the Khasee Mara, Mr. McIntosh, the Agent of the proprietor, says—

"I have heard from Mr. Hunter, and he desires that nothing more be expended on Mud Point. I can therefore give nothing to the ryots except so far to pay them for labor they may perform in repairing the bunds."

The future prospects of the Abad no doubt rest upon the re-construction and repairs of the embankment, but in the meantime how are the old men, women, and children, whose husbands and fathers were washed away by the gale of 1864, to live? Some efforts must be made to alleviate their distress, and relief of a permanent nature provided.

3. Left Monderetollah Abad at 11 A. M., reached Dhobelat Abad belonging to Baboo Hosonno Dass Dutt, the last Abad on Sanger Island, at 1 P. M., went on shore. About 800 beegahs of land have been brought under cultivation, and there is now a very fine crop on the ground which will be reaped at the close of the month. No damage done to the crops by the inundation of the 24th October. There are, it is said, seventy houses containing 300 souls, all of whom have been generously supported since the great gale of 1864 by the owner of the Abad. They needed no relief. Left Dhobelat at 5½ P. M., reached Abad Company's Chur at midnight.

4. Went on shore at 6 A. M. The Abad Company's Chur is said to belong to Mr. Fraser, and to contain 3,000 beegahs. Only 800 beegahs have been brought under cultivation. The crops are very promising. In some places quarter, in others one-third of the quantity of previous years will be produced.

Crops.

The crops now on the ground have been extensively destroyed by rats that have cut up the plants as the paddy began to appear. The rats would appear to have been driven into the fields since the great gale of 1864. They have lived upon roots and bulbs, and increased to such an extent that the few ryots now in the Abad can hardly exterminate them. The inundation of the 24th October has done no injury to the crops, but the neglect of re-construction and repairs of the embankment exposes the people in the Abad to an inundation from any unusual rise in the river. The distress has been great, and continues to be great without any prospect of permanent relief. The ryots say they have sold all they had, and have now been reduced to the last extremity. They are unwilling to leave the place as they have been for the last thirty years in the place. Distributed 6½ bags of rice, giving each man 2 seers. Relief must be continued, as the crops on the field, when reaped, will not keep the people for any length of time. The proprietor should do something for his ryots. I think an outlay of Rupees 2,000 would repair the embankments and enable him to bring new ryots and supply the old ryots until the next season. Left Company's Chuck at 10, and proceeded to Abad Maree Gunga on the opposite side of the stream. This Abad belongs to Mr. Campbell, and is one of the largest Abads. The crops seemed to have suffered in a similar manner as the two other Abads by the ravages of the rats. Had it not been for this destruction there would have been a fair average crop. However, from what I saw I would say there will be half the quantity of produce. The distress seems to be great. The ryots stated they had sold all their brass utensils, and were now reduced to the last extremity. There were 130 houses containing 538 souls. Distributed 12½ bags of rice. The remaining bags of rice now at Diamond Harbour to be distributed to the sufferers at this and the other Abads. The inundation of the 24th October owing to the broken state of the embankments inundated some parts of the Abad, but it would seem to have done no injury to the crops. The repair of the bunds is actually necessary, as there is at present no security to life or property. The place is exposed to inundation with every rise of the river. Seekurpore Saugor Island belonging to Baboo Preolall Mullick. Went on shore and inspected the rice fields. This Abad is the most neglected Abad of all the Abads on Saugor Island. It has not been quite cleared of jungle. The embankments are apologies of embankments and out of repair, and cannot keep out the salt water from the fields during ordinary rise of the river. The ryots complain that owing to the jungle their own lives and the lives of the cattle are exposed to be destroyed by tigers. The ryots on the Abad seem to have suffered very much; 3,00,400 beegahs have been cultivated, but owing to the destruction caused by rats and the inundation of the 24th October, the crops now on the field will not yield more than quarter the usual produce. Distributed 3 bags of rice that were left, giving each soul 2 seers. There are 41 houses containing 199 souls, some of the bags of rice now at Diamond Harbour will be sent for the relief of those sufferers immediately. Baboo Preo Nath Banerjee, Darogah of Port Canning Company and Nait of Abads at Mud Point, has undertaken to see the rice distributed among the sufferers. He goes up with me to Diamond Harbour to take charge of the rice.

5. The Baboo should sell his interest in the Abad if he cannot manage it. He seems to have done nothing to assist his ryots. There is nothing but wretchedness and misery visible.

6. Reached Mud Point at 11 P. M. of the 8th instant. Went on shore at 6 A. M., visited the Telegraph Office. Heard from the party in charge that the tide came over the bund which has not been repaired since the gale of 1864. There was 5 feet water for about half an hour; did no material injury. Inspected the fields belonging to Abad Khasee Mara; found the crops had not suffered from inundation but from the destruction of the stocks of paddy plant by rats which have over-run the fields; several small plots have been cultivated. The produce will be about half the usual quantity that these plots would have produced in former years.

7. The distress of the ryots is great. Relief was given to them with the ryots of Monderetollah on the 6th instant. Khasee Mara and Monderetollah Abads are both at Mud Point and belong to Mr. Hunter. Left with the tide at 8 A. M., experienced very bad weather; boat rolling and pitching; articles in the boat thrown from one side to the other; boat went clear over a buoy partially sunk, supposed to have done no injury to the boat. Crew—a most miserable set. The only man up to the work was a Manjee. Put in at Culpee at 1 P. M. Left with the tide at 6 for Diamond Harbour, reached at 11 A. M.

Memorandum from R. B. Chapman, Esq., Officiating Commissioner of the Nuddea Division,—(No. 639, dated the 29th November 1866.)

SUBMITTED in original, together with the enclosures,* for the perusal and orders of the Board of Revenue.

* Letter No. 850, dated 21st December 1866, from the Magistrate of 24-Pergunnahs.

IT appears to me that we must certainly, under the circumstances stated, decline to assist in detaining the population on the Island by furnishing relief on the spot. At the same time we cannot of course discontinue expected relief without full notice. I propose to instruct the Collector to suggest to the Relief Committee to give full notice that no charitable relief will be distributed on the Island after the crops are gathered; the people should at the same time be advised where they may find relief on the mainland, and any reasonable demand for assistance in emigration should receive due attention.

The action of the Committee in this particular will require great caution to avoid giving cause of complaints to the proprietors, or those who have expended capital, perhaps, in locating laborers. But I quite agree with the Collector that if the lessees and the ryots find it to their interest to remain in such a locality, they must not expect to do so at the charge either of the public benevolence or of the Government.

Very early orders are requested.

From T. B. Lane, Esq., Secretary to the Board of Revenue, Lower Provinces, to the Commissioner of the Nuddea Division,—(No. 5461B., dated the 12th December 1866.)

IN reply to your letter No. 639, dated the 29th November last, and its enclosures, I am directed to state that the Board approve of your suggestion with regard to the relief of the people on the Saugor Island.

2. The original enclosures of your letter under reply are returned herewith.

From S. C. Bayley, Esq., Junior Secretary to the Government of Bengal, to the Officiating Secretary to the Board of Revenue, Lower Provinces,—(No. 3407, dated the 22nd December 1866.)

WITH reference to your endorsement No. 5462B., dated the 12th instant, I am directed to state that the Lieutenant-Governor approves of the orders passed by the Board on the subject of the measures to be taken for affording relief to the distressed on Saugor Island. His Honor desires that the Board will be good enough to request the Commissioner of the Nuddea Division to communicate at once with the proprietors of estates in the Island, and warn them that, under existing circumstances, Government relief will have to be withdrawn, and to ascertain what their intentions are regarding the ryots.

From T. B. Lane, Esq., Secretary to the Board of Revenue, Lower Provinces, to the Officiating Secretary to the Government of Bengal,—(No. 1951B., dated the 26th April 1867.)

I AM directed to acknowledge the receipt of Government order No. 3407, dated the 22nd December last, desiring the Commissioner of the Presidency Division to ascertain the intentions of the proprietors of estates on Saugor Island with regard to their ryots, and to warn the proprietors that, under existing circumstances, Government relief will be withdrawn.

2. It will be seen from the papers* herewith submitted that the proprietors have no intention of abandoning their estates. The Commissioner further insists that it is incumbent on them to construct sufficient protective works against the inundations that have been heretofore so destructive to life. Without these works, he observes, the Government should decline to demise the right of cultivating the Island; and, on condition of the proprietors undertaking such works, he would concede to them the Island, revenue free, for ever. The Commissioner would further warn the ryots that, if they remain on the Island, they must understand that the Government will be in no way responsible for feeding them in case of calamity. Two of the proprietors† have remonstrated against the last mentioned suggestion, as not warranted by the Government order under acknowledgment.

3. The Senior Member is of opinion that it would not be wise in Government to warn men of enterprize from an undertaking which is being encouraged to the utmost on the Sooonderbuns mainland. The reclamation of Saugor Island would greatly lessen the risk of life in the case of vessels wrecked while entering and quitting the Port of Calcutta. He does not, therefore, concur in the Commissioner's recommendation, which would strongly deter people from settling on it.

4. The Junior Member remarks that it would not be just to hold out inducements to persons to cultivate an Island exposed, not to the mere risk of loss of life from inundation but to its certainty, though possibly at very long intervals, unless the necessary protection for life be afforded in the form of most extensive embankments, the cost of which no cultivation would probably repay. It is further, he thinks, to be considered what the effects of such embankments, if ever constructed, would be on the neighbouring and more valuable estates, nay even on Calcutta itself, where undoubtedly the effects of the inundation caused by the storm-wave of the cyclone of 1864 would have been found more injurious had that storm-wave been unable to expend much of its force on Saugor Island. Besides this there still remain vast tracts open to private enterprize, less exposed than Saugor Island. For these reasons Mr. Schalch agrees with the Commissioner, and he would give publicity to the warning as suggested by Mr. Chapman.

From R. B. Chapman, Esq., Officiating Commissioner of the Presidency Division, to the Secretary to the Board of Revenue, Lower Provinces,—(No. 71Ct., dated the 26th February 1867.)

Referring to Board's order No. 5728, dated 29th December 1866, the accompanying correspondence appears to me sufficiently important to make it right that I should lay it before the Board, who will perhaps even submit it to Government.

2. In my No 2Ct., dated the 28th January, I referred not to such embankments as those of which Baboo Prosad Dass Dutt speaks, but to the larger protective works which are indispensable, if the inhabitants of the Island are to be preserved from being swept away once in about ten years, as they have hitherto been.

3. I am of opinion myself that the Government should absolutely decline to demise the right of cultivating Saugor Island (for which, be it remembered, it receives no revenue, and probably never will receive any revenue,) unless, as a condition precedent, the lessees undertake to construct embankments of sufficient height and strength, effectually and permanently, to protect the Island from the inundations that have been heretofore, periodically, so destructive to life; upon that condition I would concede the Island revenue-free for ever.

4. I believe that the operations for the reclamation of the Island hitherto have resulted only in immense loss of life and property; and though, so far as property is concerned, the Government is not perhaps called upon to interfere, I do not think that it can escape responsibility for the sacrifice of life that is still sure to be entailed, unless the protective works, of which I speak, be undertaken.

5. I do not mean to advocate any interference with the existing rights of lessees, but I believe these rights to be generally on the point of lapsing, if they have not lapsed.

6. Baboo Prosad Dass Dutt has, I believe, exerted himself most energetically and well, and I trust he may yet reap pecuniary profit. Nevertheless, I cannot recommend that the authorities should abstain as he wishes from warning the ryots even of his estate, that if they remain they must understand that the Government will be in no way responsible for feeding them in case of calamity.

From A. R. MacIntosh, Esq., Calcutta, to R. B. Chapman, Esq., Officiating Commissioner of the Presidency Division,—(dated the 10th January 1867.)

I beg to acknowledge the receipt of your No. 6 of 7th January 1867, with enclosures, all of which will be forwarded to Mr. Fraser for his reply. In the meantime, as his Agent, I beg to inform you that the ryots on the estates of Ferintosh and Trowerland will be well paid for all the work they do in repairing the bunds, and when that or other resources of supply fail, they will receive advances or khorakee against the next crop, and further it is my intention by well bunding the estates to induce more ryots to settle upon them.

2. With reference to the Mud Point Estate, I have telegraphed to England and hope to receive instructions in a very few days how to act; in the meantime if any of the ryots desire to leave, they will be well taken care of in the estates of Trowerland and Ferintosh.

3. I would be glad, however, to learn the extent of the relief you have given to the inhabitants of these three estates, viz., Mud Point, Trowerland, and Ferintosh, as so far as I have learnt it has been of the most meagre description.

4. I have distributed in cash through the agency of my Native Manager, from 1st April 1866 to 30th September 1866, the sum of Rupees 1,311 in Trowerland and Ferintosh, and Rupees 289 in Mud Point. A large sum for the help of the few ryots there, especially as only the new ryots required assistance.

5. The Native Manager has had entire control of this expenditure. I have, however, now taking steps to keep a check upon the management.

6. With this explanation I trust you will take no steps to induce the ryots to leave the estates, more especially as they will, if they find it to their advantage, do so on their account, the river navigation enables them at the most trifling expenditure to emigrate at any moment to places where labor is in demand for public works.

[illegible] Rs. 2,[illegible] [illegible] the ryots will be thankfully [illegible] [illegible] received. [illegible] and that since then they have [illegible] out of pocket [illegible] lands, wages, and Kharakee.

From Baboo Prosap Dass Dutt, No. 11-2, Sindarpurrah Street, Calcutta, to R. H. Cuthwaite, Esq., Officiating Commissioner of the Presidency Division,—(dated the 15th January 1867.)

I have the honor to acknowledge the receipt of your letter No. 5, dated the 7th instant, with annexure, regarding the relief of distress among the inhabitants of Saugor Island, and enquiring as to what my intentions are respecting my ryots.

2. In the correspondence annexed, I observe that you have suggested to the Board of Revenue that no charitable relief should be distributed on the Island after the crops are gathered, and that the people should be at the same time advised where they may find [illegible] on the mainland, and that you have endorsed the opinion of the Collector that if the [illegible] and their ryots find it to their interest to remain on the Island, they must not expect to [illegible] so other at the charge of public benevolence or of the Government. The Board of Revenue as well as the Government of Bengal have, it appears, concurred in this opinion; and the latter has, moreover, directed that the proprietors of estates on the Island should be warned not to expect, under the existing circumstances, Government relief.

3. So far as I am concerned, the above remarks, I humbly conceive, do not apply to my estate. During the last two years Saugor Island was successfully visited by two great calamities as the cyclone and the famine, reducing the people to utter destitution. As proprietor of Dhobelat, I felt it my duty as well as interest to give my ryots every [illegible] in my power, and though they have received some aid from the Cyclone Relief Fund, they chiefly themselves entirely upon my resources for carrying them through the whole year, until the gathering of the next harvest. The failure of rain in the ensuing season blighted the prospects of the crop, and I was obliged to feed my ryots and supply their other wants for another whole year. In a letter to your predecessor, dated the 22nd September last, a copy of which is annexed hereto for ready reference, I have reported the steps which I have taken for the relief of my ryots.

4. I beg to submit the following extracts from official reports, testifying to my exertions. When Saugor Island was devastated by the cyclone of October 1864, Mr. Smith, Officiating Superintending Engineer, South-East Circle, in charge of relief expedition, thus reported about myself in his letter to the Secretary to the Cyclone Relief Committee dated 18th idem:—

"I must not forget to mention also that another Sonderbun Grantee, Baboo Prosap "Dass Dutt, purchased and despatched from Calcutta a jolly boat laden with rice [illegible] "starving people on his estate, and I beg to submit, for the Committee's information, the "purwannah given to the Sircar in charge of the boat."

With regard to the famine, the Deputy Magistrate, Mr. Sevestre, after local enquiry thus reported on my Abad:—

"Dhobelat Abad is the last Abad in Saugor Island. There was no relief required by the "ryots. The proprietor has generously provided them with every thing, and repaired the em-"bankment, which prevented the inundation of the 24th October from injuring the crops. "800 beegahs of land have been brought under cultivation, and there is now a full crop on the "ground. The ryots wanted no relief; no relief was given."

In this diary he made the following Note:—

"November 7th, 1866.—Left Monderetollah Abad at 11 A. M., reached Dhobelat Abad "belonging to Baboo Prosad Dass Dutt, the last Abad on Saugor Island, at 4 P. M., went on "shore. About 800 beegahs of land have been brought under cultivation, and there is now "a very fine crop on the ground which will be reaped at the close of "the month. No damage done to the crops by the inundation of the "24th October. There are, it is said, seventy houses containing [illegible] "hundred souls, all of whom have been generally supported since the "great gale of 1864, by the owner of the Abad. [illegible] "relief. Left Dhobelat at 5½ P. M., reached Abad Company's [illegible] "midnight."

"Crops."
"Inundation."
"Ryots' Relief."

The Magistrate of 24-Pergunnahs in reviewing the report of the Deputy Magistrate thus remarks:—

"It will be seen that distress prevails in four of the said Abads visited, and that in the "remaining one, the owner, Prosad Dass Dutt, has cared for the interest of his tenants."

Mr. Dampier, late Commissioner of the Nuddea Division, in forwarding my letter of the 22nd September last, referred to above, to the Board of Revenue, observes:—

"I also annex a letter, dated the 22nd September, from Baboo Prosad Dass Dutt, the "grantee of Dhobelat, one of the estates on Saugor Island, which is not in charge of Mr. "Fraser, the Baboo appears to have behaved very liberally and asks no help."

It will be thus seen that I have not been wanting in my duty towards my ryots. I have been heavily out of pocket in keeping their body and soul together, as well as in enabling them to carry on cultivation. Although they have reaped enough this year for their food, still I fear I will have to advance money for their other expenses, not to say that in cases of migrants who came last year, I must incur the whole charge of maintaining them. Realization of rent is of course out of the question, but I have embarked so much in the enterprise that no less for the sake of my ownself than for that of those who on my invitation made their home on Saugor Island, I must apply my best energy and means to the revocation of my estate.

I seek no pecuniary assistance from the Government or the public in protecting my estate. I humbly submit I am entitled to such consideration and moral support which the Government can legitimately give me for the furtherance of my undertaking. Whatever may be the intention of the Government with regard to the other grants on the Island, I sincerely and earnestly hope that in warning the ryots thereon they will continue there at their own peril, it will be distinctly explained to them that the prohibition does not apply to my estate. Any misunderstanding on this point may seriously injure my interest and blast all the hopes in pursuit of which I have laid out so much capital.

6. I take this opportunity to mention that I am desirous to import emigrants from mainland and other places for the extension of cultivation, and that several persons have already volunteered, but before I take this step I would solicit the favor of your views on the subject, as any interference of Government would put my interests in jeopardy. I need hardly add that the importation of additional laborers is necessary to increase the clearance operations and render them remunerative to me.

From R. B. Chapman, Esq., Officiating Commissioner of the Presidency Division, to Baboo Prosad Dass Dutt,—(No. 2Ct., dated the 26th January 1867.)

In reply to your letter dated 18th January, I have the honor to express to you my appreciation of the wise liberality which it appears you have exercised towards your tenantry on Saugor Inland throughout the series of misfortunes that have befallen them.

2. The Officers of the Government have been already instructed to be careful in carrying out the orders to which you refer to do nothing to interfere between the proprietors of the Island and their tenants.

3. At the same time I have so strong a sense of the extreme hazard involved in a residence on Saugor Island, that however desirable the cultivation of the Island is I cannot hold out to you any expectations that I shall ever feel it my duty to advise the Government to extend any active encouragement, moral or other, to those engaged in its reclamation, unless, indeed, they be prepared to undertake protective works on such a scale as will secure the inhabitants against the inundations that have hitherto periodically swept them away.

From Baboo Prosad Dass Dutt, to R. B. Chapman, Esq., Commissioner of the Presidency Division,—(dated the 13th February 1867.)

I have the honor to acknowledge the receipt of your letter No. 2Ct., dated the 28th day of January last, stating, in reply to mine of the 18th ultimo, that, however desirable the cultivation of Saugor Island, you cannot hold out to me any expectation that you would advise the Government to extend any active encouragement, moral or other, to those engaged in its reclamation, unless they be prepared to undertake protective works on such a scale as will secure the inhabitants against further inundations.

You also intimate that the Officers of the Government have already been instructed to be careful in warning the ryots in Saugor Island against their continued residence there, so as not to interfere between proprietors of the Island and their tenants.

Without presuming to pass an opinion on the measure which the Government may be pleased to adopt in respect to Saugor Island, I take the liberty to submit that any warning, however carefully worded, communicated directly to the ryots, is sure to mislead them, and induce in their ignorant minds an impression that the Government is not favorable to the reclamation of the Island; such an impression, it can easily be imagined, once in their minds, will not fail to work to the greatest detriment of the proprietors. In addressing the contemplated warning to the ryots, the Government, however reluctantly will, I need hardly add, necessarily place itself in a false position and involve the proprietors in serious loss.

On the other hand, I humbly think the object of Government will be fully attained if the necessary warning be given to the proprietors, it being their interest to protect their ryots from the calamities you desire to guard against. If they are told authoritatively that they must not look to Government or to the public for assistance in times of distress, they will naturally take such precaution as may be deemed necessary for the preservation of their own interests. As for the ryots they are always at liberty to choose their own habitations, and if they find that they are exposed to suffering by continuing in the grants, they will, as a matter of course, emigrate to other places which may be advantageous to them.

As for erecting protective works, Mr. Deputy Magistrate Sevestre has already reported that the embankments in my estate are in good condition, and that no damage was done to the crops thereon by the inundation of the 24th October last. The embankments have been lately repaired by me. His remark that the "first thing that required to be done (for the Saugor Island) is to repair the embankments which were injured by the gale of 1864; neither life nor property are secured at present does not surely apply to my estate, and I do not therefore see why it should be included in the general condemnation. I may be permitted to add that when I have incurred such a heavy outlay in feeding my ryots for more than two years, and in helping them to extricate themselves from the consequences of such unprecedented calamities as the cyclone of 1864 and the famine of 1865-66, the Government will admit that I am fully alive to the interests of my tenants, and that I shall be the last person to leave them without due protection.

In conclusion I beg to state that I have already undertaken protective works, [illegible] it will be my own interest to add to them as the reclamation of my estate will [illegible] only pray that whatever the Government may be pleased to do it will be good [illegible] bear in mind in shaping its proceedings in that I have embarked a large capital in [illegible] perty, and that any injudicious interference will involve me in serious loss.

From T. B. LANE, ESQ., Secretary to the Board of Revenue, Lower Provinces, to [illegible] missioner of the Presidency Division,—(No. 595M., dated the 2nd April [illegible])

WITH reference to your letter No. 71Ct., dated the 20th ultimo, I am [illegible] request that you will forward to the Board a copy of your letter to Baboo Prosad Dass Dutt No. 8Ct. of the 28th January last.

2. You are requested at the same time to report the result of the enquiry ordered [illegible] Government order No. 3407 of the 22nd December 1866, regarding the intentions of [illegible] proprietors of estates in Saugor Island towards their ryots.

3. The opinions expressed in paragraphs 3 and 4 of your letter have perhaps [illegible] advanced by you without reference to the claim of Mr. Hunter for a renewed settlement [illegible] portion of the Island which is still pending, its consideration having only been deferred [illegible] consequence of the cyclone.

From R. B. CHAPMAN, ESQ., Officiating Commissioner of the Presidency Division, to the Secretary to the Board of Revenue, Lower Provinces,—(No. 21, dated the 5th April 1867.)

IN reply to Board's order No. 595M., dated 2nd instant, I have the honor to submit copies of the replies received by me from the gentlemen of Saugor Island, Baboos Pr[illegible] Lall Mullick and Prosad Dass Dutt and Mr. MacIntosh, together with my reply to Baboo Prosad Dass Dutt, and the Magistrate's account (No. 168, dated 28th February) of the relief actually sent to Saugor Island.

2. I was under the impression that the correspondence with Baboo Prosad Dass Dutt had accompainad my No. 71Ct. as I intended it to do.

3. I had the negociation with Mr. Hunter fully in my mind when I wrote that letter, but I am not aware that there is any such claim upon the Government on Mr. Hunter's part as would make it necessary for them to dispose of the lands now in his occupation, otherwise than as good policy might direct.

From H. L. DAMPIER, ESQ., Officiating Secretary to the Government of Bengal, to the Secretary to the Board of Revenue, Lower Provinces,—(No. 2027, dated Fort William, the 20th May 1867.)

WITH reference to your letter No. 1951B., dated the 26th ultimo, I am directed to observe that the issue of the warning to the ryots on Saugor Island, as recommended by the Officiating Commissioner of the Presidency Division and by Mr. Schaleh, might, the Lieutenant-Governor fears, damage the prospects of the clearing proprietors very materially, and it does not appear that the danger to life is sufficiently imminent to justify its adoption.

2. Before passing orders therefore on the subject, I am desired to request that the Board will be so good as to submit, for the information of Government, a full historical report on the effects of previous inundations on Saugor Island. Also, with reference to the existing grants or leases, to state how far, in their opinion, it would be possible to insist on the clearing proprietors making external embankments as a condition of holding the lots.

3. The Chief Engineer will be requested to consider whether there is any ground for Mr. Schaleh's suggestion that the damage to Calcutta from storm-waves would be materially enhanced if Saugor Island, or portions of it, were so embanked as to be secure against inundation.

No. 2028.

EXTRACT, paragraph 3, of this letter forwarded to the Secretary to the Government of Bengal, in the Public Works Department, for information and guidance.

From LIEUTENANT-COLONEL J. E. T. NICOLLS, R. E., Secretary to the Government of Bengal, in the Public Works Department, to the Officiating Secretary to the Government of Bengal,—(No. 3679I., dated the 8th June 1867.)

REFERRING to your endorsement No. 2028 of the 28th ultimo, and the extract which accompanied it, I am to inform you that, in the opinion of the Chief Engineer, no danger need be apprehended to the City of Calcutta from the embanking of Saugor Island to a sufficient height to guard against spring tides, and that a further addition of 2 or 3 feet in the height of the embankment may be safely given to protect the island against the effects of ordinary gales. But if embankments are to be made, they should be systematically and carefully carried out.

From H. L. HARRISON, ESQ., Junior Secretary to the Government of Bengal, to the Secretary to the Government of Bengal, in the Public Works Department,—(No. 2588, dated Fort William, the 29th June 1867.)

WITH reference to your letter No. 3679I., dated the 8th instant, I am directed to request that you will be so good as to state, for the information of the Lieutenant-Governor, to what height the cyclone wave in 1864 rose on any part of Saugor Island, and how many feet that was above the highest ordinary spring tides, if this information is obtainable in your Office?

from LIEUTENANT-COLONEL J. E. T. NICOLLS, R. E., Secretary to the Bengal, in the Public Works Department, to the Officiating Secretary to of Bengal,—(No. 31*I*., dated the 16th July 1867.)

etter No 2588, dated the 29th ultimo, from the Junior Secretary to the l, asking to know the height of the cyclone wave of 1864 in Sangor requests a reference to the Cyclone Report published by Colonel Blanford, and to the Master Attendant, who will also be able to afford uired.

ARRISON, ESQ., Junior Secretary to the Government of Bengal, to the Secretary e Government of Bengal, in the Public Works Department,—(No. 2979, dated Fort William, the 27th July 1867.)

WITH reference to your memorandum No. 31*I*., dated the 16th instant, I am directed to request that you will be so good as to ascertain definitely from the Chief Engineer to the Bengal Government whether, in his opinion, there would be any increased danger to the City of Calcutta from a cyclone wave, such as that of 1864, if Sangor Island were so embanked to such an extent as to protect it against a wave of that height. Your report that no danger would ensue from embanking it against spring tides does not meet the difficulty in question.

From LIEUTENANT-COLONEL F. H. RUNDALL, R. E., Joint-Secretary to the Government of Bengal, in the Public Works Department, Irrigation Branch, to the Secretary to the Government of Bengal,—(No. 26*I*., dated Fort William, the 6th April 1868.)

ADVERTING to your letter No. 2979 of the 27th July last, I am instructed by the Lieutenant-Governor to forward the accompanying Note by the Chief Engineer in the Irrigation Department on the protective works constructed on either bank of the river at the mouth of the Hooghly which will afford the information required in your letter under acknowledgement.

Extract from Note on the Protective Works constructed on either bank of the river at the mouth of the Hooghly.

PARA.—VIII.—There is, however, one more most important point for consideration, and that is, the possible effect that might be produced on Calcutta itself if the present exposed country were to be completely protected. This a point on which I feel diffident in expressing an opinion, as I am but imperfectly acquainted with the action of a cyclone-wave.

I am, however, disposed to think that the contraction of the waterway, or rather the [illegible] of the wave between the banks of the river, would not tend to increase the dis- [illegible] wave would travel or the height to which it would be raised. Judging [illegible] of water appears to be proportional [illegible] of the wind, I therefore by no means feel sure that it is an additional quantity of [illegible] is forced in to the channel of the river, so much as the unnatural raising of the [illegible] the points over which the cyclone itself passes. The height of this wave is also in a [illegible]pendent on the depth of the water at those points. Every one knows that waves [illegible] shallow reservoirs are much lower than on those which are deep. Also that the [illegible] up by the wind on the lee shore, or bank to a higher level than it is to windward. [illegible]on is independent of the area of the reservoir and is generated without any ad- [illegible]ne, and solely with whatever quantity of water there happens to be in it, at the [illegible] infer that the water on the river acted upon by the wind is raised above [illegible]lm, just in proportion to the force of wind passing over it, and is pre- [illegible] it meets with an obstacle. That obstacle does not necessarily further [illegible]er as it would do in the case of a storm flood draining off a country [illegible] the sea. In that instance there is a continual accession of volume [illegible] a higher level, which will in time overtop any opposing obstacle, and con- [illegible] the whole quantity has run off. In the case of the cyclone I believe the [illegible]reat if not greater at the ebb than at the flood-tide, as happens ordinarily [illegible] winds are blowing strong up the Hooghly. Of course if the cyclone [illegible] there will be the accession of whatever quantity is due to the rise of tide, but [illegible]n occur without the presence of any wind at all. During the southerly [illegible] of the sea in the whole of the upper part of the Bay of Bengal is [illegible]er level, but I do not think a cyclone would raise the level of the Bay [illegible]ever [illegible] might raise the wave immediately in its path, and it must be borne in [illegible]hat the level of the Bay at the time of the cyclone of October 1864 must have been [illegible]s the south-west monsoon had ceased blowing for some weeks.

[illegible]n the cyclone of last November no additional quantity of water appears to have entered [illegible]oghly, or the tide to have been more than ordinarily high, and yet to the eastward of [illegible] the cyclone passed over the Bay, and if it had any effect in raising the level of the [illegible] more than locally, the result must have been felt in the Hooghly.

[illegible]herefore draw the conclusion that the elevation of that wave does not necessarily imply [illegible]sponding accession of volume, which if opposed, as in the case of a descending rain [illegible] must necessarily be raised higher by the obstacle it meets, or because its path is confined. [illegible]lence I have no apprehension that any greater effect would be felt at Calcutta after the [illegible]ete embanking of the Hooghly against a cyclone-wave, than was felt before in 1864. [illegible]s said before, I put forth these opinions diffidently merely as the result of my own re- [illegible]s on the subject, and not with any pretension to their being correct conclusions or [illegible]ations of the action of a cyclone-wave.
